GERMANY READY FOR ANY TERMS EXPERTS MAKE

Eve of Meeting in Berlin Finds Government and People Have Undergone a Change of Heart.

OWEN D. YOUNG IS CENTER OF HOPES

Observers of Paris Sessions Indicate Reich's Fate Is Well Placed in His Hands.

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT,
Berlin Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
(Copyright, 1924.)

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—Word has reached Germany from many sources that the reparations experts in Paris have crystallized their plans to a certain extent.

So far as Germany is concerned, these plans have three principal points: First, to balance the budget; second, to fix heavy reparations payments in the form of a funded debt, and, third, a big loan. Germany also will be counselled not to try to escape the inner debt, which is possible since the inflation and official devaluation of the mark.

The experts will frame a combined inner and reparations debt, making it smaller than either the French or the British debt, but heavy.

German Change of Heart.

Judges of Germany's mentality agree that Germany has had a change of heart and is ready to pay. Bluff and sabotage carried on by the big industrials, ruining Chancellor Wirth's policy and ending in the Ruhr occupation, are finished. Now the Socialists are thrown out and the old line government is ready to settle on any basis the experts say.

The personality of Owen D. Young, the American expert, has made a big impression on all official and unofficial Germans who flocked to Paris with the arrival of the experts and now are reporting to Berlin. Up to the present, Gen. Charles G. Dawes was the known figure. In the Government now it is Young in whose hands they are willing to leave their fate.

The apparent docility of the big industries is explained in two ways. First, even though the Ruhr received recently big foreign credits—British, Dutch, Swiss, Swedish—they cannot work freely. Their consent is contingent on getting the French administration out of the Rhineland and Ruhr, even though the soldiers remain.

The second reason is that new credits are used largely for expansion abroad. Krupp, who got the first big credits from the Dutch, spent the money in developing plants in Russia where he is building a plant, and in Barcelona, where he is working with the Maquinista Terretre y Maritima concern. Krupp's chief wealth lies in patents which are not workable in Germany, so he is manufacturing elsewhere.

Stinnes' Stand in Doubt.

Hugo Stinnes is a doubtful figure, but it is believed he cannot shatter the policies in the present-day Germany as he did before. He, with a few others, practically have Germany's railroads.

The creditors who formed a consortium in December are now owed 300,000,000 marks which has been increased by a loan of 100,000,000 by another group, both acquiescing in a £50,000,000 loan for coal from the English bank of Henry Schroeder.

The combined debts already have loosened the Reich's hold on the railroads. Big industry is admittedly the hardest to handle, but the Government is preparing the way by reducing the customs on English coke and ores.

Hope for a successful outcome of the negotiations is increased further by a reduction of the unemployed in unoccupied Germany by more than 1,000,000 in the last six weeks. Everything is framing up for a favorable reception of the experts' plans.

FOOT-PATH TUNNEL AT GRAND AND WASHINGTON PLANNED

Director Fisk Estimates Cost at $25,000—Proposal to Be Submitted to Board.

A foot-path tunnel, leading from the southwest corner of Grand and Washington boulevards to the northeast and southeast corners, is planned by Director Fisk of the Department of Streets, as an improvement to be made this season. He will ask the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in time for inclusion in this year's budget. His estimate of the cost is $25,000.

The tunnel, lined with white tile, would have its west entrance adjoining the Humboldt Building, and its east entrances on the sidewalk by the Third Baptist Church and on the cutoff triangle. A comfort station on the triangle is also planned. No entrance on the northwest corner, by the University Club Building, is included in the design, and it would be necessary to cross Washington boulevard on the surface.

MELLON AGAIN ATTACKS COUZENS' STAND ON SURTAX

New Letter, However, Ignores Senator's Challenge to Tell Effect of His Plan on Own Taxes.

CITES EFFECT OF HIGH TAXES ON RAILROADS

Terms Senator's Views 'Political Diatribe' and Says, 'Your Case Is Unique Solely as Illustration.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—While Republican House members were considering a proposal today to draft a tax bill of their own, using the Mellon plan as a basis, Secretary Mellon renewed his defense of his proposals in another open letter to Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan.

In his last letter to the Secretary, the Michigan Senator had challenged Mellon to tell the country what effect the Mellon plan would have on his own personal taxes. The Secretary's reply did not mention that subject, however, but, instead, again inquired whether the present high surtax rates had not impelled Couzens to invest a large part of his wealth in tax exempt securities.

Mellon also disregarded Senator Couzens' challenge to a joint debate on the Mellon plan.

"Your case is not unique," wrote the Secretary. "There are many other men in similar situation. Your case is of interest solely as an illustration."

Mellon emphatically denied he had abandoned his proposition that high surtaxes were becoming less productive. Couzens' statement to that effect, the Secretary said, seemed to be a conclusion arrived at by some "unique process of reasoning" which the Treasury head found himself unable to understand.

Case of the Railroads.

"You try to answer the railroads' need for stock investments," the letter went on, "by the usual political diatribe against them. The question is, can they obtain the capital which is required to meet the country's needs, and this depends upon what they can offer investors. Under the present surtaxes, and it is they which have been the continuous subject of our correspondence, a 6 per cent stock nets the small income 6 per cent. It nets the large income only 3 per cent. That is what I meant by inadequacy of return, and its correction lies in lowering of surtax rates."

After he had assured Senator Couzens that the Couzens tax-exempt investments were cited "solely as an illustration" and with no intention of indulging in personalities, Mellon continued:

"Let us return, therefore, to the original subject which is the basis of the correspondence between us. That is whether the high surtaxes are becoming less productive of revenue to the Government and are injurious to business initiative. * *

Secretary Mellon also wrote a letter today to Representative Moore, Democrat, Virginia, in which he favored enactment of legislation which would require taxpayers to state in their income tax returns what tax-exempt securities they hold and their character. Representative Moore has urged such a requirement and the Treasury Secretary said he had recommended incorporation of the provision in the tax bill.

At Work on Tax Bill.

Repeal of the excise tax on soft drink and beverages was tentatively agreed on today by the House Ways and Means Committee which is considering tax legislation. Chairman Green estimated $11,000,000 in revenue thus would be lost. Committee members reported that thus far all attempts to repeal the tax on automobiles and accessories had been defeated. The question, however, has not been disposed of.

LENINE'S WIDOW STANDS AT BIER AS CROWDS PASS BY

Unending Line, Moving All Day and All Night, Pays Tribute to Dead Revolutionist.

PETROGRAD IS NOW NAMED 'LENINGRAD'

Funeral Postponed Until Sunday to Permit Communists From Abroad to Attend Service.

MOSCOW, Jan. 25.—Watching the endless line waiting to pass by Lenine's body lying in state, it was impossible not to feel the extraordinary affection with which he had been regarded. Each person who was able to say he had seen him in life felt proud.

Between 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning my turn came to pass by the bier which lay in the center of a columned hall, the lamps on the walls clouded with crepe and scarlet. The bier was dark crimson. Lenine lay on it with his face exposed, a face pale but calm—more like the Lenine of 1919 than the man we saw last year.

Mrs. Lenine was standing beside him and while we walked silently by her—as at the station when the body arrived, the movie camera men kept imperturbably at their work.

The procession of people going to see Lenine for the last time began to form early Wednesday. All day and all night it passed by the bier and still stretches through the main streets, continually growing and no doubt will continue throughout another night.

Petrograd Is Named Leningrad in Honor of Dead Leader.
By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Jan. 25.—With the official announcement that the funeral of Premier Lenine has been postponed from Saturday to Sunday, came the information that the State had changed the name of the great city of the North, which was named for Peter the Great, to Leningrad.

Moscow's mourning at the bier of Lenine has become a vast and solemn spectacle.

Down the two wide streets and several smaller ones countless thousands of persons, many from distant villages who pass into the chamber where the body lies in state, glance at the face and then file out into the cold, perhaps to walk a dozen miles to the little outlying village from where their pilgrimage began.

In the crowd also are delegations of factory women who sing communist songs as they march across the square into the building; and here and there is a hotel employe or house domestic, excused from duty to go to the hall.

Newspapers Have Black Borders.

Moscow is in deep mourning. The theaters and motion picture places are closed, and although the newspapers have reappeared, they are bordered with black.

The number of those passing the body of the Premier reached the 400,000 mark this afternoon. The procession still retains its impressive solemnity, but is beginning to take on the inevitable characteristics of all big public gatherings. Venders of black and red boutonniere portraits of Lenine, biographies, arm bands and even sandwiches are crying their wares to the long queus within shouting range of the great hall, while at a nearby corner an enterprising lad sells pohnograph records of Lenine's speeches.

Inside the building a tiny easel set up within arms length of the body is used by artist after artist in sketching for future paintings or sculpture, while occasionally glaring lights are turned on and a motion picture camera clicks.

These activities however, do not detract from the solemn atmosphere. Sobs are frequently heard but more impressive is the strained, head turning reluctance with which the majority take their parting view of the great communist leader.

Probably more intimate details of Lenine's anatomy are being published than has been the case in

SINCLAIR LENT $25,000 IN LIBERTY BONDS TO FALL IN JUNE, 1923, ZEVELY TESTIFIES

DENBY'S IGNORANCE OF THE OIL LEASES

Oil Millionaire Causes Gale of Laughter When He Testifies "Someone Had to Sign for the Navy."

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—E. L. Doheny, California oil man, who talks nonchalantly of dollars in units of millions, has come clean with the true story of the $100,000 loan that Albert B. Fall received in November, 1921, while he was still a member of the Harding Cabinet.

A little more than a year later, Fall, as Secretary of the Interior, leased Naval Oil Reserve No. 1, in California, to the company of which Doheny is the head. Out of this transaction Doheny has testified that he expects to make a profit of $100,000,000. He gave that off-hand calculation to the Senate Oil Lease Investigating Committee last month and repeated it on the stand yesterday.

Doheny's testimony gives the final discrediting touch to Fall's story that he got the money in cash from Edward B. McLean, Washington newspaper publisher, and close friend of the late President Harding—a story already exploded by McLean's testimony under oath that he gave Fall checks, not cash, and that the checks were returned unused.

Thus gradually the inside details surrounding the leasing of rich naval oil fields for private exploitation comes to light.

Today It's Zevely's Turn.

Today it is the turn of Col. J. W. (Bill) Zevely, one-time editor of the "Unterrified Democrat" of Linn, Mo., and now the personal attorney of Harry F. Sinclair and well-known man-about-Washington, to submit to examination by the Senate committee.

Fall is scheduled to appear Monday. He arrived from New Orleans last night in Zevely's company and went to the latter's house. The former Secretary of the Interior was to have been heard today, but in advance of his arrival telegraphed the committee that he would like a postponement on account of his physical condition.

Probably nobody in the crowded committee room—a room daily more crowded since Archie Roosevelt gave his dramatic testimony of last Monday—doubted that Doheny was giving the true explanation of the mysterious $100,000 when he said that it was he who lent it to Fall, sending the cash down from New York in a satchel.

Doheny's hair is liberally streaked with gray and his close-cropped mustache is white, but those are the only signs of age. His face is ruddy and he has a pair of amazingly bright, blue eyes. There are large streaks of drollery and sentiment in his makeup.

Lent $100,000 Without Interest.

He let Fall have the $100,000 on his personal note, without interest, because Fall had been his "pal" back in the old mining days of the West. It all came out with a rather appealing naivety. He had prospered, he said, and Fall had been unfortunate. Fall told him of his troubles, and he took the hint and offered to lend him $100,000, as from one old friend to another.

He could lend $100,000, Doheny said, as readily as another man might lend $50.

"I'm just an ordinary, old-time, impulsive, irresponsible, improvident sort of prospector," said Doheny.

His jaw trembled and his voice shook as he toldy of Fall's financial troubles and the loss of his two children.

Doheny said that no money had

NEW BOULEVARD SIGNS THAT DRIVERS CAN SEE AT NIGHT

They Will Have Red Surface Easily Seen by Day and Reflect Rays of Headlights After Dark.

New boulevard stop signs, which drivers can see at night, are to be installed in the next few weeks, first at the new stops provided by an ordinance which has been in effect since Dec. 28, but which has not been enforced for lack of signs. Later they will be placed at all boulevard stops.

The new signs are the gift of the St. Louis Automobile Club. They have a red reflecting surface, which will be easily seen by day, and will reflect the rays of headlights at night.

Fifty new "silent cop" go-stop signs for automobilists, to be installed at traffic corners, have been ordered by the Police Department, and they will be paid for from police funds, $30,000 being the cost, in order that the demands on police man-power at the traffic corners may be lessened.

The city has refused an offer for placing advertising go-stop signs, without cost to the city.

SAT THROUGH MOVIE WITH UMBRELLA UP

Testimony of Customer in Rent Suit, in Which 19 Leaks in Roof Were Issue.

Too much realism in the storm scenes at the neighborhood movie show, Twenty-fifth and State streets, East St. Louis, consisting of a downpour of real rain through 19 holes in the roof, defeated Fred Wiesemann's claim for rent against H. E. Rose and J. L. Price, in the Belleville Circuit Court yesterday.

Rose and Price rented the building from Wiesemann at $110 a month. After they moved out, to keep from being drowned out, Wiesemann sued them for four months' rent.

The case was up yesterday and Wiesemann told judge and jury that Rose and Price quit paying rent because a rival show opened in the next block and lured their patrons away, which was not Wiesemann's fault, as he only rented them the building and did not guarantee them an audience.

Rose and Price testified it was the leaky roof and not the competition that put them out of business. They were doing fine and "standing 'em up" at their show until the water began coming through the 19 holes in the roof.

Wiesemann said it was as good a roof as anybody could want and turned the water like a duck's back, and he intimated broadly that the movie men were just trying to get out of paying the rent because they couldn't compete with the fellow in the next block.

But Rose and Price put some of their customers on the stand. One testified that he had to move his seat one night right at the most exciting time of the film, to keep from being soaked, and another swore that he raised his umbrella and only thus was able to sit through the storm scene unmolested.

The jury sided with the movie men and refused to give the landlord any money.

FALL ALSO GOT $10,000 EXPENSE FOR TRIP ABROAD

Oil Millionaire's Right-Hand Man Says Bonds Were Delivered to Bank in El Paso After Ex-Secretary Was Asked to Go to Russia for Sinclair.

WENT TO RANCH TO DISCUSS JOURNEY

Witness Tells of Trip to Three Rivers, N. M., With Sinclair When Lease of Teapot Dome Reserve Was Mentioned.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—J. W. Zevely, Harry Sinclair's personal attorney, told the Senate's Teapot Dome Investigating Committee today that Sinclair had loaned $25,000 in Liberty bonds to Albert B. Fall in June, 1923, three months after Fall resigned from the Cabinet.

The bonds were sent to El Paso for Fall, the witness said, after Sinclair had invited Fall to go to Russia with him to advise him on some business matters there.

Fall could not leave at the time Sinclair sailed, he said, because he had some personal affairs to attend to and also felt obliged to go to Washington to ascertain whether the administration officials would approve his visit to Russia.

Wahlberg Sent in Bonds.

"Before Mr. Sinclair sailed," Zevely said, "I told him the Secretary would need $25,000. He called in his secretary, Mr. Wahlberg, and told him to let me have $25,000 or $30,000 in bonds. Mr. Wahlberg sent them to a bank in El Paso which Mr. Fall had designated."

Zevely said Fall gave him a note for the amount after his return from Russia; that he had the note, but that he had not given any evidence of the debt to Sinclair except to promise he would pay the loan.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, recalled that Fall had told the committee that $10,000 was all he got for the Russian trip.

"That was his expense money," the witness said. "The other was in addition."

In his testimony before the committee last Monday, Wahlberg declared that in October or November, 1922, by direction of Sinclair, he placed, subject to the order of Zevely, 3500 shares of Sinclair Consolidated and $25,000 worth of Liberty Bonds. Wahlberg further testified that the stock at least subsequently had been sold, but that he did not know what beacme of the bonds. He added that the transaction seemed to him "suspicious."

Zevely said the loan of $25,000 in Liberty bonds to Fall was arranged for when he went to Three Rivers to see Fall about the Russian trip.

Senator Walsh said it was odd that he would have made a trip to Three Rivers for that purpose instead of writing.

"It may be strange, but it's the fact," returned the witness.

Deposited $115,000 in Company.

Questioned aobut sale of the 3500 shares of Sinclair stock, he had borrowed from Harry Sinclair, Zevely said he deposited the

ADE FALSE CLAIM FOR $24,700, DRY LEADER ADMITS

W. H. Anderson Says He Told League Directors He Had Mortgaged His Property to Aid Work.

FAILED TO PAY TAX ON SHARE OF "SPLIT"

Tells of Mysterious "King" and How He Gave the "Gift" to Publicity Man Named "Mann."

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Assistant District Attorney Pecora today continued his cross-examination of William H. Anderson, State superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, on trial on a charge of forgery, in an effort to learn more about the mysterious "John T. King," named by the league head yesterday as the man who gave him $24,700 because he liked him.

Anderson declared that he had received the last of the "gift" while taking dinner with "King" at the Waldorf-Astoria, late in 1913, or early in 1914. He could not recall the exact date. At that time, Anderson said, his benefactor handed him an envelope which he opened after the dinner to find $2000, one $1000 bill and the remainder in $100 bills.

Anderson, asked if he had taken dinner with his benefactor in the room next to the Waldorf bar, declared he was not familiar with those rooms.

Knows Nothing About Bar Rooms.

"You don't know anything about bar rooms do you?" "No."

The league head added that he had met "King" several times in Baltimore at the Hotel Rennert and the Hotel Casewell. He was not registered at either of the hotels and he didn't think that "King" was, he said.

"King," Anderson said, introduced him to a publicity man named "Henry Mann," who had offices in downtown New York. Anderson said he met "Mann" 30 or 35 times.

Anderson declared that he had been trying unsuccessfully to locate "Mann" ever since the District Attorney's office began investigating the Anti-Saloon League's affairs.

Anderson admitted that "Mann," the publicity agent, had been given all of the $24,700, which came from "King," and that it was later charged to the league. The defendant said he had told two men—the Rev. Dr. L. P. Tucker of Syracuse, and the Rev. Dr. Fred J. Tower of Rochester—how he had acquired and expended the money.

Twelve or 13 letters had been written to him by "Mann," Anderson testified, but he did not know where they were. He said that the reason he had not told Pecora about "Mann," when he questioned him a year ago, was that he thought Pecora "Didn't have to know about him."

Admits Making False Affidavit.

The League head said it was true that in March, 1918, when he presented the claim of $24,700 to the League directors he had submitted an affidavit setting forth that he had acquired the money through the mortgaging of property and from three life insurance policies.

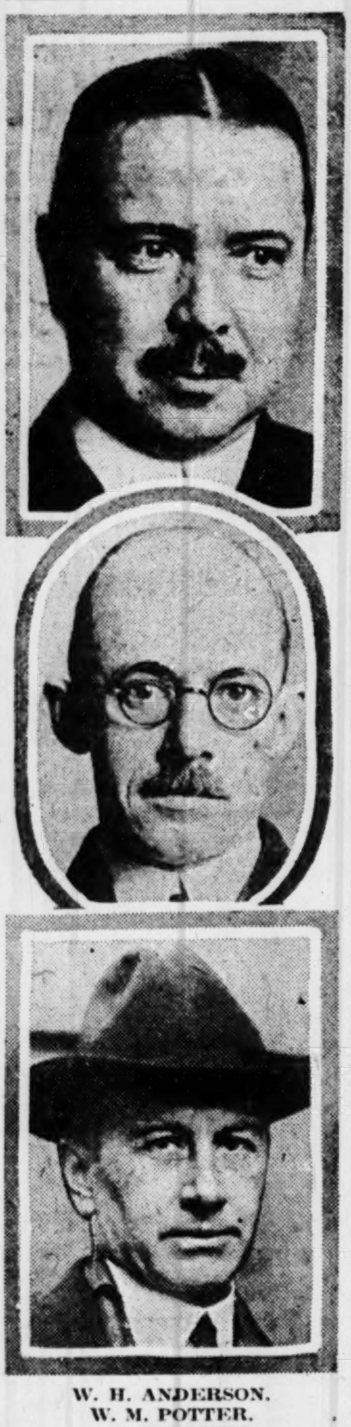
"By a coincidence that directors' meeting was the same at which your salary was raised to $10,000, retroactive to 1914, when you were employed as the League superintendent, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

He added that he submitted the contract he had made with O. Bertsall Phillips, fund collector, at the same meeting, but declared that he did not agree as to any coincidence.

Anderson admitted, after a series of questions, that he had not paid or declared income tax to the Federal or State government on the money he had received from Phillips under their contract to "split" the fund collector's commissions.

DRY LEADER ON TRIAL AND TWO OF STATE'S CHIEF WITNESSES



W. H. ANDERSON.
W. M. POTTER.
O. B. PHILLIPS.

Anderson declared that the reason he told the directors the money he loaned the league had been raised on mortgages and life insurance policies was that he had "got his dates mixed and the funds were all mixed up." He admitted that he had made no attempt to correct some of the directors, when, in 1921, they publicly praised him for his spirit of self-sacrifice in raising money for the league by mortgaging his home.

"Did King give you the $24,700 for your personal use or for your Anti-Saloon League Work?" Justice Tompkins asked.

"Both," was the reply.

"In 1912 I told Mr. King I probably would go to New York to become superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League. I told him the New York league was in bad shape and that if I had money of my own I would be willing to run the risk of a publicity campaign and he said to me, 'I'll make you a little money for yourself.'"

Offered to Cancel Claim.

He added that the money was given to him outright, but with the understanding that he would use some of it for publicity and take a chance of getting it back. He declared that he had received no receipts from "Mann" for money advanced to him or vouchers or other statements, showing results of the publicity work. He admitted that in the directors' meeting he had declared he would withdraw his claim against the League rather than submit any records that might violate the confidence placed in him by the men he had employed.

"I had to protect Mann's name because his life was in his hands. Any man engaged in prohibition work in New York City at that time was in momentary danger."

Zevely Tells of $25,000 Loan to Fall by Sinclair

$115,000 in the Jaja Corporation in New York.

"What's the Jaja Corporation?" asked Senator Walsh. "That's a corporation I organized to do a general business," was the answer.

"Who are the officers?" asked Walsh. "I'm the president, my wife is secretary, I think—I don't know; it's never functioned."

Fall International Lawyer.

Chairman Lenroot led the witness into the story of the trip. One condition of the concession, he said, was that it would be invalid if the United States failed to recognize the China Government.

"Mr. Sinclair had great respect for Mr. Fall's ability as an international lawyer," Zevely continued. "Mr. Fall had served on the Foreign Relations Committee and was familiar with foreign affairs."

Zevely said he regarded Mr. Fall as indebted to Sinclair for the Liberty bond loan; that he held the note simply as trustee for Sinclair. He added that he thought the note bore interest at 6 per cent and was payable on demand.

Asked about the circumstances of the loan, Zevely said Fall told him at Three Rivers that he wanted to buy some property and that he was expecting some money, but that if he did not get it he would need a loan.

Zevely, who came to Washington last night from New Orleans with Fall, was accompanied to the committeeroom by G. F. Stanford, another Sinclair attorney, and by A. E. Watts, vice president of Sinclair Consolidated.

Hearing in Larger Room.

To accommodate the crowds the hearing was moved to one of the large caucus rooms in the Senate office building. The spectators began to gather an hour before the time set for the meeting.

Assistant Attorney-General Holland again was on hand as the personal representative of Attorney-General Daugherty, who departed today for Florida.

Zevely testified that he had served as inspetcor in the office of the Secretary of the Interior from 1896 to 1902 under Secretaries Francis, Bliss and Hitchcock.

Asked by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, as to his connection with the lease of the Teapot Dome reserve, the witness began by saying that in December, 1921, he went with Sinclair to Fall's New Mexico ranch with reference to matters pending in the Indian Office regarding the lease of Osage Indian lands.

"After we had been there a couple of days," he said, "Mr. Sinclair mentioned the Teapot Dome reserve and inquired when it was to be leased. Secretary Fall said he was having it investigated. When we got home the following February, Mr. Sinclair filed an application. Thereafter there were negotiations for it, and the lease was obtained in April."

Zevely said he did not know details of the conversation between Fall and Sinclair at the Secretary's ranch. He could not say whether the memorandum submitted by Sinclair to Fall on Feb. 3, 1922, was in confirmation of the conversation at Three Rivers.

"Who prepared the lease that was entered into?" asked Senator Walsh. "There were several engaged in that. It was a long lease. Mr. Stanford was the principal one."

Drafting in Zevely's Office.

"Where were the negotiations for the lease carried out?" "In the office of the Secretary of the Interior. But the drafting of the lease was mostly done in my office here."

Asked about his trip to New Orleans, the witness said he went there in response to a telegram from Fall.

"How did Secretary Fall happen to be in New Orleans?" pursued Senator Walsh. "I understood he was there to see Mr. Doheny; that a conference had been arranged between them there."

Asked why Fall wanted to see him, Zevely said they were old friends and he assumed Fall wanted to have him there to be with and talk with him. He said he did not seek to attend the conference between Doheny and Fall; that the former Secretary had told him of it afterward, and that Fall had said he wanted Doheny to tell about the whole matter.

Bought House on Long Island.

Asked about a loan he negotia-ted with Sinclair, which had mony, Zevely said he did borrow 3500 shares of Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation stock about October or November, 1922.

"I sold it," he said. "It netted me about $115,000. I bought a house on Long Island. The house and improvements I put on it cost approximately $100,000. That's all there is about the stock transaction."

Fall to Appear Monday.

Fall, back in Washington, had been summoned for examination today, but, at his request, because of his physical condition, his appearance has been deferred until Monday. Upon his arrival here last night from New Orleans he declined to discuss Doheny's testimony or to make any statement other than to announce that he was a "sick man."

Accompanied from the South by Zevely, Fall spent the night as his guest.

It was near midnight when Fall and Zevely arrived on the New Orleans limited. They remained on the train until the other Washington passengers had left it and then departed from the station through a baggage room below the main concourse on which their train had arrived, thereby avoiding photographers and possible crowds. They were met by Mrs. Zevely in an automobile and taken to the Zevely home in a downpour of rain.

Fall was said today at the home of Zevely to be under orders of his physician, Dr. John Wharton, to remain in bed all day. Callers were denied admission. A slight temperature and a return of an old throat affection were said to have resulted from the change in climate and Fall's trip to Washington in unusually inclement weather.

The former Interior Secretary sent out word that he had made no statement regarding the Doheny testimony and would make none until he appears before the committee Monday.

Senate Is in Recess.

With the Senate in recess over the week end, discussion of the naval oil reserve leases was confined today to the committee room. Before adjourning yesterday the Senate, by unanimous consent, discharged the investigating committee from further consideration of the resolution by Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, proposing cancellation of the leases. Caraway expects to press for action on the resolution Monday and thus to reopen Senate debate on the subject.

There was brief Senate discussion yesterday. Commenting on the testimony of Doheny, Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, declared that the Doheny loan "makes $200,000" known to have passed in the course of the leasing of the reserves.

"Someone ought to go to the penitentiary because of this transaction," he said.

The story told by Doheny caused a stir which was felt throughout all of official Washington.

The Cabinet discussed the situation, but apparently there was no decision to depart from the present policy under which the Department of Justice, at the direction of President Coolidge, is "observing" the Senate investigation.

The House Naval Committee asked Rear Admiral Gregory, who was before it on other matters, to produce Monday the leases for the naval oil reserves in Wyoming and California. Members of the committee indicated privately that they desired to learn what had become of royalties paid in by the Doheny and Sinclair interests.

Extension of Inquiry Into Oklahoma Zinc Lease Asked For.

By the Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., aJn. 25.—A resolution was introduced in the upper house of the Oklahoma Legislature today by Senator Courtland M. Fequay of Chandler, asking that the United States Senate Committee investigating the Teapot Dome oil lease take testimony also in regard to a lead and zinc mining lease granted by the Interior Department to the Eagle-Picher Mining Co., in the restricted Quapawa Indian lands in Northeastern Oklahoma.

The resolution also requests an investigation into the alleged transfer of $25,000 in Liberty Bonds which Harry F. Sinclair was declared by W. G. Wahlberg, his secretary, to have given to Col. William Zevely in 1922. The resolution seeks to determine whether there was a connection between this alleged payment to Zevely and rumors current during the 1922 gubernatorial campaign in Oklahoma to the effect that Sinclair had helped finance the campaign of J. C. Walton.

The resolution declared that it was "currently rumored" that the lease of the Quapaw land was made to the Eagle-Picher company at a lesser price than offered by other responsible bidders.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 25.—Tom Johnson, foreman of A. B. Fall's ranch at Three Rivers, N. M., left here yesterday for Washington, where he has been subpenaed as a witness before the Senate committee investigating the Teapot Dome oil lease, it was reported here today.

DOHENY HAS COME CLEAN, BUT HAS IT ALL BEEN TOLD?

been paid him on the note, but that he expected Fall would repay it if he kept his health. If Fall did not pay in some other way, Doheny said he purposed to take him into his employ and give him a salary out of which he could meet the obligation.

Doheny saw no impropriety in his lending the money to Fall nor in Fall's taking it. He admitted, under questioning, that he now realized the loan might have led Fall to favor him in business dealings with the department, but he stoutly denied that the loan had had any influence upon the making of the leasing contract. If there was any collusion, he said, it must have involved seven men of the Navy and Interior Departments and two of his own men.

Denby's Ignorance of Deal.

Without intending it, the oil man threw additional light on Secretary of the Navy Denby's remarkable ignorance of the details of the transactions by khich he and Fall signed away the naval oil reserves to the Doheny and the Sinclair interests.

Denby's testimony before the committee which showed his memory unpossessed of some of the salient facts about the leases, had already been the subject of scathing comment on the Senate floor. The impression left by Denby was reflected in the laughter that greeted Doheny's statement, in reference to the California lease, that "all knew more about it than Secretary Denby did."

Doheny at the time was explaining that the details of the lease had been handled by subordinates, and his remark was not intended to be critical of the Secretary of the Navy.

In the light of what had already been shown, however, the remark appealed to committee members and the rest of the audience as so apropos that they broke into laughter.

Senator Walsh, principal prober, wanted to know of what consequence it was whether Denby signed the lease or not, and the witness replied, amid a fresh outburst of merriment, that "somebody representing the Navy Department had to sign it."

Though the statement by Doheny was obviously accepted by committee members as the correct version of Fall's receipt of $100,000, questions by some of the committee indicated that an effort will be made, when Fall takes the stand, to prove that he got more than this.

Fall's Expenditures $180,000.

Senator Caraway has figured that Fall's expenditures for additions to and improvements on his New Mexico ranch reached a total of about $180,000.

The questioning of Doheny turned wholly on the lease of Naval Reserve No. 1 in California.

Archie Roosevelt's testimony had to do with the Teapot Dome deal, which turned over the Wyoming field to the Sinclair interests. His suspicions regarding that deal were aroused by a conversation he had with Sinclair's private secretary, who told him, according to Roosevelt's recollection, that Sinclair had paid $68,000 to Fall's ranch foreman. G. D. Wahlberg, the secretary, denied he had said anything of that sort.

So the mystery of the $68,000, if it was "$68,000" that Wahlberg said and not "six or eight cows," still stands.

OPPOSITION TO CHRISTIAN AS TRADE COMMISSION MEMBER

Association With Group Now Under Fire and Conservative Tendency Ground for Attack.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The Teapot Dome oil lease revelations have accentuated the marked opposition which has developed to the confirmation of George Christian, secretary to the late President Harding, as Federal Trade Commissioner. Christian recently was nominated for the post by President Coolidge to succeed Victor Murdock of Kansas, resigned. There has been no intimation that Christian was in any way connected with the oil scandals, but the disclosures have caused a question to be raised as to the wisdom of giving the Federal Trade appointment to one who was associated politically and personally with some of the group now under fire. Christian, it is being said, has not the proper political background to make him a desirable member of the commission.

Objection also is made to the appointment on the ground that Christian's experience has not been such as to fit him for the place. When Murdock goes out on Feb. 1, the Federal Trade Commission will be composed of two liberals and two conservatives. The appointment of Christian, it is believed, would give the control to the latter, and, in that event, according to a liberal member of the Senate, "Congress might as well stop appropriations for the Commission."

Opponents of the Christian appointment say that nine of the 17 members of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, to which the nomination was referred, have indicated that they will hold up the name indefinitely.

SUING FOR INSURANCE ON MAN MISSING SINCE 1915

Divorced Wife of Former St. Louis Bookkeeper Introduces Letter Threatening Suicide.

On the contention that John P. Adams, who has been missing since April 1, 1915, is legally dead, Mrs. Cora M. Preiss, of 2624 Rutger street, his divorced wife, is in Circuit Judge Killoren's court today seeking to collect the principal of a $1000 insurance policy on his life and a reasonable allowance for attorney's fees and vexatious delay.

Adams disappeared while employed as bookkeeper for the Century Boat Club. Mrs. Preiss introduced a letter from him stating that he would commit suicide, and offered testimony to the effect that he was short $1800 in his accounts and sent a similar letter to the treasurer of the club.

Under Missouri law a person missing for seven years is legally dead. The defendant, the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, declared Adams visited their Seattle office in November, 1916, and informed them that he was living under an assumed name. A statement taken at that time and signed by "John P. Adams" was introduced in evidence, and a handwriting expert identified it as Adams' signature.

DAWSON, Y. T., Jan. 25.—Assays of silver lead ore ranging from 900 to 1200 ounces of silver a ton are common in the Braince Creek district, where a new strike has been reported, in the Beaver River district, 60 miles from Keno Hill, according to a letter received here from Archie D. Martin, former member of the Yukon Territory Legislature, now at Keno City.

He stated that the new field promised to become "a second Keno City."

BRITISH TRADE BALANCE WITH AMERICA IMPROVES

Banker Attributes More Favorable Position to Payments on Debt Due United States.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The trade balance between Great Britain and the United States has improved in Britain's favor by nearly £27,000,000 in the last nine months.

This statement was made yesterday by Walter Leaf, chairman of the great Westminster Bank. He added: "This proves there are opposite influences which overcome obstacles put in the way of imports from abroad by the Fordney tariff. There can be little doubt that this influence is to be found in the payments Britain is making to the United States on our debts."

Leaf denounced British investors who are sending money to America. He blamed this for the fall of sterling exchange.

Federal Judge Then Orders Action Against State Judge.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 25.—Refusing to accept service on a Federal Court subpena presented by Nathan Becker, Deputy United States Marshal, Judge E. E. Porterfield of the Jackson County Circuit Court today fined Becker $10 for contempt of court and ordered him into custody of a Deputy County Marshal.

Judge A. L. Reeves of the Federal Court then instructed C. C. Madison, District Attorney, to take any action necessary to bring Judge Porterfield into court and to prepare a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Becker. Counsel for the defense of Alice Crampton, a negro woman on trial before Judge Reeves for alleged violation of anti-narcotic laws, caused the subpena for Judge Porterfield to be issued.

HOW DOHENY ACQUIRED CALIFORNIA OIL RESERVES

Land Was Transferred From Navy to Interior Department and Secret Bid Submitted—Standard Oil Claim Upheld.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The history of the transactions leading up to the leasing of the vast naval oil reserve No. 1 in California, more commonly known as the Elk Hills Reserve, by Secretary of the Interior Fall to the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co., of which E. L. Doheny is president, is as follows:

The reserve comprises 32,000 acres, and the amount of oil it contained before drilling started was estimated at 250,000,000 barrels. Together with Teapot Dome and teh three other naval reserves, it was transferred early in 1921 from teh custody of the Navy Department to that of the Department of the Interior. Secretary Fall urged this transfer. Secretady Denby acquiesced in it, and President Harding signed the order.

About this time drilling operations by the Standard Oil Co. on property adjoining the southeast corner of the Californio reserve threatened the reserve with drainage, although not of serious proportions. The area menaced was small. However to protect it, it was decided to drill "offset" wells just inside the boundary, opposite the wells causing the drainage. This is the accepted method of defense in such cases.

Contract to Doheny Interests.

Bids were advertised for, and the contract for the defensive drilling was awarded in June, 1921, to the Doheny interests, the Government receiving royalties of the oil produced. This royalty oil, or a large part of it, was turned back to Doheney in exchange for oil storage facilities to be constructed at various places.

In April 1922, bids for further drilling, which was not defensive, were called for. The contract to be awarded in this case provided for the construction of extensive storage facilities in Hawaii. The work included the dredging of a ship channel and construction of docks.

Like other competitors, Doheny submitted a bid conforming to the proposals and specifications, but he also submitted at the same time a secret alternative bid, of far greater scope than contemplated in the specifications. Under the terms of this bid, he would receive a preferential right to half of the reserve in case it was decided to drill it. This bid was accepted.

Leases Entire Reserve.

In December, it was decided to drill this half of the reserve, the existing wells not having produced enough oil to pay Doheny for the construction which he was building. Doheny thereupon exercised his preferential right to lease that half of the reserve, and Secretary Fall not only leased it to him, but leased the remaining half as well, thereby giving Doheny possession of the entire reserve. This contract was signed Dec. 11, 1922, and out of it, Doheny has testified, he expects to make a profit of $100,000,000.

In addition to the necessity of providing more royalty oil with which to pay Doheny for the storage he was building, another reason given for leasing the reserve was that it was menaced by drainage from Section 36, which lies in almost the exact center of the reserve and which was being operated by the Standard Oil Co. of California.

How the Standard Oil Co. came to be there is one of the most extraordinary chapters of the story. About 1910 it laid claim to the section under a grant from the State of California. The state, however, could make such a grant only in case the land were not known to be mineral land. The plat of the township showed that this section had been designated as mineral land in the original survey and local agents of the Land Office advised that Standard's claim was untenable and urged procedure to oust the company. Such proceedings were instituted in 1914, but the papers were mysteriously placed in the wrong file, and lost for seven years, while those who had charge of them forgot all about the matter.

Lost Papers Found.

They were discovered in 1921 and the proceedings renewed. In such cases the customary procedure is for the local agent to hold hearings, and forward the findings to the Land Commissioner at Washington for a decision, from which the loser has the right to appeal to the Secretary of the Interior.

In this instance, however, Oscar Sutro, attorney for Standard Oil, came to Washington and prevailed upon Secretary Fall to conduct the hearing personally. It consisted of an oral argument by Sutro, after which Secretary Fall immediately upheld Standard's claim, declaring the company entitled to possession of the section. Attorneys present representing the Government were not asked to make a statement and made none.

The Standard Oil Co. brought in a series of phenomenally rich wells on this section, and this was held to menace the reserve, thus furnishing an additional reason for leasing all of it to Doheny. In the Post-Dispatch's reports of the Senate committee investigation, attention has repeatedly been called to the fact that the leasing of the Elk Hills reserve was a transaction of far greater magnitude than the leasing of Teapot Dome, although the latter event had excited more public interest, probably because of the alluring and suggestive name it bears and the popular interest in Harry Sinclair's activities.

That Congress will look favorably upon Doheny's proposal to submit the lease to the opinion of a board of experts appointed by the President, is not likely. There is a strong feeling, particularly in the Senate, that the reserves can and will be recovered as a matter of public policy.

Reported That Premier Macdonald Will Send Commission of Inquiry to Moscow for Negotiations.

WANTS RUSSIA AND GERMANY IN LEAGUE

Labor Government Gives Foreign Office Surprise by Appearing at Desk at 10 O'Clock Sharp.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.
London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—There were important developments in the Labor government's first full working day.

The recognition of Soviet Russia became a certainty when it was made known that James O'Grady had accepted the post of the first British Ambassador to Soviet Russia, and Premier Macdonald received at the Foreign Office Christian Rakovsky, Russian envoy to Great Britain, who had not been granted an audience by Lord Curzon.

The Russian envoy was asked about Russia's willingness to acknowledge Russia's pre-war debt to Britain, and Macdonald received a favorable reply. But the Russians want recognition first and debt negotiations afterward, while some of the right wing Labor leaders are anxious to get the debts admitted before O'Grady is sent to Moscow.

The question of whether Macdonald, as Premier, would send a telegram of condolence on Lenine's death also was discussed. A wire to the Council of Commissars was sent yesterday by the General Council Trades Union Congress, expressing "deepest sympathy with the Russian people in their bereavement."

Commission to Make Inquiry.

With a view to ascertaining with whom the resumption of relations is to be negotiated, Macdonald, according to the Daily Express, will send a commission of inquiry to Moscow.

It is believed everywhere that the re-establishment of Russo-British relations is regarded by the ministry as a paramount importance and that the Government will take the necessary steps as speedily as possible. The Premier's desire to procure the admission of Russia and Germany in the League of Nations is said to influence the situation considerably. The Westminster Gazette, in this connection, says Mr. Macdonald is likely to propose an international conference for the revion of the Versailles Treaty and a reduction of the reparation claims.

The rumor also is current that H. W. Massingham, former editor of the Liberal weekly, Nation, now writing for the labor weekly, New Statesman, has been offered the post of Ambassador to Germany, to take effect upon the resignation of Lord Debernon. Massingham declined to comment.

Revolution in Working Hours.

But the real sensation of the day was the appearance of Ramsey Macdonald at his desk in the Foreign Office at 10 o'clock sharp. This may not sound astonishing, but constitutes a revolution in Whitehall's working hours, as no Foreign Minister ever has turned up for work before 11.

Macdonald's example was followed by other new Ministers and Miss Margaret Bondfield, who as parliamentary secretary in the Ministry of Labor, has ministerial rank, appeared in her office at 9:45. She wore a neat brown knitted frock coat and flat-heeled shoes and walked by herself to lunch, as was duly chronicled in the evening papers.

These unheard of hours caused gloom among the throngs of permanent officials who never have had to come to their offices before 11, and comparisons were drawn between Macdonald and Mussolini, and Gen. Primo Del Rivera, both of which Dictators, inaugurated regimes by going to work early and making others do the same. Macdonald has ordered all Foreign Office personages to be on the job by 10, even though highest permanent officials. None of these latter has been in the habit of appearing before 11:30.

Macdonald made it clear today to callers that writing notes to France will be discontinued. Future negotiations, he said, will be made through ambassadors, or, when necessary, by personal interviews between chiefs of state.

GLASGOW, Ky., Jan. 25.—With William Chambers, negro, convicted of the murder of Charles Bybee, of Bowling Green, sentenced to death and the date for his electrocution set for March 7, an apparent emergency which resulted in the hasty concentration here of 100 Kentucky national guardsmen has passed. Shortly after the troops arrived yesterday, the negro confessed to having slain Bybee, claiming he believed he was shooting an enemy. The jury returned a guilty verdict after deliberating 16 minutes. Last night sentence was pronounced and Chambers was started to Eddyville State Prison, where electrocutions are held under guard.

The complete report of the autopsy is given and principal organs are pictured, incidentally, showing the bullet fired by Fanny Kaplan in 1918, which lodged in the left shoulder blade. There are no indications that the bullet had anything to do with the Premier's death, which, it is established, was caused by arterio sclerosis.

A temporary wooden mausoleum is being constructed in Red Square. It will be electrically lighted, permitting a view of the casket after the funeral and interment Sunday.

TAXES PAID BY U. R. IN 1923 FIGURED AT $2,282,076

Voluntary Statement Presented by Treasurer for the Receiver.

When W. R. Moynihan, treasurer for the receiver of the United Railways Co., entered city hall today with a check for $70,895.10, representing the mill tax on passengers carried during the last quarter of 1923, he also brought a voluntary statement of taxes paid by the United Railways during 1923, totaling $2,282,076.18.

These taxes, Moynihan said, were divided as follows: Federal, $103,066.41; State, $87,851.74; St Louis County, $142,217.75; City of St. Louis and school taxes, $890,379.85; municipal franchise tax, $351,836.84; mill tax paid to city, $280,723.61; maintenance and repair of paving in company tracks, declared an indirect tax to the city, $426,235.01.

The $70,895.10 check delivered to License Collector Chapman covered the mill tax for the last three months of 1923. During that quarter the United Railways carried 70,895,101 passengers.

INTERNATIONAL RADIO STATION

Argentine Plant Operated by Four Companies.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 25.—President de Alvert today opened the international high-power radio station at Montegrande, operated jointly by American, British, French and German radio companies.

Messages of greetings were sent to President Coolidge, King George, President Millerand and President Ebert, and a general message was broadcast to the heads of all the other nations of the world.

Tries to Rob Passengers.

By the Associated Press.

HAMMOND, La., Jan. 25.—Under the influence of cigarettes containing narcotics purchased in New Orleans before leaving there on top of a New Orleans-Chicago train last night, Raymond Baddy, 22, of San Antonio, Tex., attempted to hold up passengers near Ponchatoula, La. Baddy drew a revolver on the Pullman conductor and ordered him to throw up his hands. The conductor slammed a door in his face. Baddy then went to the dining car, and was tying a handkerchief over his face when he was arrested.

Coolidge Signs His First Bill.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—President Coolidge today signed the first general legislative bill he has acted upon since becoming President—a measure to give the mail franking privilege to Mrs. Florence Kling Harding. He also signed a bill authorizing payment of $100 each to the Chippewa Indians of Minnesota for relief.

COMMITTEE PLANS TO ACT THURSDAY ON SMOKE BILL

Decision as to Report on Abatement Measure Expected to Be Reached.

Definite action on the smoke-abatement bill pending in the Board of Aldermen is expected to be taken by the aldermanic Committee on Public Safety at a meeting next Thursday afternoon, the committee announced after a meeting on the bill yesterday.

By "definite action" it is understood a decision as to what report to make on the bill is meant. The committee can report to the board in favor of passage or defeat of the bill, or without recommendation.

It was decided to have copies of proposed amendments to the bill prepared for each member of the committee, so that they may be studied and voted on next Thursday. Amendments were offered, as has been told, by representatives of stationary engineers' and firemen's unions, who opposed a proposed clause for punishment of operators who fail to prevent smoke, and by the Chamber of Commerce Committee on Smoke Regulation, which has been backing the bill.

The bill was introduced last June.

GUARDSMAN CONVICTED OF LYNCHING ALABAMA MINER

Former Sergeant Sentenced to 18 Years' Imprisonment as Aftermath of Strike Trouble.

By the Associated Press.

HAMILTON, Ala., Jan. 25.—Robert J. Lancaster today was found guilty of second degree murder and sentenced to serve 18 years in the State Penitentiary. With seven other members of M Company, Alabama National Guard, he was charged with lynching William Baird, a miner, during the Alabama coal strike in 1921, while the command was on duty at Townley, Ala.

Lancaster was a Sergeant of his company and was alleged by the State to have been the leader of a crowd of soldiers that took Baird from jail on Jan. 13, 1921, and shot him to death a short distance from Jasper. Baird was in prison on a charge of having slain Private Morris, a member of M Company, who previously had shot and killed the Rev. J. C. Northcutt, Baird's father-in-law, while the guardsman was on-patrol duty in the neighborhood of the Northcutt home.

KLAN HIRED S. GLENN YOUNG BY DAY FOR LIQUOR RAIDS

Williamson County (Ill.) Cyclops Says Most of Expenses Was Paid by Miners.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., Jan. 25.—The Ku Klux Klan liquor raids in Williamson County have cost $5000 and theer is need for $2000 fore to continue the work, according to Sam Sterns, chairman of the Williamson County Board of Supervisors and exalted cyclops of the klan in this county, in a speech before the Marion Rotary Club.

Sterns told the club that, when both county and State officials refused to act to clean up the county, others went to Washington and there obtained help and also came into contact with S. Gleen Young, whom they hired upon the basis of "so much per day and expenses."

The money already spent has been put up by the klansmen, a majority of whom are evidently coal miners, as Sterns has said that those who financed the movement were not financially able to do it and were only working two and three days a week.

COUE FINDS MISSOURI FOLKS MUST BE SHOWN

Refuses to Treat Palsied Man at Lecture—One Stage Demonstration Fails.

M. Coue is such a nice little grandpapa of a man. So earnest. So patient. So simple. Ah, Monsieurs and Madames, were you not impressed by the lectures of M. Coue at the Odeon yesterday? All of you who listened to M. Coue?

Mark how this amazing M. Coue addressed you. In broken English which was of great pain to hear, was it not? No other lecturer who has charged $2.10 a seat pronounced words as did M. Coue. Who else but M. Coue could have made "paradoxical" a word of merely two syllables?

Yet you listened with close attention. And heard what? Oh, daring M. Coue! His methods were indeed of a strangeness. He but repeated a simple little lesson in psychology. Namely, that as you think, so you become, more or less.

Not Lavish in Promises.

Remember that M. Coue did not assert one could cure his illness by saying, "Day by day in every way I'm getting better and better." Neither in the afternoon, when he lectured to 200, nor at night, when he addressed 500, did he promise that. He merely stated that in cases where it was possible to help oneself by auto-suggestion, then one would be helped by auto-suggestion. Where it was not possible —non-non-non—it would do no good.

Disciples of M. Coue in the audiences were most charmed. They sprang to defense of the master when he called for questions and cried, "I have read your book, Mr. Coue," or "I have your piece of string with 20 knots and it has helped me, indeed it has, Mr. Coue."

"In case you theenk I exaggerate," said M. Coue himself, "I shall read you some let-ters which I haf received."

Everybody Gasped.

But oh, these Americans. They have enormous desire to be shown. One must demonstrate before their very eyes.

So, twice, once in the afternoon and once at night, M. Coue called for volunteers to come to the stage.

"I shall show how my meth-od works," he announced.

Were they not conclusive, these demonstrations of M. Coue? Those present leaned forward in their seats to watch.

First M. Coue picked out a young woman and told her to clasp hands in front, straight out, and grip them tight. This she did and M. Coue stood to one side:

"I will open my hands," M. Coue addressed her," "But I cannot. I cannot. I cannot. I cannot-not-not-not-not-not-not," his voice trailed off in a tut-tut-tut-ering that was most weird.

The young woman did not open her hands.

Then M. Coue said:

"Now think," I can open my hands. I can. I can.'"

And lo, the woman opened her hands, and nearly everybody gasped.

One Time It Did Not Work.

"See!" exclaimed M. Coue. "That was auto-suggestion. As long as she was thinking she could not open her hands she could not. When she thought 'I can' she could."

Next M. Coue put a ring of keys between the thumb and forefinger of another woman.

"Press tight," he ordered, "and theenk,' I cannot open my fingers, I cannot, I cannot, I cannot.'"

To everybody's surprise the subject dropped the keys.

Was auto-suggestion a failure?

"Non—non—non—," explained M. Coue, his goatee twitching. "She dropped the keys because she did not theenk what I told her to theenk. She was theenking, 'I can,' and she did."

Would Not Treat Palsied Man.

These suspicious Missourians! Are they not quaint? They suspected M. Coue of trickery in the afternoon lecture when he refused to treat a palsied man who came to the stage.

"I am not a healer," expostulated the Prophet of Nancy. "I do not perform miracles. I am a teacher. I teach those to cure themselfs."

He had explained his theory over and over again, had he not? See! He would explain again.

"By conscious auto-sugchestion," said M. Coue. "We impress upon the un-congchious mind, 'I am getting bedther and bedther.' Day by day in every way I am getting bedther and bedther."

Objects to Change in Formula.

A woman arose in the audience. Women predominated in both afternoon and evening gatherings.

"Monsieur Coue," she asked, "I have your book and I make my affirmations daily. But I wonder if it isn't all right to say 'Day by day in every way I am doing better and better' instead of using your exact formula?"

M. Coue was greatly agitated. Non-non-non; one must not vary his formula. Mon dieu! It might not work, it might not work. Why should one try anything different? Had he not worked for 20 years putting together the exact words the sub-conscious mind needed?

Dies From Blow on Head.

HARRISBURG, Ill., Jan. 25.—Bert Jones of Eldorado, who was struck on the head with a hammer Sunday in an altercation with John Rose, a journeyman blacksmith, died today. Rose is in the county jail here.

JURY ASKED TO DECIDE WHEN IS HORSE A PLUG

Trade in 1920 Between John Gates Williams and Charles Van Studdiford Basis of Suit.

John Gates Williams is convinced a horse he bought in 1920 for his fiancee was nothing more than a "plug."

Charles Van Studdiford, who selected the horse and purchased it for Williams, thought it was the "very thing."

On this divergence of judgment in horse flesh Williams and Van Studdiford appeared today before a jury in Circuit Judge Grimm's court, the former to press his suit for $1331 and the latter to resist payment.

Van Studdiford, who has long been known by his associates as a good judge of horses, told how he came to acquire the horse for Williams, and how purchaser and agent disagreed, which led to the suit to recover $1025, the purchase price, and $306, stable charges.

"Lot of Money for a Horse."

Williams wanted a horse, Van Studdiford related in a deposition, and confided that it was for his fiancee. "Tell me who she is and I'll know what kind to get," said the horseman. It appeared Williams let it be known he was going to marry Miss Mary Randolph Gordon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindell Gordon of 1 Lenox place. When Van Studdiford reported he could get just the right animal for $1025, Williams remarked, "That's a lot of money for a horse," but Van Studdiford replied, "It's a damn fine horse."

Williams, testifying, said he gave Van Studdiford a check for $1025 and a chestnut mare was delivered to the St. Louis Country Club stables for him June 26, 1920, having been sent from Mexico, Mo. Williams "looked the purchased horse in the withers" and concluded that the withers, which were between the shoulders, were too wide. Three weeks later he returned the nag to Van Studdiford, to be sold, but never got his money back, he declared. The $306, he said, was advanced to Van Studdiford afterwards to pay for the horse's keep.

The question of Van Studdiford's willingness to pay was brought up in testimony, for Williams, of two employes of the trust department of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., with which Williams is connected. They had overheard the sportsman tell Williams that he would pay back the money after collecting certain commissions, they said.

Van Studdiford on Stand.

Van Studdiford took the stand. He was no horse trader, he made haste to explain, but an insurance man. Williams didn't buy the horse on approval, but outright, said he. When Williams complained about the size of the animal he replied that that would make no difference after a saddle was adjusted. However, the purchaser decided to trade the mare for a "hunter"—"a horse that would jump fences and hedges"—the witness averred, but when opportunity offered for such a trade Williams declined and ordeerd an outright sale. Van Studdiford said he couldn't recall conversations about paying back any money, and that, indeed, he owed Williams nothing.

On cross examination Williams was asked whether he had showed the horse to the former Mrs. Julius S. Walsh at the Country Club, remarking that it was a fine one. He didn't recall having said that, but believed he might have asked, "How do you like the plug?" A deposition by Mrs. Walsh was introduced, in which she recalled having told Williams his purchase was "a very nice horse," and entirely suitable for a woman to ride.

Counsel for plaintiff were not allowed to bring out, on cross examination of Van Studdiford, how much Van Studdiford had paid to acquire the horse. Counsel told the reporter that the horse eventually was sold to meet stable charges.

Williams lives at Clayton and Price roads, St. Louis County. He is a son of Mrs. Eugene Williams of 9 Washington terrace. Van Studdiford resides at the Washington Hotel.

GEORGIA WOMAN SENTENCED TO BE HANGED FOR MURDER

Convicted of Killing Mother-in-Law, and Husband Also Will Be Tried.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 25.—Mrs. Ida Hughes, found guilty by a jury last night of the murder of her aged mother-in-law, Mrs. M. C. Hughes, is the fifth woman in the history of the State to be condemned to die by hanging. The jury in returning a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree without recommendation for mercy automatically fixed the penalty at hanging. The date of execution today was fixed for March 14.

Should the sentence be carried out, Mrs. Hughes would be the third woman hanged in the annals of the State.

She was charged with shooting her mother-in-law to death last month. The trial of Frank Hughes, indicted jointly with his wife, will begin immediately.

Woman Held Up in Her Store.

Mrs. Becky Hortwitz, who has a dry goods store at 2931 Olive street, was held up in her store at noon today by an armed negro, who escaped with $215, a diamond ring and pearl necklace.

Passion Players Exhibit of Interest and Merit

Display Consists of Wood Carving and Sculpture of Former Years and Work of Today Carried on before Spectators.

Honest toil is holy service; faithful work is praise and prayer;
Turn the stone, and thou shalt find Me; cleave the wood, and I am there.

Workers, not mere posers, are these Oberammergau folk, whose exposition of the crafts and products of their world-famous Bavarian village is now in progress at the Coliseum.

Their work of years past, largely in wood carving and sculpture, and their work of today, which they carry on so far as the very frequent interruptions by spectators will permit, form an exhibition of merit and interest, independent of the renown which these same villagers have gained in another work of art—the Passion Play given every 10 years as a religious observance.

Work of Andreas Lang Sr.

Rugged Andreas Lang Sr., in blue smock and mountaineer's laced boots, is making two figures in wood. One is St. Peter, seated and haloed as is the famous bronze figure in St. Peter's at Rome. This elder Lang is the Peter of the Passion Play, but he is making this figure like the Roman model, rather than in his own image. The other and larger statue which he has begun is that of David, at the moment when he has cut off Goliath's head and is resting upon the giant's sword. Both are in light wood, with occasional brown graining.

Near the elder Lang's bench, and seen first by most of the spectators on entering at the north end of the building, are several carvers, in Tyrolean garb, with bare knees and wearing narrow green vests, held together by embroidered braces. They use various woods, from the light pine to the dark walnut. Maple, pear, birch, oak and linden form most of their raw material.

Wood carving, as those saw who watched these workers last night is a work of infinite patience. Much of it is laying down one tool and picking up another, for the carver is as particular in his use of various instruments as the golfer is with his sticks, and he changes them oftener. A gentle blowing away of chips is kept up by these workers, who are among the younger actors in the Passion Play.

Bas Relief of Last Supper.

Red-bearded Guido Mayr, whose expressive face has brought success in his role of Judas, has almost finished a bas relief of "The Last Supper," after the da Vinci pattern, but he is still polishing the background. Mayr's carved figures are among the best shown. The faces of the Savior and the Twelve are clear cut, and the larger figures show grace of drapery and distinctness of muscle and veins.

Andreas Lang Sr. and Mayr were beset, as they worked, by inquiries and expressions of interest from spectators—German-speaking spectators—for Mayr speaks hardly any English, and the other only a little. The two are readily recognized as the Peter and the Judas of the play, and one woman, who asked the elder Lang what his role was, was rebuked by a woman companion, who said, "Can't you see by looking at him that he must be St. Peter?"

Anton Lang, the Christus of three Passion Plays, is not a wood worker, but a potter, and his inclosure, next to Mayr's, is filled with the bright-hued specimens of his art. Beside household ceramics, and such ornamental pieces as candle holders, there are glazed clay figures of the Pieta—the Virgin with her Son's body after the crucifixion—and other sacred scenes.

Lang Questioned Much.

Lang, almost alone of the visitors, does not wear workshop garb, and does not attempt to work at his craft in the presence of spectators. This is because it was found, in the New York exhibition, that so many persons wished to speak to him that he could get nothing done. He was kept in conversation almost constantly last evening. He speaks English well. For many who did not converse with him, his calm and dignified face formed an absorbing object of study.

Tall and black-bearded Anton Haser, who has somewhat the look of a grand opera Mephisto, is the maker of some of the works of sculpture shown. In the play, he is the Adam of the Old Testament prologue, and later is the Roman Centurion.

Surrounding the arena is the exhibition of the finished product of the Oberammergau workshops, several thousand specimens, large and small. At the south end of the arena stands a large panorama of the village of Oberammergau, the Kofel peak surmounted by an illuminated cross, and the dwellings all with roofs of red, bright blue or light brown. Behind this large canvas, motion and still pictures of Oberammergau life are shown hourly. There are, it should be remembered, no moving pictures of the Passion Play proper—the players rejected tempting offers for filming of the play in 1922, on the ground that they would thus be commercializing an event which owes its world-appeal to its sincerity and freedom from mercenary features.

Replica of Town Museum.

A replica of the town museum, which has a quaint and pious motto over the door, contains objects, some of them no more than crude toys, which illustrate the beginnings of the wood worker's art in Oberammergau. Some of the articles shown in the museum are centuries old.

Two recesses are given to art carvings of a secular character, the work of a long list of artificers, some of whom are here, the greater part being still in the village. The work of 109 persons in all is shown, while 31 are in the touring party. The secular subjects are mostly the human and animal figures of mountain life, the shepherd, the flute player and his companion with a pretentious horn; the Four Seasons, two male and two female figures by Andreas Lang Jr., with coloring; grotesque chessmen, the kings bearded kobolds and the knights cadaverous mounted forms; candlesticks and tall lamp stands in dark woods.

The sacred carvings shown on both sides of the arena include many crucifixes and figures of the Passion, both large and small, and figures of the Madonna and child. Observation of the work in progress shows that the smaller figures of Christ on the cross are carved from one piece, except for the arms, which are made separately and glued on. Two elaborate cribs, of the kind displayed in many churches, particularly the German Catholic churches, at Christmas time, are conspicuous.

Glue, but No Putty Used.

While the glue pot is in occasional use, no putty was visible, either on the work bench or in the finished product. The Oberammergau art is honest, and in a few cases where the wood has warped or cracked, there is no hiding of the fact.

There are many dolls and doll houses. Some of the latter are furnished with comical completeness. One of the oddest of the toy groups shows a moving van hauling away a villager's belongings, with pictures strapped on behind the wagon, and tiny rolls representing the family bedding, while the articles of furniture were roped on the conveyance. Marionettes form a separate exhibit.

A dry goods section represents the homespun and textile products of the whole Bavarian Tyrol, rather than of Oberammergau alone. It bears the name of a Munich store.

Last night's attendance was of encouraging size, it being the experience in other cities that the number of spectators grows daily. The exposition is open from 1:30 to 4:30 each afternoon, and from 7:30 to 10:30 each night, through next Wednesday. Admission is 50 cents, children 25 cents.

All Objects Displayed for Sale.

All the objects displayed are for sale, but not for immediate delivery unless there are duplicates in stock. There are special counters for purchasers, and those viewing the exhibits are not importuned to buy. The success of the American tour will depend on the number of articles sold, and the orders received for future work. The Oberammergau folk, as has been explained, are asking not charity, but work for themselves and their fellow villagers which will keep them together through present economic conditions, and which will thus insure the production of the Passion Play in 1930. The fall in the value of the mark, after prices of admission, board and lodging had been announced to the world, made the 1922 Passion Play a financial disaster.

What Elihu Root Advises

"I have come to the distinct conclusion that by far the best and, indeed, almost the only practical way of guarding against the possible ruinous loss of a forced sale of securities for the purpose of paying the various estate and inheritance taxes which are being imposed nowadays, both by the national and states governments, is by means of which for a moderate annual payment will insure the sum necessary to pay such taxes without the sacrifice of the securities.

MRS. GERRY PAYS $400,000 FOR PEAR

Wife of Rhode Island Senator Buys Necklace From Russian Prince.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The necklace of black pearls, said to be the most nearly perfect of its kind existing, which Prince Felix Yousoupoff brought here from Russia in November, is now the property of Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, wife of the United States Senator from Rhode Island.

The sale of the necklace became known yesterday. It is said the price was about $400,000. The gems are part of a collection supposed to include some of the Russian crown jewels.

Upon the Prince's arrival customs officials summoned experts to determine the value of the collection. Estimates ranged from $1,000,000 up. Some of the jewels are said still to be in the custody of the Government.

It has not been established whether the Prince is owner of the jewels or an agent for the owner.

When the sale of two Rembrandts by the Prince to Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia became known recently, the soviet Government announced it would contest the sale on the ground that the paintings, as former possessions of the Czarist Government, now belonged to the soviets. Possibly the sale of the necklace will be viewed in the same light.

Mrs. Gerry is said to have worn the necklace at a recent social function here, when it excited much admiration. She formerly was Miss Mathilde Townsend, of this city.

90 DAYS IN JAIL AND FINE OF $425 UNDER DRY LAW

Contractor of Crawford County, Ill., Pleads Guilty to Possession and Sale.

Marion Tharp of Robinson, Ill., a contractor, pleaded guilty of possession and sale of intoxicating liquor before Federal Judge English at East St. Louis today and was sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $425.

He was one of 23 persons arrested recently in Federal dry raids in Crawford and Lawrence counties, and his bond, aggregating $35,000, on six counts, was said to be one of the largest ever fixed in a liquor law case.

Late yesterday Tharp pleaded not guilty, but his plea was changed today. His punishment was fixed on two counts, and the others were dismissed. Tharp is the fifth defendant to plead guilty in connection with the raids, and others are under bond of $5000 each awaiting trial.

IN SPECIAL CAR TO PRISON

"Millionaire Bootlegger" and Associates Go to Atlanta.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 25.—George Remus, attorney, alleged "millionaire bootlegger of the Middle West" and 11 associates, came here today to the Federal penitentiary from Cincinnati to begin serving sentences which were imposed after conviction on charges of conspiring to violate the national prohibition enforcement act. They traveled in a special car attached to a Southern Railway passenger train.

Remus is under a sentence of two years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000. The others, Harry Brown, John Gerhum, Charles Wishman and George Later, 18 months in prison, and fines of $5000 each; Clarence (Cap) Bell, Ernest (Buck) Brady, George Gillenbeck and George King, 15 months sentence and fines of $1000 each; Harry Gardewing and Harry Boyd, sentence of one year and one day and fines of $1000 each; Elmer Roth, 15 months sentence and a fine of $5000.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflamation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Pimply? Well, Don't Be

People Notice It. Drive Them Off With Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

"They Can't Say I'm Lazy," Lloyd George Says in Defense of Golf

Former Premier Explains Famous Game at Cannes Preceding Briand's Fall.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Former Premier Lloyd George has swung his oratorical mashie in support of the royal and ancient game in a challenge round against the Paris newspaper, Midi.

The paper charged British members of the Paris Reparation Experts' Committee neglected their work for the game and revived the story of the famous round between Lloyd George and the then French Premier, Briand, at the Cannes conference, which always jokingly has been held responsible for Briand's downfall when he returned to Paris.

"No English experts ever put off work for golf," Lloyd George said emphatically in an interview here. "It is pure invention, sprung perhaps from petulance.

"Much has been said of my game with Briand at Cannes during the peace conference there. Some have made or tried to make political capital out of it.

"We had a whole day to wait for the report of the experts. What were we to do during the day? Either lounge about and waste time in the Casino or go for a walk. Exercise was necessary. I asked Briand to come up to the golf course and there we played or tried to play a round.

"There was no waste of time. No one ever charged me with being a lazy man. There have been plenty of charges against me, as everyone knows, but they never could say I was lazy. If Briand and I had lounged in the Casino all day there would have been no capital made out of it. But the French press got ill-tempered.

"Besides, you get to know more of the character of a man in a round of golf than you get to know in six months with only political experiences of him.

"During the time I was Prime Minister there were eight Prime Ministers of France. No Prime Minister could last working as the French Prime Ministers do seven days a week without exercise."

GIRL, 5, FATALLY BURNED

Clothing of Josephine Cantoni Caught Fire at Stove.

Josephine Cantoni, 5 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cantoni, 1701 Cooper street, died at Childrens' Hospital at 3 p. m. yesterday from burns suffered earlier in the day, when her clothing caught fire from a coal stove in the home.

Mrs. Cantoni was in the basement laundry at the time and heard the child scream. In tearing off the burning clothing the mother was burned on the hands and arms and was taken to Barnes Hospital.

TRUST CO. AT KANSAS CITY TAKEN OVER BY MILLSPAUGH

Guaranty Concern, Farm Loan Business, Placed in Hands of State Banking Department.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 25.—The State Banking Department yesterday took charge of the Guaranty Trust Co. of Kansas City, a farm-loan concern, with a capital of $750,000.

The action followed a meeting of the board of directors of the company at which it was voted to ask the department to assume charge.

Officers of the company attributed the concern's difficulties to a shortage of working capital, caused in part by an accumulation of past due interest and commission notes. It was said the capital was "only frozen," and the officers expressed the belief that the embarrassment was only temporary.

Commissioner Millspaugh issued a statement in which he said it was hoped there would be no loss to creditors.

The Guaranty Trust Co. is not a bank, in that it is not an institution of deposit. It is an enlargement of the Maxwell Investment Co., a pioneer farm-loan company here. Although trust and bond departments were opened in 1919, the farm-loan business remained the firm's principal activity.

40 SAVED FROM HOTEL FIRE

Man Killed in Jump From Burning Syracuse Building.

By the Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Fire which swept through the Manhattan Hotel in the center of the city today caused at least one death, injuries to a score and property damage estimated at $100,000. Two persons were missing today. Lou Chatterton, 67 years old, a roomer at the hotel, leaped to death from the third floor.

Most of the 40 guests leaped to life nets or were carried down ladders by firemen.

GREY WANTS GERMANY IN LEAGUE OF NATIONS

He Would Use British Navy to Enforce Covenant Against Nation Breaking It.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Viscount Grey of Fallodon, in a speech here yesterday, declared that Europe was going quite certainly in the direction of a future war and drifting back into the old race of armaments. He appealed for the admission of Germany into the League of Nations as a means of procuring for France the security she so much desires.

"The lesson of the past is that people do not make themselves secure by building great armaments," he said. "France is trying now to get security by relying on her armaments and arming other nations, which she hopes will stand by her, relying on a policy of separate force, which is an old policy and which has always failed.

"The best I can see is that Germany he got to sign the covenant of the league, as well as France and ourselves. Then this country might agree that if France and Germany broke the covenant we would do nothing for either of them, but that if one broke the covenant and the other stood by it, we would take action, not for the sake of supporting one country against another, but for the sake of supporting the covenant and the country that stood by the covenant.

"In that way you will get security, which is equal to every nation signing the covenant. That is the only way you can get real security.

"Arm our navy and our air force and let their first use be to protect ourselves if aggressively attacked. But if for any other purposes I would like to see them used to uphold the covenant—and for no other purpose."

Viscount Grey is the former Sir Edward Grey, who was British Foreign Secretary when the World War began.

Two Belgian Aviators Killed.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 25.—A Belgian military airplane crashed yesterday into a swamp near Hasselt, from an altitude of 2000 feet, burying itself in the mud and water. It required nine hours of hard work to extricate the bodies of the two aviators, who had been killed instantly. The cause of the accident has not been determined.

SLAYER, ADJUDGED INSANE, TO BE PUT IN SANITARIUM

Verdict in Case of Hammie Shane Based on Alienist's Testimony of Derangement.

Hammie Shane, 28 years old, who shot and killed Mrs. Helen Alaway, after her husband, Seid Alaway, had been slain, will be committed to the city sanitarium, a jury, which tried him on a charge of murder, having found that he was insane at the time of the killing and still in that condition.

Shane's plea of self-defense was ignored and the jury considered only the testimony of an alienist that Shane, as the result of epilepsy, was mentally deranged. A motion asking that Shane be discharged on the ground that his sanity at the present time was not an issue was overruled.

The Alaways were shot and killed in an apartment over their soft drink saloon, 1929 Hickory street, June 16, last. Shane, a cousin of Alaway, who occupied a back room, separated from the Alaway room by a sliding door, testified that he was awakened by shots. Mrs. Alaway ran into his room, he said, and tried to shoot him, but that he turned the weapon upon her and pulled the trigger. She fell dead.

It was brought out by the defense that Shane had been discharged from the army because he was an epileptic, and because of the testimony of the alienist the Court included among his instructions one referring to insanity.

ALTON PHYSICIAN ACQUITTED OF EXCESSIVE FEE CHARGE

Dr. L. H. Hayes Maintained His Services to War Veterans Included Medical Attention.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 25.—Dr. L. H. Hayes of Alton, who was indicted by a Federal grand jury last fall on charges of exacting excessive fees from disabled war veterans while drawing a salary as an examiner for the United States Public Health Service, was found not guilty by a jury here last night after an hour's deliberation.

The defendant maintained that his fees were legal as they included medical attention as well as drafting compensation papers.

$150 IN DAY BY "DOPE" SALES

Alexander Tost, a negro, arrested yesterday charged with selling narcotics on the street at Fourteenth and Market streets, kept an account of his sales of "dope," narcotic inspectors who arrested him found, and his book showed he had taken in from sales as high as $150 in a day. A quantity of morphine and cocaine, put up in small packages for sale at 50 cents each, was also found in his possession.

Tost was bound over to await the action of the Federal grand jury and his bond was fixed at $2500, in default of which he went to jail. The negro is thought to have been supplying other peddlers with their stocks.

CLERK IN 1915, NOW AUSTRIA'S RICHEST MAN

Bosel, Who Made Millions in Poverty-Stricken Country, to Finance Vienna University.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Jan. 6.—Commonly reputed to be the richest man in Austria, Samuel Bosel, as was told recently, has offered to finance the University of Vienna until conditions permit it to balance its affairs. It is estimated the initial phases of his undertaking will amount to $2,000,000 a year, yet up to 1915 Bosel was selling haberdashery as a clerk in a small shop on the Quay.

His rise illustrates the paradoxical conditions that have prevailed in this country since the war. On the one hand has been a bankrupt government, the mass of the people in want up to recent months, and aid of every kind pouring in from other lands. On the other there have been accumulated fortunes vast even in America and Bosel is said to lead them.

In 1915 he got into the war supply contract game and when the armistice came he was said to be the king of army contractors, holding a monopoly in certain branches of supplies. After the war he entered finance and is now one of Austria's greatest bankers.

Recently he bought the parked triangle adjoining the Balpaitz, or Foreign Office, which visitors will recall as affording the much painted view of the famous Minoreten church. The price he paid the Government is not stated but it is probably the most valuable plot in the city. On it he will build a magnificent residence and has also offered to build for the Government a hall of archives.

His offer to finance the university, however, has caused some political agitation, for Bosel is a Jew, and the reactionary press pretends to see in it a plan to defeat the anti-Jew agitation on the part of the Christian student body for the institution of the limitation of Jewish attendance and faculty members.

Police Seek Help for Family.

Police today appealed for aid for Hiram Sapp, 50 years old, his wife and five young children who were found at 2237 Montgomery street in need of food, fuel and clothing. Sapp, they report, has been unable to find work and faces eviction because of inability to pay rent.

MAN, SOUGHT NEARLY 5 YEARS BY RELATIVES, FOUND HERE

"James Ryan," 23, Admits He Is Robert Dyer of Massillon, Ohio.

"James Ryan," 23 years old, who rooms at 4266 Castleman avenue, admitted last night that he is Robert Dyer of Massillon, O., who has been sought for almost five years, since he disappeared from his home in August, 1919.

The first clew to his whereabouts came last Saturday when his mother received a letter from her son with the return address "Robert Dyer, care of James Ryan," and the St. Louis address. She communicated with St. Louis police who questioned "Ryan."

Dyer apparently is a sufferer from amnesia. His memory is vague and his speech incoherent. He recalls leaving Massillon and working at odd jobs in Chicago until nine months ago when he came to St. Louis. Since then he has been employed at the Quick Meal Stove Co. plant, 2001 South King's highway. He plans to marry in June, he said.

It is expected that relatives will endeavor to cause his return to Massillon.

DRAMATIC CROSS=EXAMINATION OF OIL MILLIONAIRE ON HIS $100,000 LOAN TO CABINET MEMBER, WHO LATER GAVE HIM A $100,000,000 LEASE

'I EXPECT HIM TO PAY BUT IF HE CAN'T DO SO I'LL GIVE HIM A JOB'

In Homely Phrase and in Seeming Ingenuous Manner E. L. Doheny Tells His Extraordinary Story to Senators in Jammed Room.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—After E. L. Doheny, the California oil millionaire and his attorney, Gavin McNab, yesterday had read their statements on Doheny's $100,000 unsecured loan to Albert B. Fall, when Fall was in the Cabinet as Secretary of the Interior, Doheny was cross-examined by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, and other Senators on the loan and subsequent leases by Fall of naval oil reserves in California to Doheny interests. It is out of these leases that Doheny has said he expected to make $100,000,000.

Senators swelled the crowd that jammed the big committee room despite the best efforts of the police to keep open passageways. When Doheny was called, room had to be made at the committee table for him and McNab, who was crowded behind his chair by the crush of spectators.

In reply to Walsh's questions Doheny said he had a note which Fall had given him for the $100,000.

"I looked for it at Los Angeles before I started East," he continued. "It was impossible for me to locate it. It may be in New York or Los Angeles. I will send it to the committee as soon as I get it.

"I was in New York when the loan was made to Senator Fall in Washington. He telephoned me he was ready to receive the loan if I was ready to make it, as I had told him previously I would do.

"I have known Senator Fall for about 30 years or more. We are old-time friends. We both worked in the same mining district in New Mexico and were bound together by the ties formed while we were living in camps under trying circumstances. I started in law at the same time Senator Fall did and practiced in the same district as he did."

The witness then related to the committee in homely terms how he had followed Fall's career, explaining his deep sympathy with him in his many business adversities and family tribulations. He said that his sympathies had been deeply aroused and that he had taken a keen personal interest in Fall's troubles. The former Secretary has several times discussed his business affairs with him, Doheny said, and told him of his hope to acquire the Harris ranch. Fall's heart seemed set on that business enterprise, continued the witness, "and I told him that if he wanted it, I would loan the money to purchase it.

"He told me of the possibility of borrowing it from Ned McLean," he went on. "When I told him I would loan him the money, he said it would relieve him greatly. I sent him the money in cash. I do not know whether I did it at his suggestion or not. I think it was in response to a conversation we had three or four weeks previous.

"The money was obtained upon check drawn upon Blair & Co., New York City, and it is my recollection that the check was cashed by them."

When members of the committee expressed surprise over what they suggested seemed loose business methods, Doheny replied that he had loaned friends more than a million dollars that way during the last five years. A loan of $100,000 by him was not more than a loan of $20 or $50 to most men, he said.

The witness insisted that the loan was not made with any expectation of influencing Fall in his official acts. He asserted that Fall was not in any position to favor him, and declared the negotiations leading up to the leases were carried on by men in his department who were not under the Secretary's direct control.

"I Will Insist Upon Him Repaying."

"It was a loan," Doheny said in reply to further question, "which I will insist upon him repaying."

"Did your company at the time have any leases on the public reserves?" asked Senator Walsh.

"Only on section 6, adjoining the naval reserve, which we obtained from the Interior Department," the witness replied. "We got the lease from Secretary Payne." (John Barton Payne, Interior Secretary in the Cabinet of President Wilson).

Senator Walsh had the witness explain the transactions which eventually led up to his company being awarded the contract for construction of storage tanks for naval oil and for improvements at Pearl Harbor and Hawaii. Doheny going into considerable detail concerning his frequent conferences on the subject with Admiral Robison, who, he said, was apprehensive that the navy would not be able to find anyone who would do the work and pay for it in the form of Government royalty oil.

He assured Admiral Robison that he could rely upon receiving at least one bid, which would be made by the Doheny company. He insisted that the contract was awarded to his company after the Navy Department had received two bids in addition to his own.

"How long were you in New Orleans on your trip here," Senator Walsh then asked.

"I arrived there on Sunday evening last, about 8 o'clock, and remained in New Orleans until about 6 o'clock the next morning when I went to one of our refineries about 20 miles from New Orleans and remained there throughout the day. I had a conference with Secretary Fall on the evening I arrived—that was last Sunday night."

"Who was present at the conference?" asked Senator Walsh.

"Senator Fall, Mr. McNab, my counsel and myself."

"Who accompanied you on the train from Los Angeles to New Orleans?"

"Mr. W. A. Hawkins, an old law partner of Secretary Fall, joined Mr. McNab and myself on the train at El Paso. I invited him to come along. I expected to have a talk with Senator Fall and wanted him along, he being an old friend of the Senator. I wanted to present to Senator Fall the statement I intended to make today. I did not want him to be surprised about it."

"It Was Agreed That I Would Come and Tell."

"When I spoke to Mr. Fall about the statement he thought it was the proper thing to do. Mr. Hawkins also was of the same opinion."

"Did you have any talk with Senator Fall with regard to the statement you intended to make which might be in conflict with statements previously made to the committee?" asked Senator Walsh.

"That may seem incredible, but we did not have any general discussion of the matter. I simply stated to him that I was going to tell all the facts and the only question was whether he should come on and tell them or whether I should. It was agreed that I would come on and tell them."

"Did you have any conference with any one else?" "No, sir."

"Did you see Col. Zevely?" "No, I did not. I was asked to see him but I did not have any business with him and I did not want to see him. Somebody said he was in town and said I might like to see him. I had no desire to mix my matters up with those in which Col. Zevely is connected."

"Who was it that suggested that you meet Mr. Zevely?" McNab interrupted the witness to say that it was Hawkins.

"I said no," continued McNab. "I explained to him that it was Mr. Doheny's intention to see Mr. Fall and ask him if he would be willing to see Mr. Doheny and myself alone. I sent for Mr. Doheny to come to my room in the St. Charles. When Mr. Doheny arrived he said he would not see Mr. Zevely but that he would like to see Mr. Fall before coming here to the committee. I called up Mr. Fall and Mr. Doheny and I went to his room, Mrs. Fall letting us in. The conversation was very brief, concerning Mr. Doheny coming here."

A question arose following Doheny's visit to Fall, who asked him why he had not told all the things to the committee.

Senator Walsh asked Doheny whether he had any conversation with any one on this subject since arriving in Washington. "No one except Mr. McNab and the men who are with me," replied Doheny.

"Have you communicated with any members of the committee?" "No, sir."

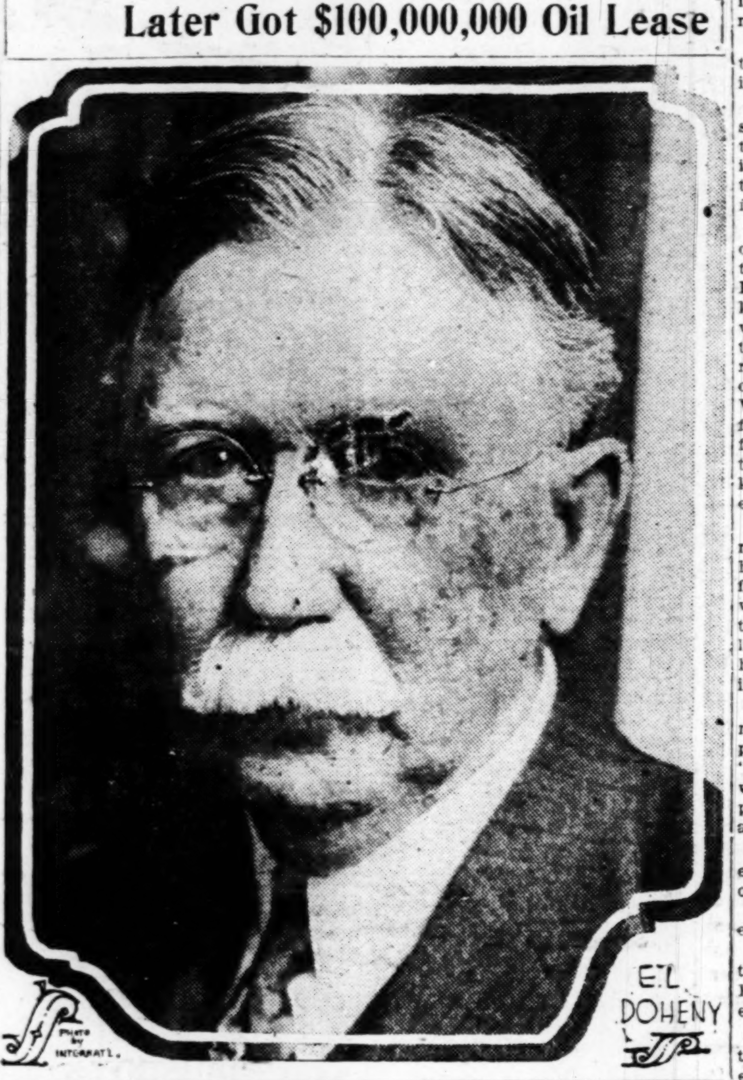
"I am informed someone handed you a note when you were coming in," pursued Senator Walsh. "Yes, sir."

"Let us se it?" Doheny drew from his pocket a collection of tiny scraps of paper and deposited them on the table.

"I think you will have some trouble in reading it," said the witness. "But I'll tell you what was in it. It said 'after you appear before the committee I would like to see you in my room.'"

Senator Walsh asked how the promissory note from Fall was transmitted to Doheny.

Lent $100,000 to Secretary Fall, Later Got $100,000,000 Oil Lease



"I placed the $100,000 in cash in a grip, which I sent from New York to Secretary Fall by my son and when he delivered it to Secretary Fall he was given a note by Mr. Fall which he brought back to me."

Replying to questions by Senator Lenroot, the witness declared that Fall himself had nothing to do with the framing of the original contract of April 25, 1922, by which the Doheny interests acquired preferential rights to lease certain naval reserve land. The negotiations, he said, were all conducted by Fall's subordinates.

Senator Lenroot asked the witness to explain why, in the statement submitted yesterday, he had only made reference to this contract which he had insisted would return him no profit, and had made no reference to the December, 1922, contract out of which he had stated he expected to make a profit of $100,000,000. It was this contract by which the Doheny interests leased the California reserves.

After the question had been repeated in various forms several times, the witness replied that it could be contended that Fall's part in the awarding of the December contract might have been influenced by the loan which had been made.

"If there is a suspicion that Senator Fall was influenced by the loan," Doheny added, "I am willing to recommend to my directors to agree to the cancellation of the lease, provided that suspicion is based upon something stronger than public opinion."

"I am asking you, in view of the possibility that you secured an advantage because of the loan," pursued Senator Lenroot, "are you not willing to turn back the lease?"

"If that will clear Mr. Fall, I will recommend that to my company. If it will clear Senator Fall of any suspicion of having been influenced by the loan I am willing to do it."

The attention of the witness then was directed to parts of the previous testimony given before the committee by Fall with regard to the raising of money for the ranch purchase in New Mexico.

"A Clean Breast of the Entire Affair."

"I told Mr. Fall," said Doheny, "to go before the committee. I also told another man, one of my attorneys, Mr. Harold Walker, I wanted him to urge upon Mr. Fall to make a clean breast of the entire affair, that was either Dec. 6 or 7. I think Walker did. I told Fall not to do anything else but make a clean breast of it."

"At the time you made this loan," asked Senator Lenroot, "had you any applications for leases pending with the Interior Department, or did you expect to have other relations with that department?"

"I had nothing else in sight at that time. We expected always to be in the field to bid on any contracts the Government had to make."

"Did it occur to you that to get a contract from the department under these circumstances other than by competitive bidding would be a matter of embarrassment?" "I never considered it that way."

"Was this obtained by competitive bidding?" There was no reply.

Doheny insisted that the December contract was a mere modification of the April contract made at the suggestion of the Navy Department.

"Secretary Denby was the one that suggested modification of our contract be made in order to enable the department to improve port facilities at Pearl Harbor," said the witness. "A letter to that effect is in evidence somewhere."

"But Secretary Denby told us he did not know anything about it," interjected Senator Walsh. Senator Lenroot suggested that the April contract "did not grant the lease of a single foot of land," while the December contract gave a lease to all the land in Naval Reserve No. 1, "without any bid."

"I do not want to assent to that," said Doheny. "You got the lease of Naval Reserve No. 1 without any competitive bidding?" replied Senator Lenroot.

"The lease was supplemental to that of April 25, which we got after bidding," insisted the witness.

At this point, as an explanation of why he wanted Doheny to call at his office yesterday, Senator Smoot recalled that he had asked the oil magnate some time ago to look over a piece of oil land in California "in which a friend of mine was interested" and give an opinion on it.

"I have never heard from you," continued Senator Smoot. "I wanted to hear from you today and that is why I wanted you to go into my office."

"We looked at the properties of that concern," replied Doheny, "and Anderson of our company made arrangements with them to buy their oil, which means he expects to get oil."

"I want it understood," Senator Smoot then said to his colleagues on the committee, "that I have never handled an inch of public ground in my life."

After asking several questions about the board of experts proposed by the witness in his statement, Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, wanted to know whether Doheny would be willing to turn the lease back to the Government if he were reimbursed for expenditures made under it.

"To turn back the lease as proposed," replied Doheny, "would be an evidence of wrongdoing. I do not want this question to be decided by public opinion on testimony before this committee, but by a board of experts."

Asked whether he had made a profit out of the lease so far, the witness replied in the negative.

"Have you loaned anybody else in the Interior Department or the Navy Department any money?" asked Senator Dill. "Or have you offered to make any loans to anyone in either department in addition to Mr. Fall?" "No sir."

"When is the Fall note due?" "It is payable on demand."

"Rate of Interest Left for Me to Fill In."

"What is the rate of interest?" "No rate of interest was agreed upon. It was left blank for me to fill in."

"Has any payment been made on the note?" "No."

"Where is the note to be paid?" "New York or Los Angeles."

"You gave him the money before he sent you the note?" "Yes sir."

Senator Lenroot interrupted to ask whether Doheny had given any instructions on the terms of the note. "No," replied the witness.

"Who made out the note?" continued Senator Lenroot. "I think it was in Mr. Fall's handwriting."

"Is this note listed among your securities in your income tax return?" asked Senator Walsh. "It is not. It does not bear any interest. I have received no income from it."

"Do you not mention in your income report any property except that which brings in income?" Pursued Senator Walsh. "I do not know. I have a personal attorney who takes care of my money matters and makes out my income tax report. He knows all money I receive and all the contracts I draw. When he says 'I want your check for $78,000, or $83,000, to pay the first installment on your income tax,' I send the check. I do not know exactly which items are covered in the report."

Senator Walsh asked whether a man by the name of L. Q. Cotter had gone into Doheny's employ from the Interior Department. The witness replied that Cotter had left the department along with the late Secretary Lane and with Lane had gone to work for the Doheny interests.

"Have you in your employ any men who served in the Interior Department under Secretary Fall?" "I don't believe we have. I think we have something like 5000 employes and I do not know them all."

"Have you a Mr. Clunn in your employ?" "He is an assistant in our office in Los Angeles."

"How long has he been in your employ?" "Five or six months."

"Was he not employed in the Interior Department under Secretary Fall?" "He was a clerk in the outer office of Secretary Fall."

Senator Walsh recalled previous testimony by Doheny and his reference to the April contract having been made by subordinates of Fall and asked the witness whether he, through Assistant Secretary Finney, had signed the lease without the knowledge of Fall. "I do not know," replied Doheny.

Senator Lenroot then took up the questioning again.

"Much Better if the Truth Had Been Told."

"What are your expectations with regard to the repayment of this loan?" he asked.

"I do not know whether Senator Fall will be able to pay it out of any profit from his properties," the witness replied. "I expect him to pay the loan. If he is not successful in his business ventures, I may employ him in my affairs in Mexico, with which he is conversant, and pay him a salary out of which he could get rid of the loan. I had that in mind at the time I made the loan."

"If Mr. Fall does not enter your employ, will you press him for the payment of the note?" "I think I will."

"Did you think this loan would reflect upon Mr. Fall?" "I did not think it would reflect upon him as much as it now will, had a statement of it been made in his previous testimony."

"What do you mean by that?" "I think it would have been much better had the truth been told rather than the statement that the loan had been obtained from Mr. McLean."

"Do you think it constitutes any reflection upon Mr. Fall?" "I do not."

"Then why did you not tell the committee about it when you were here in December? "I thought it was Mr. Fall's business. It was not pertinent to any question which had been asked of me when I was before the committee."

"Where were you," asked Senator Walsh, again taking the witness, "when Mr. Fall's statement about obtaining the loan from Mr. McLean was made to the committee?" "I was in California."

"Why did you not advise the committee?" "I thought it best to await developments."

"You appreciate that a greater amount of suspicion would attach to a transaction of this kind because of that fact?" "Sure."

"What developments were you awaiting? Why did you not come forward at that time?"

"I think I came forward promptly. It is January and the holidays have intervened. I think I have acted promptly."

A committee member suggested that Doheny had "visited the White House two or three weeks ago."

"It was two months ago," rejoined the witness. "I was there about a half an hour. Maybe it was longer than that. I had luncheon with President and Mrs. Coolidge and may have remained for half an hour in the lounging room. There were three other gentlemen present at the time. One of them was Mr. Quinn of California, lately elected head of the American Legion, and another was a gentleman from Kentucky. We were invited to take lunch."

Senator Stanfield, Republican, Oregon, asked whether Doheny had been "anxious about the use Fall would make of the money you loaned him?"

"None whatever," was the reply. "He was an old friend."

"Did he tell you," asked Senator Adams, Democrat, Colorado, "he got money from bankers in Colorado?"

"No, sir."

"I Advanced Him Out of My Plenty."

"Did he say he was hard pressed?" continued Senator Adams.

"He told me about his hopes and expectations. His statements made such an impression upon me that as an old friend I advanced him out of my plenty. I had to relieve his mind."

"Was there any discussion about repaying you the money?" put in Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada. "No, sir; he never said whether he thought he could repay it."

"Any question of security," went on Senator Pittman. "He assured me the ranch he was going to buy as security."

"Did he ever buy the ranch?" "I understand he did. I would not have taken it as security if he had offered it. We have talked about the ranch after he bought it."

"Did you expect him to go into your employ while he was Secretary of the Interior?" "No; after that. He often said he was not going to remain in the Cabinet very long."

"When he borrowed the $100,000 he had in mind that he was going to perform only a few more official acts." "I do not know. He did not know how soon he would retire; whether he would stay through his term or only a small part of it."

"Then you attach some value to the note?" "I attach $100,000 value to it."

"Where do you usually keep your notes?" "I keep most of them in Los Angeles. I keep some in New York."

"Did you make a search for this note?" "I made a hurried search," said the witness, and then, taking from his pocket a gold-bound morocco bill case, he added:

"When the note was brought to me by my son, I placed it in this book and kept it there for some time. It may be that the note is in my security vault in New York. I know I have not lost it. I will have my son and my wife assist in looking for it. As soon as I can find it, I will produce it before you. I know the note is not lost."

Asked by Senator Stanfield why the money was paid over to Fall in cash, Doheny said he saw "nothing unusual" in that. He recalled his experiences in Mexico where he said cash sometimes was hard to get and declared he was accustomed to handle large sums in that form. He said in reply to another question that he considered the cash feature of the deal "no reflection on Mr. Fall."

Senator Smoot asked whether Fall, in discussing the loan, had told of the improvements he would have to make on the ranch property. "He told me that he would have to have $100,000 to get the ranch," returned the witness. "I wanted to satisfy his ambition to own the ranch."

"He did not tell you he had sold his newspaper for $45,000?" asked Senator Smoot. "No, he did not tell me about that."

The committee inquired at some length into the organization and relationship of the various Doheny oil properties. The witness said he owned 8 or 9 per cent and his family 27 per cent of the stock of the holding company having control over the California naval oil lease. He added that he was able to control the company through a majority of the board of directors.

"Did it occur to you that there was any impropriety in loaning money to an officer of the Government with whom you had business transactions?" Senator Lenroot asked.

Office Filled With Friends Wanting Loan.

"It did not," was the reply. "If I was limited to loaning my money to persons with whom I am not associated and who are not my friends, I would not loan any. It is common for me to loan money to my old friends. My office is filled with them. I do not do it because they are entitled to it, but simply through friendship. I loan them money in sums that may surprise you as to the amount. A loan of $100,000 to Mr. Fall was not an unusual thing with me at that time. I want to insist that I did no business with him directly, and for that reason it would not put him under obligations to me."

"You told us that it was a matter where Mr. Fall did have discretion," said Senator Lenroot. "If he could exercise his discretion, do you not think the loan may have caused him to exercise it in your favor?" "That did not occur to me at that time."

At the suggestion of the witness, McNab further explained the plan for an expert commission to inquire into the lease, and Doheny supplemented him by again reading his prepared statement on the subject. Senator Walsh replied that the question was not one for experts, but involved a question of public policy which should be determined by Congress.

"Then I do not see," returned Doheny, "how a proposition fair to the Government can be passed upon."

"You would like to have experts pass upon the propriety of leasing naval oil reserves," Senator Walsh asked. "If action by Congress is necessary for the leasing of the reserve," the witness replied, "then the leases which have been made are, of course, null and void."

Senators Walsh and Adams called attention to portions of a letter written by Fall to Doheny on July 8, 1921, in which the Secretary said he would handle the oil leases "exactly as I think best, and will not consult with any officials of any bureaus in this department, but only with myself, and such consultation will be confined strictly and entirely to matters of general policy."

They insisted that, in view of this, Doheny must abandon his contention that he was not aware of Secretary Fall's control of the oil lease situation at the time he made the loan and could not sustain his argument that the leases were made by Fall's subordinates.

Just before he was excused from the witness stand, closing the hearing for the day, Doheny agreed to search again for the canceled $100,000 check and the Fall note to present them to the committee at a later date.

"Oil Men Satisfied That I Got a Lemon."

At one point in his examination Doheny said: "Just now I am resisting a demand for $400,000 by De la Huerta in Mexico."

At another the examination was interrupted to permit news photographers to take a picture of the proceedings. The committee and everybody within range immediately became rigid. Doheny moved his mustache and sat erect.

To a question, "You expect to make a hundred million dollars off that preserve?" Doheny answered: "Yes, sir; but if anybody had said to Henry Ford he was going to make two or three hundred million dollars out of his automobile idea he would have been regarded as crazy. And oil men out there were satisfied that I got a lemon."

Doheny's Offer to Return Lease and Statement on Loan to Fall

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The prepared statement read by Edward L. Doheny to the Senate committee investigating the Teapot Dome and Elk Hill oil leases yesterday, in which he told of lending $100,000 to former Secretary of Interior Fall; follows:

"I have been following the reports of the proceedings before your committee," said Doheny's statement, "and have concluded that, notwithstanding my authorization to ex-Secretary Fall early in December to state the full and complete facts in connection with a personal transaction had in 1921 between Mr. Fall and myself, Mr. Fall has been making an effort to keep my name out of the discussion for the reason that a full statement might be misunderstood.

"Whether there is a possibility of such misunderstanding or not, I wish to state to the committee and to the public the full facts, and I may say here that I regret that when I was before your committee I did not tell you what I am now telling you.

"I did not do so for the reason that such statement was not pertinent in answer to any of the questions asked me by members of the committee and to have done so would have been volunteering something in no way connected with the contracts made with the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co.

"When asked by your chairman whether Mr. Fall has profited by the contract, directly or indirectly, I answered in the negative. That answer I now reiterate.

Loaned on Fall's Note.

"I wish to inform the committee that on the 30th day of November, 1921, I loaned Albert B. Fall $100,000 on his promissory note to enable him to purchase a ranch in New Mexico. This sum was loaned to Mr. Fall by me personally. It was my own money and did not belong in whole or in part to any oil company with which I am or have been connected. In connection with this loan, there was no discussion between Mr. Fall and myself as to any contract whatever.

"This loan had no relation to any of the subsequent transactions. The transactions themselves, in the order in which they occurred, dispose of any contention that they were influenced by my making a personal loan to a lifelong friend.

"The reason for my making and Mr. Fall's accepting the loan was that we had been friends for more than 30 years. He had invested his savings for those years in his home ranch in New Mexico, which I understood was all that remained to him after the failure of mining investments in Mexico and nine years of public service in Washington, during which he could not properly attend to the management of his ranch.

"His troubles had been increased in 1918 by the death of his daughter and his son, who, up to then, had taken his place in the management of his ranch.

Time of the Loan.

"In our frequent talks, it was clear that the acquisition of a neighboring property controlling the water that flows through his home ranch was a hope of his amounting to an obsession. His failure to raise the necessary funds by realizing on his extensive and once valuable Mexican mine holdings had made him feel he was a victim of an untoward fate.

"In one of these talks I indicated to him that I would be willing to make him the loan and this seemed to relieve his mind greatly. In the autumn of 1921, he told me that the purchase had become possible by reason of the willingness of the then owners of the Harris ranch to sell, and that the time had arrived when he was ready to take advantage of my offer to make the loan.

"The lease on naval reserve No. 1 was the direct outgrowth of the contract which Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co. made with the navy as a result of competitive bids, in which that company was the lowest bidder, for the construction of certain storage facilities and the furnishing of fuel oil at Pearl Harbor, T. H., and in the absence of that contract, the lease would never have been executed.

"The Navy Department, through its representative, took up with us the question of constructing the improvements and facilities at Pearl Harbor and of paying for them with the royalty oil which the navy was then obtaining from the various leases in naval reserves Nos. 1 and 2, and of filling the tankage constructed with a large quantity of fuel oil.

Goes Into Contract Details.

"I was entirely in sympathy with the purpose of the navy, the reasons for which have perhaps been better explained to your committee by the navy's representative, Admiral Robinson, than I could hope to do. I promised Admiral Robinson that our company would at least submit a bid to perform the work under those conditions; that is, furnish the money to pay for the work of construction at the Harbor and of filling the tanks with oil and receive in return royalty oil at the posted field price to the value of the money so expended. The incidents up to the date of the contract, and the fact that the contract was let on competitive bidding, eliminate any possibility of favor to the company by either the navy department or the interior department.

"The negotiations for this contract between the navy department and the company were conducted by our local Washington attorney, who was assisted in determining the necessary calculations by our California general manager, who is president of the California company. As a result of their exchange of ideas, our California general manager decided that the terms of the proposed contract were not such as to be of any advantage to the company and that the company could not afford to take the risks attached to the performance of the contract for the conjectural profit that might result therefrom, and he so stated in a letter which he wrote to our Washington attorney.

"Neither our Washington attorney nor our California general manager nor any other officer or attorney of the company had any knowledge of the loan which I made to Mr. Fall, that being an entirely private matter, involving in no way the company's funds.

When the Bids Were Opened.

"When the bids were opened it was found that the bid of the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co. was the lowest. The Washington attorney of the company had conceived the idea of making, in accordance with the provisions of the call for bids, in addition to an unqualified bid, an alternative bid showing a considerable saving to the Government in the actual cost of the construction under the contract, and a recompense to the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co. for such waiver of profits by giving it an opportunity later on to extend its petroleum business in California through the acquisition of additional oil territory whenever the navy might be disposed to make additional contracts for the development of its reserve.

"The alternate bid was considered the most favorable by the representatives of the Government, as is shown by a letter addressed to the Washington attorney of the company under date of April 25, 1922, and signed in the absence of Mr. Fall from Washington by the acting Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Navy." THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

A Word for Gen. Wood

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR editorial Jan. 11, 1924, "When a Filipino Needs a Friend," is most unfair to Gen. Wood, as it gives the impression that a private yacht is kept for him for pleasure purposes. You are no doubt absolutely unaware of the existing conditions in the islands. You do not realise that there are over 500 islands in the group and that there are many different tribes of different religions and degrees of civilization. That the Filipinos in power are not the choice of many of these isolated tribes and as a result there are many small wars which are caused by misunderstandings.

Gen. Wood is the type of man that wants to know what is going on. He wants to investigate personally. How is he to go if he has no yacht. He cannot go into most of the small ports unless it is by a very small boat.

I had the pleasure of observing Gen. Wood for three years—two in the United States and one in the islands. I know him to be a man, through and through. I saw him take to the yacht in very dangerous seas to go down to some small island and settle their disputes. He never fails. He treats them fairly.

Why not inquire from your representative in Manila whether or not Wood ever uses the yacht for pleasure purposes? Get your information first-hand and don't believe what those Filipino politicians say. If you only knew them as well as we Americans who lived in Manila know them, you would change your stand to one absolutely supporting that wonderful man, Leonard Wood.

Cold Street Cars.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN reading letter of C. S. H. in Tuesday's Post in regard to the heating of the street cars, will say C. S. H. has the right opinion.

The cars are always cold, and I think the public should not tolerate this any longer, so let (us) the public turn to the Post-Dispatch for help and have "publicity without gloves."

MRS. C. B.

Reed and McAdoo.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE writer has noticed several interesting items lately in your paper relative to the coming Democratic State and national conventions, and from all indications our Senior United States Senator will be a candidate for the presidential election.

In your latest article as published the 2d inst., under caption, "First Brush of Reed and McAdoo in Missouri Soon," in which item Senator Reed's chances are being compared with McAdoo's. Who are the so-called McAdoo forces who are not only trying to scheme how they can defeat Reed in the State convention, but refuse places on the national delegation to the national convention to any delegate who might be elected from such points as St. Louis and Kansas City?

The writer has always been of the opinion that a few, if not all, of our delegates in State and national conventions are self-appointed. This is one reason why we should have a presidential primary similar to other states, then the candidates would get a square deal from the honest voters.

Surely the Democrats of our State are not going to overlook the Reed 1922 vote, as if Reed cannot carry the Missouri convention as well as receive the entire State vote on the first ballot at the national convention, the Democratic party surely cannot expect to carry the State in the general election, as a great many Democrats have too much pride to see their native son cast aside and shunned for an outsider.

The writer would thank you to publish this letter in your "People's Column" so he may receive the views of other Democratic voters.

W. P. MILLER.

The State Bonus Amendment.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I SHOULD like to call to your attention amendment No. 4 of the constitutional amendments to be voted upon Feb. 26, 1924. It provides for additional money for the purpose of completing the payment of the Missouri soldiers' bonus. Only about two-thirds of the boys have received their bonus. Wouldn't it be a calamity if No. 4 failed, leaving unpaid one-third of Missouri's ex-service men. It is the duty of every citizen of Missouri to see that this amendment passes. Scratch "No," vote "Yes."

STRATTON SHARTEL.

BACK TO THE CONSTITUTION!

In two speeches, one at Cleveland, the other at Akron, Senator Underwood, with singular clarity, force and courage, outlined issues—we may say the one great issue—which offer opportunity to the Democratic party to give invaluable service to the American people.

Touching the current issue now pending, tax reduction and bonus, Senator Underwood unqualifiedly advocated the one and opposed the other. But these questions may be settled before the presidential campaign. All the parties favor tax reduction in one form or another, while President Coolidge has thrown the whole weight of his administration against the bonus. The great fundamental issues which Senator Underwood defined and which call the Democratic party to high service are these three:

> Privilege, embodied in the tariff of abominations.
>
> Intolerance, exemplified by the Ku Klux Klan and prohibitive legislation.
>
> Centralization, developed through Federal usurpations and growing bureaucracy, which the Post-Dispatch designated "The march towards Federal empire."

Privilege, as embodied in excessive protective tariffs, enriches the few at the expense of the many, and adds heavily to the burdens of the people. The ruin of the wheat farmers, for whose rescue President Coolidge is recommending emergency makeshift measures, is largely due to the tariff. This sort of privilege is contrary to the principles of justice and equality embodied in the Constitution.

Referring to the Democratic platform of 1856, which denounced the Know Nothing party, the Senator demanded the reaffirmation by the party of the principles of religious freedom and the liberty and equality of all citizens of the republic, of whatever race, creed or nationality, upon which American institutions are founded. On this subject the Senator denounced "organized defiance of some of the sacred guarantees of the Constitution, such as trial by jury, protection of the home, freedom of religious worship and protection of property," and added: "The honest and effectual enforcement of law and order by the courts should and must always be the sentiment foremost in the hearts of the people, if, in the end, this republic is to endure."

Calling attention to the total of 548,506 civilians employed by the Government, and to the measures pending in Congress to add to the swollen functions of government still further activities, Senator Underwood said:

> It is indeed time to call a halt. Our Federal Government is becoming more and more centralized; our states are becoming less and less autonomous. Unless our steps are retraced or brought to a standstill, in a few years we will find ourselves menaced by a danger from within that will be more serious to the safety and preservation of our institutions than any from without.

Under the head of intolerance may be classed prohibition and its excesses, which attempt to destroy the rights and liberties guaranteed by the Constitution. Under direction of the Antisaloon League, an irresponsible organization controlling Federal and state legislatures and the activities of Federal agents in all parts of the country, wholesale raids, without warrant of law, are common. Homes are invaded. Personal rights of citizens are trampled under foot. Property is confiscated. Law is being brought into contempt. Hostility to government is being fomented. And we are rapidly becoming, from the highest officials to the humblest citizens, a nation of law breakers. Laws are being multiplied to control the lives and conduct of the people from the cradle to the grave.

Beyond all this, freedom of speech and of assemblage is impaired by restrictive laws and official interference.

If the Democratic party has ever stood for anything, it has stood for these fundamental constitutional principles of free government. It was founded upon these principles. Its usefulness has been measured by its support of these principles. It is the abandonment of them which has become a reproach to the party and has brought upon it the stigma of unprincipled politics, seeking not the welfare of the people but the spoils of office.

It is the abandonment of these fundamental principles that has wiped out the distinctions of party and has made the sham battles of political campaigns a mere scramble for power and pelf.

All of these issues are practically embodied in the one great issue of restoring the constitutional guarantees of state and individual rights and of restraining the Federal Government within its constitutional scope.

If the Democratic party has vision and courage, the overshadowing issue in the next campaign will be the revival of constitutional government in America.

Back to the Constitution!

ROBERT BROWNING BY RADIO.

Should you happen to pick up per radio some night the nondulcet strains of a section of "Sordello," remove not the headset from your ears. Perhaps the next number will be the sublime pathos of "Beautiful Evelyn Hope Is Dead," or that delightful blank-verse dedication:

> O lyric love, half angel and half bird,
> And all a wonder and a wild desire!

For Robert Browning is being radioed. Prof. Fairfield of Columbia University, who to his profound spiritual joy realizes the unfading splendors of the Browning poetic output, is getting some of it over to the multitude that listens in.

The professor has a set of brief lectures on Browning, which he delivers by radio. Quite naturally, he quotes liberally from the poems by way of illustrating his argument. It is said that the demand for copies of his lecture series, from radio listeners alone, has been such that the sale has more than paid for their publication.

This fact should rebuild faith in the wavering souls of those who imagine all the world gone woozy with modern jazz. Anyhow, the first line of the familiar Browning philosophy is all right:

> God's in His heaven;
> All's right with the world.

FACE PAINTED LIKE A WATER LILY.

Fort 9, Ingoldstadt, on the Danube River, was the container of the bad eggs among the allied officer prisoners of war for four years up to 1918. Daring, resourceful men they were, who had escaped from other prisons, had been recaptured and sent to Ingolstadt because of its security. The fort was a small hill, surrounded by a deep, water-filled moat, 30 feet across.

All cells were underground. They were made of stone and the windows were heavily barred with steel, but many men escaped, one way or another. The whole fort was an Escaping Club. Four hundred determined men spent their waking hours planning escapes and working out the preliminaries. From England, France and Belgium their friends were sending them files and saws and compasses baked in pies or pasted into book covers. Some prisoners, disguised as German noncommissioned officers, escaped over the drawbridge, the only foot passage across the moat. Others were carried out in garbage cans. Still others, with the connivance of the servants, in great bags of laundry. Another covered his clothing with cotton and snaked across the frozen moat in a snowstorm.

One daring and hopeful soul painted his face green like a water lily and tried to swim gently across the moat in the dusk of a summer evening. But he did not fool the hard-headed German sentry, who refused to believe, in spite of immediate ocular evidence, that water lilies could cross the moat under their own power.

This unimportant piece of history is recalled by the naive testimony of Mr. Edward L. Doheny before the Senate committee investigating the national oil land leases. Doheny, 20 years a prospector on the frontiers, a man of the open spaces, and the great desert silences, a wanderer of the plains, now favored by fortune, and wearing a white collar, is the proprietor of a decided competence in a financial way. His old friend of the Far Southwest, where men are men and the pitiless sun beats down from the yellow sky, his old side-pardner, Albert Fall, happens to be hard up. What more natural than to lend him a piece of change to tide him over. A mere hundred thousand dollars. So far, Albert has not paid it back, but it has nothing whatever to do with the fact that Albert slipped Doheny a lease on a strip of oil land worth a hundred million or so.

The institution of friendship is a noble thing, and Doheny's story is quite as good as some of O. Henry's, but the ordinary mind reacts to the story as the German sentry's did to the spectacle of a water lily swimming slowly toward him. It has a conviction that the situation is full of interest, but that it demands vigorous action.

Mr. Doheny might take his recital to Hollywood. Stories like that make good moving picture scenarios.

PACIFICATION IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Order has been restored on Bucas Island, Surigao Province, off the coast of Mindanao. Eighty "fanatics" and 13 constabulary soldiers were slain in one engagement. In a smaller encounter six soldiers were killed. Now the island of the so-called fanatics has again been visited by a constabulary force which landed under cover of machine-gun fire from a gunboat and burned the town of the natives.

It may be a little difficult for Americans trained in the traditions of self-government to understand just what is their relation in this bloody affair. Are we missionaries or instructors? Are we maintaining order or putting down a rebellion? Just what is it all about?

The most that the dispatches have disclosed is that the trouble arose over the destruction by the constabulary of a "miraculous tank" in which about 300 members of the religious order of the Colorum were bathing and drinking. The waters of the tank were thought by the primitive people to be invested with supernatural healing and purifying powers. Governor-General Wood, while admitting lack of information as to the reason for the act of destruction, suggested that pollution of the water may have been the cause.

It is yet to be shown that the constabulary under American command did not unnecessarily and ruthlessly violate the religious sensibilities of a primitive people and that the breach, once opened, could not have been healed by pacific means. The woman leader of the reputed fanatics who, by the way, are of the Christian faith, has declared that her followers want peace and order and that they will always work with the champions of peace.

Isn't it about time Americans were learning what the flag of the republic stands for under our military command in the Philippines?

ALDERMANIC DELAY.

The Board of Aldermen informally has expressed its resentment at a recent demonstration of electrical workers in the aldermanic chamber when an ordinance revising the electrical code of the city was up for passage. The gallery and standing room were packed with interested spectators, who applauded or protested as suited their pleasure until a threat was made to clear the room. While it is said a majority of the Aldermen are in favor of the measure, the attitude of the lobbyists was such that the bill was recommitted and passage was further delayed.

The resentment of the Aldermen at strong-arm tactics is justified. Measures should not be voted upon in the presence of an organized, interested throng attempting to influence legislation with noise and a show of strength. On the other hand, is there not a little lesson for the Aldermen in this incident? The ordinance under consideration had been in their hands for 18 months. In a small fraction of that time the bill should either have been passed or killed. What recourse has the public when the Aldermen will not act?

How many birthdays is the smoke ordinance to have before it becomes the law of the city?

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"IT has been so long since we believed news from Russia that we were wary of the report that Trotzky is out," Mr. Antwine said.

"However, now that Lenine is dead, there can no longer be any doubt that both the Russian and Mexican revolutionary groups are passing.

"Both these disintegrating groups proved much more cohesive than anybody thought they would be. The revolutionary bloc in Mexico only broke up after 15 years, and the Government headed by Lenine and Trotzky has been in power more than six years. If our own farm bloc holds out through the approaching presidential campaign, it will surprise some of us, and it is scarcely two years old. We don't know what became of the Committee of Forty-eight, and who has forgotten the short life of the revolt led by the Progressives?

"Somebody usually sells out in this sort of thing almost before the revolution can get its Paul Revere out and warn the population, but this has not been the case in either the Russian or the Mexican revolts. Lenine and Trotzky always stuck together through thick and thin, mostly thin, we imagine. The familiar sight of Obregon, Calles and De la Huerta pulling together in Mexico has been nothing short of a political miracle. The revolution is said to have originated with Calles, one time a school teacher in Sonora, as the revolution in Russia centered about Lenine, an exile in Zurich. Those two revolts and the proved stanchness of the men who led them will occupy an interesting place in history, but it is doubtful if we have been able correctly to judge either the revolts or the men behind them. Only generations to come can do that. Revolution has ceased to be respectable with us. It is respectable enough to be a Son or a Daughter of the Revolution, but not to be a revolutionary.

"Mr. Saner, the new president of the American Bar Association, says we would not let George Washington be President now, holding him to be a bolshevist. The late Franklin P. Lane said the right to revolution in our own country no longer exists. Principles are like our good clothes—they are not to wear every day. The bolshevists will be respectable when their descendants organize socially, and the people deriving from the revolutionaries in Mexico will be the bon tons of social life in Mexico when Time has moved all this sort of thing from the front news pages into the society column.

"The Pilgrims were communists, but who among us has not tried to trace his or her descent back to the Mayflower?" Mr. Antwine asked.

Is it any wonder the McAdoo people are serving tea? What else, after Teapot Dome, would a Democrat drink?

Sir: Does Secretary Mellon conduct only one end of the Treasury Department, remaining blissfully unconscious of the doings of the other end? We all know how hard he is trying to get Congress to make it possible to lure investors away from tax-exempt securities. At the same time there comes to many of us, via Postoffice Department, plus Federal Reserve Bank, a circular headed, "Good News From the Treasury," offering Treasury Savings Certificates with the statement that these certificates "are exempt from the normal Federal income tax and from all State and local taxation (except estate and inheritance taxes)." "Many investors figure that this tax exemption is equal to an additional 2 per cent interest," coos the circular.

Perhaps Mr. Mellon is giving an illustration of Woodrow Wilson's expert horsemanship story about riding horses going in opposite directions.

COOLIDGE AND THE MELLON PLAN

From the New York Herald.

THE announcement from the White House regarding the Mellon plan of tax reduction is reassuring to the country. President Coolidge will not compromise with the tax tinkers who want to do thus and so with the plan. It is not intimated that the President wants the Mellon bill passed without the crossing of a "t" or the dotting of an "i," but he does insist that the effectiveness of the Mellon plan shall not be destroyed to make capital for demagogues. The President is opposed to amendments or substitutes which would change the character of the plan or break down its efficiency. He is determined that the Mellon program shall not be twisted and torn until only the name remains. This is natural. Mr. Coolidge in his first message to Congress gave his unqualified approval to the tax suggestions of his Secretary of the Treasury. He stands by them and the country stands with him.

TEXAS AND PROHIBITION.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

GOV. PAT NEFF of Texas, whom some fervent dry once mentioned for the presidency, has come all the way from his native habitat to Washington to talk militant prohibition in President Coolidge's church in Washington. Having failed through State action, the Texas Governor demanded 10,000 Federal troops to stop the flow of rum over the Mexican border. Gov. Pat's border is something like 1200 miles. But if the army is to be employed there the other leaky borders cannot be left unprotected. The Canadian border is 3900 miles long, and the Mexican border is 1975. The coast line of the United States is 10,758 miles in length. If about 16 soldiers be stationed to the mile to stop the flow of smuggled liquor, as the eminent statesman proposes, it would require an army of 247,000 men, in addition to the army we already have.

THE TEAPOT DOME.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

ARCHIE ROOSEVELT acts wisely in making a clean breast of all he knows respecting the leasing of Teapot Dome to the Sinclair Oil Co. He acts even more wisely in severing his connection with the Sinclair interests. His reason for getting out, he says, is that he believes fraud has been committed against the American Government in the Teapot Dome lease transaction. Archie's elder brother, Theodore, is Assistant Secretary of the Navy. In that capacity his responsibility was not small for the consummation of the lease in question. In his testimony before the Senate committee Theodore Roosevelt first said that he was unaware of what was going on. Later, upon reflection, he modified this testimony by saying that he had been slightly acquainted with the proposal to lease the naval oil reserves. Now this elder brother prompts the younger to tell the committee the whole truth. It is hoped that neither of these young men has become, in any way, compromised by his association with the Teapot Dome affair.

It Seems to Me

Almost every reviewer has spoken his praise for Thomas Beer's "Stephen Crane" (Knopf) by this time. We can do no more than echo this admiration. The scheme of the book seems to us admirably ingenious. Best of all we like the swift, sure manner in which Beer has indicated the nature of the community in which Crane lived.

Of all the subsidiary figures in the biography, the one which commands our interest most is Richard Harding Davis. Somebody ought to write a life of Davis. It may be that his writing is not of enduring value, although it seems to us that a good many lesser men have been exalted above him by modern critics. Obviously, he did not convey any great amount of emotion in his stories or novels. He wrote no "big, strong book" after the pattern which is popular today. In his contact with life he kept his shirt on. And it was a dress shirt.

But he achieved an ease in the use of English which has been equaled by few other Americans. Moreover, it is our impression that Richard Harding Davis has influenced a greater number of American writers than any native author of the generation. Certainly he has vastly affected the profession of journalism. Richard Harding Davis remains the most vital of all modern newspaper traditions. Most of the reporters whom we know came to the job through a somewhat romantic urge, which was specifically founded on the career of Davis.

Still, this biography ought not to be written as a piece of literary criticism. The opportunity is broader than that. If the job is well done the biographer will catch up the whole swirl and commotion of New York of the nineties and a little later. The theaters, the restaurants, the clubs, the newspaper offices and the current wars and football games would all be in that life of Richard Harding Davis. It might easily be a fascinating book, and just to make the possibility a certainty, Thomas Beer should write it.

Our favorite passage in Beer's "Stephen Crane" occurs on page [illegible], where he writes:

"The tactful Matthew Arnold, on pilgrimage among us in 1883, told William Forester that Americans should get done with the Civil War as a topic; it was a bore. The surgeon answered, 'But so many of us fought in it.' The critic playfully retorted, 'That's no excuse. War is seldom fruitful or important.' He then gave Dr. Forester a signed copy of his note on the translation of Homer's Iliad, a poem dealing with the siege of Troy, and went somewhere else."

One grave omission we do find in Beer's "Stephen Crane." Quite a little is said of Crane's prowess as a baseball player and probably it was altogether impossible for the biographer to obtain averages, but we do think he should have let us know whether Crane was a right or a left handed batter.

The newspaper advertisement said that a person could hardly expect to attend a football game in comfort unless he bought one of the coats. It added that the price had been so materially reduced that every purchaser had a right to regard himself as a fortunate investor.

We bought a coat and until yesterday it was entirely satisfactory. More than that, we were rather enthusiastic about it—until yesterday. It was yesterday that we went, by some unlucky chance, to the zoo in Central Park. The seals did not disturb us and we watched the bears, brown and white, with perfect equanimity. Turning south from the bear den we paused in front of a cage which contained a small furry animal. To our astonishment he took one look at us and then retreated to the far corner of his confine and began to make whimpering noises.

A horrid realization came to us. We read the sign above the cage and, just as we feared, it said "Raccoon." By that time we were a good deal more embarrassed than he was. Fear and loathing was his trouble, but at least there was nothing for him to be ashamed of. Naturally we knew when we bought the coat that the fur of the raccoon was not simply sheared off each season like the wool of a sheep, but at that time we did not realize the size of raccoons. We had fancied an animal a good deal larger. No notion had entered our head of the number of raccoons which must have made the supreme sacrifice before our coat could be constructed. Now we knew that there had been shambles and a massacre. No wonder the little fellow in the cage retreated to the far corner.

Our first impulse was to plead ignorance. We thought of telling him that after all we had not ordered the coat in advance, but had merely happened upon it, a ready-made garment, long after the destruction had already been accomplished. If we had not bought it, somebody else would. But the day was much too cold and gloomy to face a frightened raccoon with sophistries. He wanted peace and silence in which to forget rather than explanations.

And so we went away and looked at the inclosure in which the cow lives. She seemed placid enough and the thought of beefsteaks must have come from our own guilty subconsciousness. Next door were pigs, and there we did not care to pause, either, and review our relations with the animal kingdom. At length we found the llama and peace of mind, for, to the best of our knowledge and belief, we have never been instrumental in doing anything to him or any of his kind.

If we ever have money enough to buy another fur coat we are going to get a nutria or some other skin which cannot return in living form to shame and haunt us. We don't know what a nutria is and so even if we happened upon one it might be possible to pass by without recognition or recrimination.

Social News

ALTHOUGH parties for the debutantes have decreased in number since the holidays, a few interesting ones are in prospect. Tomorrow evening, Miss Mary Christy Tiffany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Tiffany, will be honor guest at a dinner to be given by Mrs. Sidney Walker, of the Oxford apartments, at the St. Louis Country Club.

Tonight Miss Tiffany and Miss Frances Collins, daughter of Mrs. H Blaksley Collins, will share honors at a dinner dance at the Log Cabin Club to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Davis, of 13 Westmoreland place. There will be about 100 guests, including some of the debutantes and second year girls and their escorts.

Wednesday evening, Miss Tiffany and Miss Emily Shepley will be honorees at Mr. and Mrs. John Lawrence Mauran's dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club.

Mrs. Hayward Gatch of 32 Portland place, was hostess at a luncheon today for 18 guests honoring Misses Emerin and Carolyn Keene of Rome, Italy, who are being entertained here. Miss Emerin is the guest of Mrs. Lockwood Hill, while Miss Carolyn is visiting Miss Hannah Jane Foley.

William Cotter of the Kingsbury apartments and his daughter, Miss Leota, will depart Saturday to spend the winter in Pasadena, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Whitelaw of Hotel Chase also will depart this week for the coast. They will winter in Santa Barbara.

Mrs. William Scott Snead of Montclair, N. J., and her twin sons, will come to St. Louis in March for a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerbert Lawrence Parker, of 39 Washington terrace. Mrs. Snead was Miss Katherine Parker.

Miss Katherine Steedman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Fox Steedman of 34 Westmoreland place, will give a theater party Monday evening in honor of her cousin, Miss Lynette Brown of Jacksonville, Ill., who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Edward F. Goltra of Lindell boulevard. The visitor is a graduate of the Ward Belmont School in Nashville and has made her debut informally this winter. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brown of Jacksonville.

Miss Alice Scott, daughter of Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott of 31 Westmoreland place, will give an informal dance the evening of Feb. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Langenberg of 49 Westmoreland place departed this week for Camden, S. C., to spend the late winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Faust of 1 Portland place were hosts at a dinner party Wednesday evening at their home.

Mrs. Augustus A. Maschmeyer of 4933 McPherson avenue is spending a fortnight in Hot Springs, Ark. She will return early in February.

The fortnightly dance at Jefferson Barracks, scheduled for tonight, has been postponed until Feb. 1 because of the address Col. Dwight Davis will deliver this evening to the Military Order of the World War.

Miss Amy Hunt Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus B. Jones of 4329 Cabanne avenue, has been called home from St. Joseph, Mo., where she has been visiting for several weeks, because of the serious illness of her father, who is at St. John's Hospital.

The Sigma Phi Delta fraternity will give a dance tomorrow evening at Mrs. Julia Laughlin Boehmer's studio, 4039 Lindell boulevard.

Benefits for charity hold the attention of society during the latter part of the winter when social gayeties are at low ebb. One of the latest of such affairs announced is a card party at the Armory the afternoon of Feb. 29, the proceeds from which will go to the Little Sisters of the Poor to increase their facilities for caring for needy old men and women. A group of prominent men, headed by Archbishop John J. Glennon, Dr. Leon Harrison and Dr. Ivan Lee holt have constituted themselves an honorary committee and have arranged for overhead expenses, so that the money obtained through the sale of prizes will be all profit. Those who prefer playing at home for the benefit may do so by sending funds to the committee. The group of society women who are sponsoring the affair and have planned the benefit, include Miss Josephine Cobb and Mmes. J. D. Perry Francis, William Maffitt, Cornelius Tompkins Jr., James M. Franciscus, Auguste B. Ewing, Elias Michael, William T. Donovan, Charles Massee, J. C. Muckerman, Paul Robyn, Martin Shaughnessy, Ellsworth Smith, Daniel G. Taylor, Voluntine C. N. Y. EVENING MAIL BOUGHT BY MUNSEY

Publisher Announces Latest Acquisition Will Be Merged With the Telegram.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Frank A. Munsey, who bought the Globe and Commercial Advertiser last May has added the Evening Mail to his long string of journalistic ventures. He will consolidate the Mail with the Evening Telegram, as he combined the Sun and the Globe.

The purchase price and other details of the change were not revealed. The sale was announced in the following statement:

"Frank Munsey, proprietor of the New York Herald, the Sun and the Globe and the Evening Telegram, purchased the Evening Mail yesterday. It is Mr. Munsey's purpose to combine this latest of his newspaper holdings with the Evening Telegram."

Concerning his purchase of the Mail, Munsey said:

"'This purchase puts the evening newspapers of New York in a safe, strong position. Financially, they are now impregnable. The Evening Mail and the Evening Telegram, another of my newspapers, will be combined Monday. The consolidated paper will have the title The Telegram and Evening Mail.'

"The Evening Mail represents a development from one of the oldest New York newspapers. In 1836, two men from Maine, the Brooks brothers, whose home was in Portland, founded a morning newspaper in New York and called it "The Express."

This was changed to an evening paper in 1839. Forty years later it was merged with the Evening Mail, which had been founded in 1869, the combined paper being called the Mail and Express. The paper continued for many years under this joint name until it finally was given the name The Evening Mail, under which it has continued until the present time.

Munsey purchased the New York Herald, the Paris edition of that paper and the Evening Telegram from the James Gordon Bennett estate for a price reported to have exceeded $4,000,000. He combined the Herald and Sun, changed the name of the Evening Sun to the Sun.

Purchase of the Mail leaves only three other English evening newspapers outside the Munsey group—the Evening World, the Post, purchased less than a month ago by Cyrus H. K. Curtis of Philadelphia and the Journal.

The Mail and Express were consolidated by Cyrus W. Field. Then the paper passed to the ownership first of the Mark Hopkins estate and next to that of Col. Elliott F. Shepard, son-in-law of William H. Vanderbilt. This was in the latter half of the eighties. The paper next went to R. C. Alexander and B. E. A. Dorr, who had been connected with it several years. In 1902, it was bought by Henry L. Stoddard and Edward Payson Call. In 1915 it went to Dr. Edward A. Rumely, who was found guilty later of having concealed from the Alien Property Custodian that the money with which he financed the paper had come from the German Government. After this exposure, control was again taken by Stoddard and by Paul Block, these two being the largest bondholders of the paper.

TREATY BETWEEN FRANCE AND CZECHO-SLOVAKIA SIGNED

Pact Said to Contain Decision Against Return of Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs to Power.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—A treaty between France and Czecho-Slovakia was signed at the Foreign Office today by Premier Poincare and Dr. Edouard Benes, the Czecho-Slovakian Foreign Minister.

Although the treaty has been termed in some quarters a defensive compact, spokesmen for the Prague Government have said it imposes no military obligations on either France or Czecho-Slovakia, providing only for "understandings" between the general staffs of the two nations.

Forecasts of the treaty have represented it as containing provisions for the maintenance of the status of Europe as determined by the treaties executed at the conclusion of the World War and collaboration of France and Czecho-Slovakia in the economic reconstruction of Europe.

It also has been said that the treaty contains a statement of the two countries' decision not to allow the return of either the Hohenzollern dynasty in Germany or the Hapsburgs in Hungary.

$15,000 LEFT TO BOY SCOUTS BY EAST ST. LOUIS WOMAN

Residue of Estate of Mrs. Elsie Vandevanter Caldwell Also to Go to Troop.

The East St. Louis Boy Scouts Council will receive a direct bequest of $15,000 and a residuary legacy believed to be worth several thousand dollars, under the will of Mrs. Elsie Vandevanter Caldwell, 86 years old, who died at her home in East St. Louis, Jan. 17. Her will, filed in Probate Court at Belleville yesterday, disposes of her personal estate and the estate of her late husband, of which she was trustee.

Her estate will be distributed in $300 bequests each to several nieces and nephews, with the residue to her nephew, Judge W. M. Vandevanter, with whom she lived. Her husband's estate is divided, $15,000 to the Boy Scouts, $1500 to various charities, and the residue to the Scouts. The combined estate of Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell is estimated at $100,000.

KING BUYS 25-CENT SEATS

Belgian Ruler and Daughter Unnoticed at Paris "Movie."

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan 25.—An unpretentious motion picture house on the Paris boulevard had royal patrons the other evening, but didn't know it. Albert, King of the Belgians, and his daughter, accompanied by Consul General Bastin, dropped into a theater to while away an hour between trains, while en route from Brussels to the French Alps.

The trio stopped outside the picture palace, looked for a moment at the photographs of the stars, consulted their watches and then went in. They sat in five franc (about 25 cents) seats.

Count to Take Bride Abroad.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Count Ludwig Salm Von Hoogstraeten and his wealthy bride, the former Millicent Rogers, sail tomorrow on the Veendam for London where they will remain some time, later going to St. Moritz. They will be accompanied by Count Ludwig's brother, Count Otto Salm. Col. and Mrs. Henry Huddleston Rogers, the bride's parents, had originally booked passage for themselves and Miss Rogers on the Majestic, sailing Jan. 12. When informed of their daughter's marriage Jan. 9, Col. Rogers canceled the booking.

DOHENY'S STATEMENT CONCERNING LOAN TO SECRETARY FALL

heny read the letter into the Record.

"These facts conclusively demonstrate," he continued "that there could not have been any collusion between the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company and anybody whomsoever.

"The orginal contract provided for an expenditure by the company of $6,466,795.50, which amount reduced through economies made by the company in its construction work and its purchase of fuel oil by about $525,000, which, together with the sum of $235,000, the difference between the company's unqualified bid and its alternative bid, amounts to $760,000. To this might fairly be added the sum of $120,000, by which sum the company's unqualified bid was lower than its competitor's bid, thus making the contract an extremely advantageous one for the Government, and, as before stated, uncertain in its benefits to the company.

"In addition, the Government has received under a provision of the contract the benefit of a decline of 50 cents per barrel in the purchase of fuel oil furnished it, amounting to about $725,000. The construction work under this contract is practically completed and the fuel oil has been delivered into the tanks at Pearl Harbor.

A Year After the Loan.

"Later in the year 1922, and nearly a year after I had made the loan to Mr. Fall, the Navy Department, desiring additional storage facilities, and petroleum products at Pearl Harbor, requested that the original contract of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co. be supplemented or that a new contract be made providing for the additional work and supplies, as is shown by the letter of the Secretary of the Navy dated Nov. 28, 1922. For some time negotiations were carried on in which the president of our California company, who came to Washington for that purpose, together with our Washington attorney, discussed all phases of the proposed supplemental arrangements with the representatives of the Navy and the Interior Departments.

"On the last day before the contract was signed, the president of the California company absolutely turned down the contract, stating that he believed there was no adequate benefits commensurate with the great risks assumed by the advancement on the part of the company of the necessary millions to pay the contractors who were to perform the construction work at Pearl Harbor and to furnish the petroleum products required. The estimated expenditure to be made under this supplemental contract for tankage facilities and petroleum products is $9,017,000, about one-half for petroleum supplies and one-half for storage facilities.

Work Well Under Way.

"The work is well under way and about $1,003,000 has been expended by the company on it.

"This contract gave to the navy just that service from the naval reserves that the Navy Department through its acting engineer had desired, which was immediate availability of its anticipated productions, delivered where the navy wanted it at the time it wanted it, in such quantities as were needed, and of the character and quality which the navy's requirements called for.

"In addition a burden, the advantage of which to the navy can scarcely be measured was assumed by the company:

"That of providing for the navy in Southern California 1,000,000 barrels of free oil storage and of devoting 3,000,000 barrels of the company's Atlantic seaboard storage to the holding of that quantity of fuel oil subject to the navy's call for any time for a period of 15 years.

"The contract also gave the option to the navy of purchasing at the company's terminal station at San Pedro such petroleum supplies as the navy may require at 10 per cent below the market price.

"In closing, I wish to state that I left Los Angeles on Jan. 17, to come to Washington to present a statement of all the facts to the committee and, having been informed that Mr. Fall was in New Orleans, took that route in order to apprise him of my intentions and found him already in entire accord with my purpose."

Offer to Return Lease.

The statement submitted to the committee by Gavin McNab, attorney for Doheny, offering to cancel the lease under certain conditions, follows:

"On behalf of Mr. E. L. Doheny, I am authorized and instructed to make to you the following statement and offer:

"While all the things stated in Mr. Doheny's testimony were innocent in all intentions, Mr. Doheny does not wish to have his company appear as dealing unfairly with or taking advantage in any way of the Government.

"He has always contended and now insists that his company's leases in naval oil reserve No. 1 are not only in strict agreement and accord with the plans of the Department of the Navy for the use of said reserve, but are in his opinion most advantageous to the Government.

"Nevertheless, in order to remove any basis for criticism of the transaction, Mr. Doheny suggests that your honorable committee request the President of the United States to appoint a board of experts to examine all the facts regarding these contracts. Should such a board of experts report that at the time of the making of the contracts they were not wise, desirable and advantageous for the Government to make and the very best that the Government could have obtained, Mr. Doheny will cause the board of directors of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co. to recover to the Government all interest in such contracts, receiving in return only just compensation to his company for the actual expenditures which have been made by the company under the contracts, without profit."

Letter on Alternative Bid.

The letter to the attorney of the American Petroleum and Transport Co., signed by the Acting Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Navy, and read into the record of the hearing by Doheny, follows:

"In your proposals (A) and (B) of April 14, 1922, under each of which your bid was the lowest received by the Government, your company submitted two bids for the erection and construction of storage facilities at Pearl Harbor, T. H., and the filling of these with fuel oil. In proposal (B) you offer to accept an amount of royalty crude oil for filling the contract, which expressed in money was $235,164.40 less than the amount in proposal (A) and your company offered to give the Government in addition any saving in the cost of construction under the amount estimated, provided that the Government would give the company preferential right to lease certain lands in oil naval reserve.

"It is evident from our conversation of April 18, that your interpretation of preferential right was to the effect that the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co. desired the right to lease certain specified lands in Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 1, as well as preferential rights to lease other land in Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 1 to the extent described in article 11 of contract. It is my understanding from your conversation that unless the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co. could get a lease to certain lands, your company would not desire to enter into a contract under the terms outlined in proposal (B) and preferred the Government would accept proposal (A).

Reasons for Accepting Proposal.

"The Department of the Interior looks favorably upon proposal (B) for the following reasons:

"1. It provides for an immediate and certain saving to the Government of $235,184.40 over proposal (A).

"2. You suggest that it gives opportunity to effect an additional possible saving of a considerable amount should the contractor succeed in erecting the storage facilities for less than the amount estimated.

"It is my understanding that unless you secure definite assurance from the Department that your company would obtain leases for certain tracts in naval reserve No. 1, the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co. would prefer not to enter into a contract as outlined in proposal (B).

"In order that the Government may take advantage of a contract embodying the terms outlined in proposal (B) I wish to advise you that the Department of the Interior will agree to grant to the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Co., within one year from the date the delivery of a contract relative to the Pearl Harbor project, leases to drill the following tracts of land: The N. E. 1-4 of Section 3, T. 31, S. R. 24 E. and the strip of land lying in the east half section of 34 T 30, S. R. 24, E. bounded on the east by the tract of land to be leased to the Belridge Oil Co.

Rate of Royalty.

"The rate of royalty which the department will request on the two tracts of land referred to above will not be greater than the following:

"For all oil produced of less than 30 degrees, Baume:

Here Is the Clothing Sale That All St. Louis Is Talking About!

Right in the heart of the clearance season—when assortments are ordinarily broken—this store had the good fortune to secure the entire stock of NELSON-GUBIN MFG. CO.—615 N. 9th St., St. Louis—MAKERS OF FOXY CLOTHES. A dissolution of partnership caused a demand for an immediate cash settlement, and we were able to secure the garments at our own price. This wonderful stock —fresh from the manufacturer and complete in every detail—is now on sale at this store at Savings of about 50c on every $1.00 Choose from a wide range of Suits, Overcoats and extra Trousers at less than ordinary clearance prices. Select garments of superior quality at savings that are extraordinary. Buy now for immediate wear and for next Winter. In view of the exceptional value, the purchase of two, or even three garments is a wise investment. Come and see Saturday.

Men's Suits

The unusually low prices quoted in this sale indicate the big savings you can obtain. These Suits and Overcoats are of the type that would regularly sell at about twice our sale price. Suits of blue serges, pencil stripes, brown, blue and gray mixtures—in fact, a vast assortment of the most-wanted patterns are included in this stock. The Overcoats are soft, warmth-retaining plaid-backs, dressy Chesterfields and conservative cuts in Oxford and black; a wide range to please you in every group, and all making your dollar do double work.

32 BUSSES NOW IN SERVICE; PROMISE OF 200 BY FALL

More than 200 busses will be in operation here next fall by the People's Motor Bus Co., according to Augustus Barnes, director. At present the company has 32 in service and additional ones are arriving from the factory at the rate of four or five a week.

The expansion will continue indefinitely until all parts of the city and community centers, as well, are given adequate transportation, Barnes said. The company has received permits to operate what it has styled the Grand boulevard, Washington University, Hodiamont and Russell boulevard lines and is awaiting the necessary busses. The Grand boulevard line, extending from Carondelet Park to the Water Tower, will be the first inaugurated.

OPEN CAMPAIGN IN MISSOURI FOR M'ADOO URGED

Anti-Reed Leaders in State Send Message to Former Cabinet Member's Manager.

SOME ST. LOUISANS SIGN THE TELEGRAM

Justice Graves of the State Supreme Court Opposed to Renewing Fight Against Senator.

The first real step toward a fight on Senator Reed in Missouri and forestalling o fa "gumshoe" hunt for Missouri's delegates to the National Democratic Convention, was taken today when anti-Reed leaders sent a telegram tc the McAdoo campaign headquarters, urging an aggressive campaign in the State.

This communication, sent to Daniel C. Roper, manager of the McAdoo campaign for the Democratic nomination for the presidency, declared McAdoo's only chance to win the Missouri delegation was by making an open and determined fight. Immediate action was urged to block efforts to call the State convention at a late date, declared favorabel to Reed, when the Democratic State Committee metes Monday at the American Annex.

Signers of the Telegram.

Signers of the telegram include Ewing Y. Mitchell of Springfield, manager of the Folk campaign for U. S. senatorship in 1918; W. D. Vandiver of Columbia, United States Subtreasurer in St Louis during the Wilson administration; R. B. Oliver of Cape Girardeau, active in Democartic circles in Southeast Missouri; Charles E. Richeson of Potosi, chairman of the Democratic County Committee of Washington County; and the following St. Louisans: Francis M. Curlee, Jesse D. Luckenbill, former Democratic City Committee member; John L. Duffy, Miss Mary Semple Scott, Mrs. Fred A. Reid and Miss Edna McGrath.

"McAdoo's only chance to get the Missouri delegation is to make an aggressive fight," the telegram read. "A delegation controlled by Reed would be an anti-McAdoo delegation to the bitter end.

"The State Committee meets here next Monday to make a call for the State convention. Suggestions have been published that the State convention be called for April 22, and that uniform dates for all county conventions be fixed in the call.

Early Convention Called.

"A late convention is in the interest of Reed. We urge that you advise McAdoo's friends to contest for a State convention at the earliest date, and for fixing of dates of the county conventions by the county committees. McAdoo cannot possibly capture the Missouri delegation by diplomatic and covert methods. He can undoubtedly do so if his local managers will assume leadership of the large Democratic majority in Missouri who would regard Reed's nomination as a national calamity."

McAdoo supporters are expected to make their fight in the State Committee meeting for calling of the State convention at a date probably in the last week of March.

A letter written by Justice Graves, presiding Judge of Division No. 1 of the Missouri Supreme Court, has entered the Missouri Democratic political situation as a powerful influence in the McAdoo-Reed fight in Missouri.

Copies of the letter, which was written to C. M. Brown of Redlands, Cal., a citrus grower and active McAdoo manager in the West, have found their way into the hands of several influential Democrats, and have created a profound impression because of the prominence of the writer and his power in politics in the State. The letter, in part, was:

"I have no personal or political objections to Mc. McAdoo. However, a Missouri man or two are being discussed, and if one shows up I favor him having a delegation from Missouri which could do him some good, but one which is not hand-picked for any other candidate should our man fail.

Wants United Party in State.

"Missouri has a Republican State administration and I want to see a united Missouri Democracy to the end that our party may return to power in the State. This union of factions cannot be secured by having a Wilson and anti-Wilson fight in the State, nor by having a Reed and anti-Reed fight in the State.

"Activity for Mr. McAdoo in Missouri means both of the fights above mentioned and the defeat of our State ticket. It would be Mc-

MAN HOLDING UP BAR TAKEN BY POLICEMAN

"It's All a Joke," Prisoner Says, After Being Subdued by Captor.

"My saloon is being held up," William Makos shouted as he rushed up to Patrolman Wildhaber on Market street, near Ninth street, at 6:15 o'clock last night. The saloon is at Ninth and Market.

The policeman ran to the saloon and found a man pointing a revolver at a bartender and a customer.

"Drop that gun," the officer yelled. The man turned and pulled the trigger. The cartridge failed to explode. The policeman, then in striking distance, hit the man twice on the head and he fell.

"It's all a joke. I'd been drinking," the man said at city hospital, where he was treated for scalp lacerations. He said he was George White, 41 years old, with no home.

Eight cartridges to fit his revolver were found in his pocket. Police do not believe the joke story and will apply for a warrant.

Makos said he was standing in a rear door when the man walked in, drew a revolver and commanded "Stick up your hands, everybody." Makos slipped out and found the policeman.

Holdup Men Get $250 at Coal Company Office.

Two men at 4 p. m. yesterday forced Ollie J. Beine, manager of the Boehmer Coal Co., office, Union boulevard and Terminal railroad tracks, to lie on the floor while they took $250 of company collections from his pockets.

Two passengers, who entered a taxicab at Tower Grove Station, drew revolvers at 4200 Lucky street, took $23.80 from the chauffeur, Emil Tepfer, 1529 Buck street, and drove off with the taxicab which later was found abandoned at Warne avenue and North Market street.

Alex Watson, 1209 South Compton avenue, a driver for Famous-Barr, reported he was held up by two men in front of 3634 McRee avenue and robbed of $115.

ONLY GOLD OR FOREIGN MONEY FOR POLISH BANK STOCK

Plans to Take 25 Per Cent of Holdings, but May Increase Subscription.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Jan. 25.—Individual subscriptions for stock in the new Polish bank issue willl be accepted only in gold or foreign currency to a maximum of 100 zlotys, or $19.30. Foreigners are permitted to acquire an interest, subject to the veto of the president.

Government participation is fixed at 25 per cent, but if, when the books close, 60 per cent of the desired capital of 100,000,000 zlotys has been subscribed, the Government will increase its interest and the bank will cease to be a private institution. However, the Cabinet expects manufacturers and business men who have insisted that the bank be private to subscribe largely.

FINDS HUSBAND DEAD FROM GAS

Wife of Salesman Unable to Give Cause for His Action.

William G. Recker, 49 years old, of 3226 Barrett street, a salesman, was found dead in bed, fully dressed and with the covers pulled over his head and a tube leading from a gas jet to his mouth, when his wife, Minnie, returned home after an hour's absence shopping yesterday evening.

Unable to get into the home, she had called relatives, who forced an entrance and found Recker. She could assign no cause for her husband's action. There are two children.

Adoo and Wilson on one side and Senator Reed and his friends upon the other. This I do not want to see. I was an ardent friend of President Wilson during the eight years of his service. I admire the man, his public views and his public services. I was and am now firmly convinced of the necessity for Wilson's League of Nations; in the last primary I voted for Breckinridge Long for United States Senator as against Senator Reed, who was my personal friend. I knew Long held Wilson's views.

Proposes Reed-Long Truce.

"I am urging that both Senator Reed and Mr. Long be elected upon our 'big four' to the national convention so that our acts may bespeak our protestations of harmony.

"The interest of no outside presidential candidate should be above harmony in our State Democratic ranks."

3-STORY WALL PULLED DOWN

Remains of Structure After Fire Wrecked by Workmen.

A three-story side wall, about [illegible] feet long, all that remained of the Rhodes-Burford warehouse following the $1,000,000 fire Jan. 5 that destroyed several buildings on Broadway and Fourth street, between Locust and St. Charles, was pulled down by a crew of workmen at 1:10 p. m. yesterday.

Several hundred persons paused on Broadway while workmen placed ropes with which to topple the wall, and hundreds of others ran to the scene as the wall was jerked down and fell with a deafening crash into the excavation for the foundation of the New Federal Reserve Bank Building on the south.

Rhine Wines Sold at Auction.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

COBLENZ, Jan. 6.—Wine auctions in Coblenz, Mayence, Treves and other cities of the Rhine and Moselle district have been well attended this winter, despite the fact that the crop of grapes for the 1923 wine output was the poorest in a dozen years. One day's proceeds of a wine auction at Mayence amounted to approximately $11,000.

DWIGHT F. DAVIS OUTLINES PLANS TO HAVE INDUSTRIES READY IN EVENT OF WAR

Gigantic Task, Including Placing of Production Schedules in Safes of Factories, Described in Speech.

Government plans to obtain the "best assurance against war"—adequate preparation for possible wars—were outlined yesterday at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon by Assistant Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis, who is in direct charge of mobilizing the industries of the country in case of such an emergency.

"The character of warfare has been undergoing a gradual evolution from hand-to-hand combats, in which man-power is the supreme factor, to modern warfare, in which munition-power is as important as man-power," Assistant Secretary Davis declared. "This evolution was not realized even by the great military powers at the outbreak of the World War, and its importance and significance are not grasped even yet by many military men. It is not enough in modern warfare to have an adequate number of men adequately trained. They must also be adequately equipped with all the offensive and defensive devices of science, if they are to have a fighting chance against a modern enemy."

Importance of Industry to War.

"So the industrial, economic and scientific resources of a country are a great potential factor in its military strength. In order to be available for the country's defense, these resources must be mobilized in case of war, just as the man-power must be mobilized. Thus it is as necessary to plan for the mobilization of industry as of man-power, particularly as time is an all-important factor in war. In fact, it is even more important to plan carefully the industrial mobilization, because the man-power can be mobilized and trained much more rapidly than it can be supplied, equipped and armed.

"The responsibility for this planing, which Congress has put on my office, is an exceeding grave one, from several standpoints. In case we are forced into war, if our soldiers were not properly armed and supplied, it would mean an enormous unnecessary loss of life. Lack of proper industrial planning would mean a recurrence, on a larger scale, of many of the evils from which our industrial life suffered and is still suffering on account of the late war; the waste of billions of dollars, the dislocation of industry; the increased cost of living; the heavy burden of taxation, and the many other economic troubles which could be minimized, although not altogether avoided, by proper planning in times of peace. It might even mean the safety of the country itself, because no matter how brave our soldiers and sailors may be, mere bravery cannot win against a modernly equipped enemy.

A Really Big Business.

"To visualize briefly a few of the problems which would face the Assistant Secretary of War in case war were forced upon us, let me put it to you as a business matter: Suppose that you, as business men, were confronted with the problem of expanding your business overnight to 400 times its present size—with ruin staring you in the face if you were not successful. To do this, you realized that you would be required to buy or manufacture some 700,000 articles, many of them in quantities totaling millions, ranging in size from pins to 16-inch guns—many of these articles of complex construction, requiring the utmost precision, and yet you did not know how many of each article you would require, or where to get them. Your force of picked employes would have to be expanded from about 100 to 5000, who must be experienced and trained men in every branch of business, profession and science. Your clerical and other forces would probably number about 50,000 men and women. You would have to establish large branch offices all over the country, acquire or build enormous warehouses, cantonments ann factories; and possibly build up ports, railroads and shipping facilities.

"In many of the articles, the country would not be able to produce the quantities you needed, so that you would have to cause new factories to be built or old ones converted. To move the enormous mass of materials you would require, would bring about a serious congestion of the railroad system of the country, and you would have to foresee and eliminate it, if possible. Many of the raw materials required to manufacture your goods would have to come from foreign countries, and you would have to insure an even flow to the factories under the most difficult circumstances. Complex problems of power, fuel and labor would inevitably arise and must be met. You must do these things with as little damage to other business as possible, and must be prepared to return to normal conditions after the emergency was over. All these things would have to be done while the country was in the first throes of a great war. These, roughly, are a few of the problems which would confront the Assistant Secretary of War at the outbreak of hostilities.

"How would you, as business men, prepare to meet these problems? Would you sit in your office and do nothing, hoping against hope that the contingency would never arise, although history would show you that some day it was inevitable? That is the method our pacifist friends would adopt, and it was particularly the situation in which we found ourselves at the beginning of the last war. Or would you call together your department heads, your technical experts, your professional advisors, and have them plan carefully and in minute detail to meet every difficulty that might be foreseen? That is the method we are adopting now, in order that this country may throw its full fighting force into the battle for defense if we should be forced into another war. It seems to me that this is the business-like way to meet the greatest business problem that ever can face a nation—the mobilization of all its industrial resources in time of war.

Outlines Planning Work.

"I will try to give you very briefly an outline of the way we are carrying on this planning work, as I am anxious to get the assistance of business men all over the country in working it out. The first thing to determine is—'What will we need?' Our requirements are based on the mobilization of the General Staff, which informs us how many men will be called into service month by month—what articles and equipment they will require, and other similar details. Using this as a basis, the seven supply branches have figured their requirements.

"This sounds like a simple task, but when you realize that they must be figured for some 700,000 different items, month by month, in varying quantities, for varying purposes, you can realize that it is not as simple as it sounds. It took 50 officers about a year to figure these requirements. If this first step alone had been taken before the last war, it would have saved literally billions of dollars, and would have eliminated much of the confusion, inefficiency and waste which characterized the early period of our entry into the war.

Survey of Industries.

"The next question that arises is, 'Where can we get these articles?'

BRITISH TO MAKE BEET SUGAR

45-Mile Long Railway Projected With New Plant.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Another attempt is being made to develop the British sugar trade, this time in Suffolk county. At Southwald Harbor, it is planned to erect a sugar beet factory in time for next season's beet crop, the factory to be fed by a circular railway 45 miles long embracing about 200,000 acres for the transport of beet.

The new factory is expected to produce 8000 tons of sugar each year.

OUTLINE OF PLANS FOR INDUSTRIES IN EVENT OF A WAR

This involves practically a survey of the industrial resources of the country, and that survey is now in process. In order to decentralize the work, the country has been divided into 14 procurement districts, and in time of war each procurement service will have a branch office in each district. In many cases prominent business men have been asked to serve as branch district chiefs, and their advice and assistance have been invaluable. For example, Col. M. E. Singleton is the Ordnance Chief of this district, of which St. Louis is the headquarters. The unselfish, far-sighted, whole-hearted assistance which these business men have given us cannot be too highly commended.'

"My office then allocates the different plants in each district to the various supply branches — the plants are visited, and their problems discussed by the branch representative, and when plans are completed, tentative orders will be placed to go into effect at the outbreak of an emergency. A standardized form of contract is being drawn up after consultation with business men all over the country, in order to eliminate many of the annoying, vexatious and expensive misunderstandings which arose during the late war. Without going into details, the final goal of this planning work, which, of course, can never be quite reached, would be that, upon receipt of a telegram from my office, every manufacturer who is to do war work would go to his safe, take out his production schedule, plans, specifications, contracts and immediately start to work.

Co-Operation of Business Men.

"Many problems of the gravest importance to industry necessarily arise as our plans develop. After figuring the requirements in finished articles, it is necessary to break them up into various elements, such as raw materials, power, labor, transportation and similar elements—all of which require some very thorough study. For example—many raw materials, absolutely essential for the production of munitions, cannot be obtained in this country, and this raises a serious problem of discovering substitutes, of keeping sea-routes open, of building up reserve stocks, or in some way or other of solving the problem. In all these studies, we are getting whole-hearted co-operation, from the leaders in industry, the professions, and every branch of science.

"Committees of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers are studying the problems of certain strategic war materials; the American Railway Association has offered to co-operate in working out the transportation prbolems; the American Telephone & Telegraph Company have offered their services in connection with the communication problem; the Iron & Steel Institute, through Judge Gary, has offered to put all the resources of the steel industry at our disposal in working out their special problems; national chemical, engineering, medical and other scientific associations are co-operating in their particular fields. Everyone—business men, professional men, scientific men—all realize that the National Defense is their problem just as much as it is our problem, and it is very heartening to find the whole-hearted, loyal, patriotic support that these busy men are giving the cause. So our plans are not merely War Department plans. They are the plans of industry to protect the country in time of danger. The plans are truly national in scope, as they involve the co-operation of every element in the country—all working for each and each for all.

Denies Plan Is Militaristic.

"In conclusion, let me say just a word about certain ideas underlying this defense planning. Even the most ardent pacifist cannot say that it is in any sense militaristic. Under it not a gun will be manufactured—not a tank built—not a rifle bullet made until war is forced upon us. It does net even inculcate these thoughts about military training which our friends seem to fear, as little or no military training in industrial preparation is necessary. In order to succeed, it must have behind it the complete approval of the whole people, as it can only be carried out through the whole-hearted support of the entire civilian population. It is essentially democratic, as each man and woman is working in his own sphere in carrying out the mandate of the Constitution—to provide for the common defense.

"It cannot have any aggresisve purpose, but it serves as a warning to the world that, if this country is ever attacked, every man, woman and child, every industry every profession, every resource, every dollar, will rally to the nations' defense. If we are ever again forced into war, there must be no slackers and no profiteers, and these will be eliminated under the Defense plan. It is not preparation for war; it is our best assurance against war. So I confidently ask you, as patriotic Americans, to support this democratic plan for the National Defense, based as it is on that mutuality of responsibility which is the essence of our democratic institutions.

FORMAL OPENING OF NEW FURNITURE STORE TOMORROW

Formal opening of the new eight-story Lammert's furniture store, which has a 110-foot white stone front on Washington avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets, and extends back 226 feet to Lucas avenue, will be held tomorrow.

The front part of the first floor is actually an enormous show window. It is decorated with ornamental plaster and painted in quiet tones of blue, red and brown. Passers-by may see furniture displays between columns, each with a walnut mount, reaching back to bronze gates, 20 feet high, at the head of a stairway to the basement. The concern was founded at 1112 Franklin avenue in 1861 by Martin Lammert, father of the Martin Lammert, who is now its head.

CANAL IS OPEN TO ATTACK, UMPIRES FIND

Weakness of Defense at Panama Distinct, Admiral Coontz and Gen. Hines Say.

By the Associated Press.

COLON, Canal Zone, Jan. 25.—The Panama Canal at present is open to attack by aircraft bombardments and raids from enemy naval forces, according to the report of the chief umpires of the recent joint maneuvers between the Blue and Black fleets of the American navy.

The critique of the chief umpires, Admiral Coontz and Major-General Hines, was completed yesterday, and will be sent to the War and Navy Departments with recommendations. In the meantime, the umpires gave out the following statements:

"The objects of the exercises were fully accomplished. The weakness of the canal defense was distinct. Co-operation between the army and navy and the canal authorities exceeded expectations.

"The canal at present is open to attack by aircraft bombardment and raids from enemy naval forces.

"The arrangements for the Blue battle fleet, that the defenders, or Pacific fleet, that transited the canal, for getting out and meeting the enemy were not perfect, and recommendations on this score are made.

"It is recommended that the long-range guns on the older battleships should have an increased elevation and the defense and shore garrison here should be increased. Isthmian aircraft and anti-aircraft and local naval district forces should be maintained at greater strength. As far as the army garrison is concerned, longitudinal and latitudinal roads are needed here."

Umpires are recommending 10 specific things for the army and navy to Washington. The complete report, in a confidential statement to the army, navy and canal, will be published.

SISTER ATTACKS DEATHBED WILL OF JOHN T. HUGHES

Petition, Prepared for Filing, Alleges Incompetency and Undue Influence.

The will of John Thomas Hughes of 3935 St. Louis avenue, drawn on the day of his death Jan. 9 and bequeathing the bulk of his $40,000 estate to his wife and stepchildren, was made the basis of a legal attack, on the grounds of incompetency and undue influence, in a petition prepared for filing in the Circuit Court today.

The complainant is Mrs. Anna B McCarthy Bauman of Ste. Genevieve, a sister of Hughes, to whom $5 was bequeathed.

Hughes, who was 57 years old and a mechanical engineer, was stricken on the afternoon of Jan. 9, and when a physician was called he was unconscious. His death from peritonitis followed six hours later.

The will, which was written in longhand on the stationery of a lawyer not now practicing, was filed Jan. 15, and the widow named executrix, following the application of Mrs. Bauman to take out letters of administration, as next of kin. The filing of the will, she said at the time, was the first knowledge she had that her brother was married.

Woman Found Dead in Home.

Mrs. Barbara Dlouhe, 40 years old, a widow, who lived alone at 1043A Allen avenue, was found dead in the kitchen of her home yesterday by a patrolman who forced entrance when neighbors reported she had not been seen since last Friday. The police believe she was stricken with heart disease while washing clothes. Her body lay against a coal heater and two burners of a gas stove were lighted under a tin wash boiler.

City News in Brief

THE FAMILY OF ALEX H. COCHRAN of 1903 Marcus avenue slept through the visit of a burglar to the home early yesterday. Jewelry valued at $250 was stolen.

MRS. ARLEINA HUFFMAN, 22 years old, of Danville, Ill., is being sought in St. Louis by her husband, Merle, who came here yesterday. She left home Jan. 17 to visit in Paris, Ill., and later left Paris for St. Louis. The husband learned she had applied for work at the Y. W. C. A. and had not been seen since.

MRS. SARAH MOSBACHER, 26 years old, of 1113 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis, suffered a fractured skull and leg yesterday when knocked down by an automobile while crossing Washington avenue at Eighth street.

MRS. LULU DE BEAUX OF 3025 Loretto avenue, yesterday obtained a jury verdict of $750 in Circuit Judge Landwehr's court against Mr. and Mrs. George E. Deeds, 3123 Eads avenue, and Detective Sergt. John J. Carroll, based on alleged false arrest. Mrs. de Beaux was arrested on a theft charge on Sept. 23, 1921, by Carroll and taken to the Central District Police Station, where she was detained 14 hours. Mrs. de Beaux had worked one day for Mrs. Deeds. She sued for $25,000.

A TWO-STORY FRAME BUILDING AT 626 Doddridge street, used as a hotel for employes of the M.-K.-T. Railroad, was partially destroyed by fire spreading from a garage in the rear of the hotel last night at 9 o'clock. Two automobiles in the garage were destroyed. The damage was $1500.

MRS. LUCY JIMERSON, 47, a negro, of Vandalia, Mo., was critically injured yesterday when she attempted to escape from a third floor ward at City Hospital No. 2 by sliding down a rope made of three sheets knotted end to end. One of the knots slipped and the woman fell 40 feet to a brick alley. She suffered fractures of both legs, a fractured right arm and internal injuries.

THE FIRST GENERAL MEETING OF men and women, who will act as team captains in the campaign to raise funds for a new building for the St. Louis Maternity Hospital, will be held at noon tomorrow at Hotel Statler. The meeting has been called by Frank C. Rand, president of the International Shoe Co., and general chairman of the campagin. The plan of campaign will be explained.

FOSTER ASKS THAT MINERS HEAR HIM

Wants to Answer Resolution Attacking Him as Enemy of Union.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 25.—Demands that William Z. Foster of Chicago, Duncan McDonald of Springfield, Ill., and Thomas Myerscough of Pittsburg, Pa., be given a hearing by the United Mine Workers and a chance to answer charges against them, were before the miners' convention today.

The case of McDonald, editor of "The Industrial Review" at Springfield, Ill., and former president of the Illinois miners, was discussed first. A resolution sent by a local at Harlan, Ky., demanded that the International Union require an apology from McDonald and subdistrict officers at Pana, Ill., for "criticising international officers for taking over district 19 in Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee.

"Keep hands off district No. 19 as we feel President Lewis and the Executive Board are able to handle the situation," the resolution read.

The Resolutions Committee report concurred in this part of the resolution, but not in that part which would demand an apology.

A delegate announced late yesterday that Myerscough was here, waiting to be heard. Myerscough has been expelled from the union, and yesterday was named by President Lewis as one of the writers for "The Progressive Miner," which charged Lewis with "betraying anthracite miners."

Foster Asks for Hearing.

Demand that William Z. Foster, of Chicago, be heard came from Foster himself in a telegram to Secretary Green. The telegram was as follows:

"Information has reached me that a resolution submitted by international organizer Ben Williams, through Taylorville (Ill.) local union, viciously attacking me as an enemy of the United Mine Workers of America, is now pending in the convention. I request that I be given opportunity to reply on the floor of the convention. The United Mine Workers will not condemn a union man of long standing without giving him an opportunity to defend himself. I am coming to Indianapolis for that purpose."

President Lewis yesterday defended himself against charges in "the Progressive Miner" that he betrayed the union and caused cessation of the "check-off" to the anthracite miners. He drew from the convention one of the most dramatic ovations ever accorded him.

Silence came at the end of his address, then a burst of handclapping and then yells and shouts. J. S. Patterson, a delegate from Kentucky, said:

"Many times have I gone down on my knees in prayer to Almighty God for our great leader, for you, Mr. President. May God always protect you."

Scores met Patterson's outburst with "Amens" and "Glory to God," many in merriment, some seriously.

Men Not Sold Out.

"You can't go into the anthracite fields and tell those men that they were betrayed," Mr. Lewis said. "They will tell you that John L. Lewis can sell them out any time he wants to for $44,000,000 a year. That's what the 158,000 of them got in wage increases because of that conference at which I am charged with selling them out.

"I hold in my hand a copy of "The Progressive Miner," Oct. 1, 1923, published in Pittsburg, distribtued in the darkness of night, telling how I turned traitor, and filled with fulsome details. It was published and distributed at great cost, with money gained from sources unknown. Who sponsored it? Who are responsible?

"They lied when they penned that document. When confidence is no longer reposed in your officers, then the dissolution of the United Mine Workers of America has begun. This publication and some other so-called labor papers defile labor vastly more than the 'kept press' has ever done.

"All my predecessors have retired sadly from office, melancholy because of that element which watches always to attack and tear down. The same fate is reserved for me. The time will come when I shall be replaced.

Rail Unions Criticised.

Protests against the rejection by the Big Four Brotherhoods of railroad workers of the United Mine Workers' offer of affiliation were made yesterday.

President Thomas Kennedy of District 7, Pennsylvania, told the convention the miners had done everything possible to bring about a better understanding with the railroad workers, but that they had met complete failure.

"Are the rank and file of the railroad workers against us," Subdistrict President Freeman Thompson of Springfield, Ill., asked Mr. Kennedy, "or is it officialdom that is in the way?"

"The officials," Kennedy answered.

For permanent relief, eat Kellogg's Bran regularly. Two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will return your money.

You will like the delicious nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran—so different from ordinary brans, which are unpalatable. Eat Kellogg's Bran with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in the recipes given on the package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is served by leading hotels and clubs in individual packages. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

BENSON TO BE STATE'S WITNESS IN COUNTY CASES

Former Republican Committeeman Was Called to Testify Before Last Grand Jury.

MADE AFFIDAVIT AFTER PRIMARY

Declared List He Recommended for Precinct Officials Was Changed by Person Unknown to Him

Willis W. Benson of 6300 Page avenue, former member of the Republican County Committee, is to be used as a State's witness in the prosecution of persons recently indicted for alleged frauds in the primary election of 1922.

Benson had been indicted for alleged conspiracy in connection with service of certain precinct judges then, following the primary, but this charge was dismissed by Prosecuting Attorney Jones shortly before Benson appeared as a witness before the last grand jury.

Benson was a Republican candidate for nomination for Collector in that primary, opposing the machine candidate, who was nominated, but not elected. Until replaced by election of another man in the primary, Benson was Committeeman for Central Township. As Committeeman it was his duty to submit a list of six persons recommended to fill the three Republican places as officials for each precinct in his township, from which the committee would recommend three for appointment.

Made Affidavit.

In an affidavit made after the primary Benson declared that he handed his list to Harry Kassebaum, who was then secretary of the committee, and added: "Someone unknown to me made various changes on the list I handed to Kassebaum and I was later informed by Sheriff Willmann and others that instead of selecting names from my list the County Court had appointed as Republican judges of election in many precincts in Central Township men who were gamblers, convicts, nonresidents of St. Louis County, and who were wholly disqualified to serve as judges of election."

The theory of the indictment against Benson had been that he was responsible for tse service of unqualified officials. Kassebaum was a witness before the 1922 grand jury. It was supposed that he testified to the same statements he had made in a previous statement to authorities. He had said that he left Benson's list under a book in the law office where the committee had met, while he went to lunch, without looking at it, but that when he returned he found the list was typewritten, with some erasures over which about 20 names had been typed.

Benson's wife had declared previously that she wrote out her husband's list in long hand, and Benson said that was the list he turned in.

Kassebaum's Statement.

Kassebaum, in his statement, said that he took lists of Benson and other committeemen to the newspaper office of "Boss" Fred Essen to copy them on a typewriter, in which he was assisted by a man known to him as a deputy of former County Clerk Seibel.

Benson twice appeared as a witness before the last grand jury.

Among those now under indictment for alleged frauds in the primary are: Essen, Kassebaum, Seibel, J. William Shields, former member of the County Court, who defeated Benson for the nomination for Collector, and Albert Wehmeyer, chairman of the Republican County Committee, a position he held also when Benson was a member.

Benson directed the recovery of ballots that had been thrown into a cesspool at Wellston precinct, in the primary, as part of the plot to substitute fraudulent ballots for those cast by voters. He was active in the cleanup work of the Clean Election League, which defeated the machine in the 1922 general election. John O'Connor and Earl Giebe, who are alleged to have served as precinct judges in the primary, were indicted jointly with Benson in 1922, hence were relieved of the conspiracy charge when the indictment was dismissed, but they are among the 75 defendants now charged with frauds in a blanket indictment.

Apology for Dry Raid on Legation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Expressions of apology and regret for the search by police and prohibition agents, Dec. 20, of the apartment occupied by an attache of the Hungarian Legation are made in letters to Secretary Hughes from Maj. Daniel Sullivan of the District of Columbia police, and Assistant Secretary Moss of the Treasury Department, which the Secretary has transmitted to the legation. Both letters, which Secretary Hughes made public with his letter of transmittal, said the apartment of Andor de Hertel Endy, the attache, was entered without knowledge that he was the occupant.

BOND ADVISORS AGAIN CALL FOR ENGINEERS

Only One of a List From Which to Select Eleven So Far Supplied.

The Citizens' Supervisory Committee again called on the Board of Public Service yesterday to submit a list of engineers and architects, from which it could select "disinterested experts" to advise the committee on the worth of plans submitted by departments of the Board of Public Service, for projects in the $87,372,500 bond issue public improvement program.

Such a list was requested by the Supervisory Committee on Jan. 10, last, in connection with consideration of plans submitted by the Department of Public Utilities for the municipal light, heat and power plant, which is to serve municipal buildings. This plant, a $1,000,000 project, will include a machine shop and garage for municipal departments.

One name was forthcoming from the Board of Public Service, which recommended John J. Lichter, of an engineering firm in the Chemical Building, to review the plans. Committee members raised an objection that a list of names had been called for, instead of one name, but the recommendation was adopted, subject to approval by the Engineers' Club of St. Louis.

List Again Demanded.

A few minutes later when other public work was under considerating, the committee again passed a motion calling on the board to submit a list of engineers, which would provide a field of choice for all the improvements.

Engineers thus employed will have to be paid from bond issue funds, it has been stated, their fees being in addition to the customary 3 to 5 per cent of cost set aside in the appropriations for bond issue projects, to pay the cost of preparation of plans and engineering supervision of construction. No estimates have been made on this additional cost.

At the time the committee approved the Board of Public Service recommendation for an engineer to review the service plant plans, no estimate was given on the probable fees. It was suggested the subcommittee on Public Utilities negotiate with Lichter on his retainer, but this plan was dropped when Assistant Comptroller Cunningham informed the committee this would be contrary to the City Charter.

Charter Provisions Cited.

Such negotiations by the committee would not be legal, Cunningham said, as the charter provides that when experts are called in at city expense, they must be employed and their fee fixed by the Board of Public Service, subject to approval by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

Chairman W. Frank Carter suggested that department heads submitting appropriation bills could set up an additional amount under engineering cost, to pay for this engineering advice, which would make money available.

No fund now is available for employment of engineers for the committee, although a bill carrying a $10,000 appropriation for that purpose is pending in the Board of Aldermen. City officials have stated this fund will cover only a small part of the additional engineering cost, if engineers of recognized ability are called in to go over the plans of each of the construction projects.

Two New Projects Submitted.

Two bills were placed before the committee, providing an appropriation of $250,275 for a men's infirmary building at Robert Koch Hospital for treatment of tubercular persons, and $140,000 for a men employes' building and recreation building for all employes. The latter item includes $85,000 for employes' building and $55,000 for the recreation building. An item of $55,000 for a women employes' building already has been approved.

At the same time a bill was introduced repealing an appropriation ordinance passed last November, providing $94,500 for remodeling and adding a fourth floor to the present main building at Koch Hospital. This action was taken, it was said, because it was found the men's infirmary was more urgently needed, and would provide more capacity for patients than remodeling the main building.

REGISTRATION IN COUNTY IS ESTIMATED AT 20,000

Only 20,000 St. Louis County voters, 5000 less than the number in the last general election and half the number in the last presidential election, will be entitled to vote on the new State Constitution, Feb. 26, the Board of Election Commissioners estimated from a fragmentary returns from the registration which closed yesterday. Only those who registered may vote in municipal elections.

Under the law establishing registration to curb election fraud, two extra registration days may be allowed, but if this provision were followed the canvassing would not be completed three weeks before the constitutional election, as required by another clause. Other extra days are provided in July, and this provision may be taken advantage of for the August primaries. Registration for the presidential election will begin Sept. 20.

MEXICAN SENATOR KILLED ON WAY HOME

Radical Labor Members of Congress Accused of Exciting Their Followers to "Direct Action."

By Radio Fro mMexico City Direct to the Post-Dispatch. Station KSD, for the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 25.—An atmosphere of tense excitement prevailed at an informal meeting of Senators and Deputies yesterday evening, consequent upon the death of Senator Francisco Afield Jurado of Campeche at the hands of unidentified assailants, while he was on his way home.

The Congressmen listened to speeches charging radical labor members with the crime and attacked Deputy Luis Morones, whose recent speech demanding direct action against legislators who secretly supported the revolution while remaining in the capital under Federal guarantees, is blamed for the campaign of violence.

An agreement was rached among the members, of both administration and opposition blocs, for unity for their mutual protection.

Lists of foreigners accused of meddling in Mexican politics, especially those suspected of secretly aiding the revolutionists, has been compiled and forwarded to President Obregon for action looking to their expulsion from the country. Numerous Spanish subjects, mostly large land owners of Puebla, are unofficially reported included in the list.

Promises made by De la Huerta, revolutionary leader, that the revolutionary Government, if successful, would protect large land holders and restore states which have been divided through agrarian legislation, are said to have originated strong currents of sympathy among elements favoring the revolution.

Tension Between United States and Mexico Is Relieved.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Tension over the Mexican situation appeared to be completely relaxed today. The State Department had announced that American war vessels ordered to Vera Cruz and Tampico were already in process of being withdrawn from Mexican waters since the rebel leaders had abandoned their attempted blockade of Tampico and had ordered mines removed from the harbors under their control. With this compliance with the demands of the Washington Government the De la Huerta leaders have withdrawn all threats against the continued movement of peaceful American commerce and the occasion for sending the ships has passed.

OBJECTS TO AMENDMENT TO BRIDGE CONDEMNATION BILL

City Counselor Protests Against Section Providing for Review of Location.

Protest against an amendment adopted by the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce giving the Interstate Commerce Commission authority to review locations of eastern approaches to the Municipal Bridge here, is contained in a telegram sent to the committee at Washington yesterday by City Counselaor Haid.

The amendment was to the bill extending for three years the power of St. Louis to condemn land in East St. Louis for an approach. The congressional acts previously granting such authority did not provide for review of the location.

As told yesterday, Alderman Wander will present to the Board of Aldermen today a resolution, drafted by Frank H. Gerhart, directing the Comptroller to draw $443,000 from the general fund of the city, under an emergency clause of the Charter, for use in condemnation of land for the northeast approach. Condemnation for this approach is authorized in an ordinance passed over the Mayor's veto and without approval of the Citizens' Bond Issue Supervisory Committee, although bond issue funds will be used for the approach.

BRITISH LABOR MINISTER TAKES STEPS TO END RAIL STRIKE

Fear Walkout Will Spread Found in Orders Barring Union Repairs to Locomotives.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Thomas Shaw, Labor Minister, and Miss Margaret Bondfield, parliamentary secretary for the Labor ministry, have taken steps toward ending the strike of the Associated Society of Engineers and Firemen, the morning newspapers say.

There is some fear that the strike will spread, for the Amalgamated Engineering Union has ordered its members not to repair locomotives manned by strikebreakers.

Railroad executives announce that many members of the Station Union of Railway Men, who joned the strike at the outset against the orders of their leaders, have resumed work.

Landlord Sent to Jail.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Michael Battiglaruo began serving a term in the Bridwell yesterday when he failed to pay a fine of $150 and costs, the first landlord to be convicted of failure to furnish sufficient heat to tenants during the recent sub-zero weather. Walter Musul, another landlord, was fined $50, which he paid.

Harry Wills May Have a Very Bad Hand, but He Appears to Be Playing It for All It's Worth

"All the Boxing Commission Does Is to Take 5 Per Cent and a Lot Of Free Tickets," Jim Mullen Says

Promoter for Angelica Club, in Letter to Post-Dispatch, Writes That He Received No Money From Jan. 18 Show—Suggests That Men in Control of Club Explain Fiasco.

James C. Mullen, promoter of boxing "exhibitions" for the Angelica Physical Culture Club, who has been requested by the City Boxing Commission to come to St. Louis to answer some questions about the fiasco at the Coliseum last Friday, states in a letter to the Post-Dispatch, received today, that about all the commission does for boxing is to take five per cent of the receipts and a lot of free tickets.

Outside of that the Commission, Mullen writes, does virtually nothing, beyond expressing the kind hope that "everything's all right." The Commission, Mullen points out in rhetorical questions, does not protect boxers, referees and promoters after granting licenses to "practice their calling." When Gov. Hyde steps in and lands a blow to the chin the Commission assumes the attitude of a bystander, Mullen complains, and lets the club or Mullen shoulder attorneys' fees, injunction suits, etc. The Commission does not even furnish police protection, Mullen states, alleging that he paid $500 at one show for special police and watchmen.

Mullen says that he has been ill for some time and that illness caused his absence the night of the Coliseum fiasco. He writes that he is confident that had he been present he could have carried the boxing program through, as advertised.

Mullen's letter follows:

Mr. John E. Wray,
Post-Dispatch,
St. Louis.
Dear Mr. Wray:

I have been ill for the past two weeks, suffering from inflammatory rheumatism and just returned from Benton Harbor, Mich., where I have been taking the bath treatments. Your wire was given to me today and was very sorry that it was not sent to me sooner so I could have given you an answer.

When I went to St. Louis to promote boxing shows I was told that boxing was legal under jurisdiction of a City Commissioner. I soon found out that all the commission could do for me was to take five per cent of the receipts and get a lot of free tickets. The three shows I promoted in 1923 were solely under my management and the loss was something like $2700. Some of the money I still owe, but am well able to pay as soon as I can get around and realize on some of my holdings.

Matchmaker After Jan. 1.

After January first, 1924, I was just matchmaker for the Angelica Club with one-third interest in the club. The members or officers or owners of the club held two-thirds interest as Jack O'Connor told me he would make it the biggest club in St. Louis and that he would not be connected with it unless it was within the law in every way. The two-thirds profit was to go toward building or equipping a clubhouse. So you see I was in the minority. The majority passed on the amount to be paid Wagner and Moran and when they say they could not meet the guarantees they should not have opened the doors. As they were in the majority I would abide by anything they do. If I knew it would be necessary to get another injunction I would not have tried to stage a show, but I was given to understand that everything was O K.

If I knew we were going to have any trouble over paying the boxers I would have told them to get their money from me in Chicago and the show would have gone as advertised. It is the first time that a show has been called off on me. I have stood many big losses and have made many big gains, but you must take the bitter with the sweet in the boxing game. It was tough on me to be sick at that time as if I was in St. Louis I know I could have handled the situation.

"Fans Should Not Suffer."

The fans should not suffer. All the fans who attended the show that night have membership tickets. I am in favor of changing the color on membership tickets for future shows so we can know what members did not get a run for their money and I certainly will put on another show—the best show ever staged in St. Louis if the Angelica Club wants me to and post purses of all boxers with you or any one else that is reputable and let the fans who were bunked the other night in for one-third the regular price. I think that is the only fair solution to the muddle we are in. I see by the papers that the commission is going to summon me to see why the club tried to reduce the guarantees of Moran and Wagner. They can get that information from men in St. Louis who control the club. His honor, the Mayor meant to help boxing when he appointed the boxing commission, but as conditions are in St. Louis, the commission is no help to the promoter. Did they tell Gov. Hyde to keep hands off, that they were a duly appointed commission to govern the sport in St. Louis?

Did they get police to protect the fans and receipts, Dec. 11? No, they made me spend $200 for special police and watchmen. Did they pay for my attorneys and expenses of injunction? All they did was to take five per cent of the receipts and get a lot of passes, and say, I hope everything is all right.

The city gives boxers and all officials a license to work at their calling. The Governor rescinds it. So you can readily see I was in the muddle from the start. But I will do everything to protect the fan and if we have no more shows in St. Louis their membership card will entitle them to to a free seat at any of my shows. They may be on a vacation some time and their card will come in handy. I received no part of any money from the Jan. 18 show, but I spent around $40 in expenses. I will stand behind O'Connor and the Angelica Club in anything they want to do for the good of the boxing game, and the sooner they do something to satisfy the fan, the better it suits me, whether we make or lose by it. I expect to be out of the house in about a week and I will take a run down to St. Louis. Hoping this clears the situation and thanking you in advance for many past favors, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,
JIM MULLEN.

GRAND JURY OPENS INQUIRY INTO LOCAL BOXING SITUATION

THE St. Louis grand jury yesterday opened its investigation into the local professional boxing game. Promoters, managers and members of the City Boxing Commission were called to testify.

Matt Sofka, financial secretary to Matchmaker Jim Mullen, was among those called and his presence here forced him to cancel his trip to Chicago where he was to have summoned Mullen to appear in St. Louis today before the local commission.

Circuit Attorney Howard Sidener has intimated that there might be numerous indictments. However, all persons who testified yesterday are automatically immune from indictment by the jury.

Kansas Has Won 31 Straight Games

Jayhawker Basket Team Started on Winning Streak Jan. 24, 1922.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Jan. 25.—Thirty-one consecutive conference victories since Jan. 24, 1922, is the record established by the University of Kansas basketball team. Kansas is tied for first place with Washington in the present Missouri Valley race with four wins and no defeats.

Kansas faces a hard game this week when the Jayhawkers go to Nebraska Saturday night for a battle with a team they barely nosed out, 19 to 18, here last week. The Huskers are one of the strong teams of the conference this season, although they fell out of the perfect percentage class last week when they lost three games on a road trip.

Kansas has a hard row to hoe the remainder of the season. The cagers of Coach F. C. Allen won the conference title last year without a defeat and it is naturally desirable to Valley teams to knock Kansas off.

Omaha Player Is Victor In Squash Tourney Feature

DeCamp Defeats Stocking, 15-5, 16-17, 17-14—Limberg Wins From Wear.

Two visiting players fought it out today in the feature match of the Western squash tennis tournament at the Racquet Club, when M. de Camp of Omaha, eliminated G. L. Stocking of Cincinnati, 15—5, 16—17 and 17—14. Potter won the first game in easy fashion, but then Stocking braced and captured the second, while he forced his Omaha opponent to the limit to win the third.

It was Potter's second victory of the day, as earlier he won from G. R. Strellinger, a University Club player, 15—3, 15—7.

Out-of-town players were easy winners over local stars in their early matches. Today's contests were the first of the intercity variety in the tournament.

Eddie Limberg, the Racquet Club star, defeated Jim Wear of the University Club in the team match competition, giving each club 1 point.

Andrew McCreery of the University Club, was defeated rather easily in the team match competition by O. D. Vanderbilt, representing the University Club of Cincinnati, 15 to 4 and 15 to 4. While Vanderbilt was not as brilliant as the local star, he is regarded as one of the best bets in the individual competition. Vanderbilt follows the ball with uncanny accuracy.

Today's Results.

Maury Hill, University Club, defeated Sam Kennard, Racquet Club, 15—11, 4—15, 15—10.

M. de Camp, Omaha, defeated G. L. Stocking, Cincinnati, 15—5, 16—17, 17—14.

C. R. Wright, Cincinnati, won from Dixon, University Club 15—1, 15—5.

A. C. Potter, Omaha, defeated G. R. Strellinger, University Club, 15—3, 15—7.

A. C. Potter, Omaha won from H. D. Comey, Cincinnati, 10—15, 15—5, 15—8.

H. D. Comey, Cincinnati, defeated Calvin Gatch, University Club, 15—2, 15—4.

E. A. Limberg, Racquet Club, defeated Jim Wear, University Club, 15—13, 15—11, in team match.

O. D. Vanderbilt, Cincinnati, defeated Andrew McCreery, University Club, 15—4, 15—4.

KANSAS AGGIES STAR TO COMPETE IN EAST

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Jan. 25.—Ivan H. Riley, senior in agriculture at the Kansas State Agricultural College, departed yesterday for Chicago to compete in the Illinois A. C. handicap meet. Riley represents the I. A. C. and is American record holder of the 400-meter hurdles. He finished three years of competition for the Aggies by winning the high and low hurdle events in the annual Missouri Valley Track Meet last May and the 40-yard hurdle race in the National Intercollegiate meet at Chicago.

Riley will compete in the following meets: The Illinois Athletic Club handicap at Chicago, Jan. 25; the Millrose Games, Jan. 29 and 30, in New York City; the Boston Athletic Association games, Feb. 2, at Boston; the Newark Athletic Club meet, Feb. 6, in Newark, N. J.; and the Kansas City Athletic Club meet in Convention Hall, Kansas City, Feb. 9.

RUTHERFORD RESIGNS AS OREGON AGGIE COACH

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CORVALLIS, Ore., Jan. 25.—The resignation of R. B. Rutherford as coach of football and director of physical education at Oregon Agricultural College, was accepted today by the board of regents, effective when his contract expires, July 1, 1924.

Rutherford held the same position with Washington University of St. Louis before coming to Corvallis, and is a graduate of the University of Nebraska.

OLYMPIC SOCCER BODY TO MEET ON MONDAY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—A meeting of the Olympic Soccer committee has been called for Monday by Peter J. Peel, president of the United States Football Association, the governing soccer body of the country. Secretary Cahill of New York will attend and confer with W. R. Cummings of Chicago, the other committee member.

HARGRAVE AND DUNCAN SIGN RED CONTRACTS

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 25.—Catcher Hargrave and Outfielder Duncan, two of the three players who declared themselves for substantial increases in salary, having signed contracts, the Cincinnati Nationals now will devote attention to the bringing of Ed Roush into the fold.

College Pitcher Dies.

By the Associated Press.

TROY, N. Y., Jan. 25.—France L. Thuon, pitcher of the Syracuse University baseball team, died today at his home here after a month's illness. Death was due to the effects of gas poisoning sustained during the war. He was cited for bravery while serving in France with the 105th Infantry.

Stecher, Weak From High Fever, Set Record in Zbyszko Victory; Fall He Lost, Really Won for Him

Had Lung Congestion and Temperature of 103 Sunday and Was Under Surveillance of Physician Throughout Match—Punishment Given Zibby in First Fall Beat Him.

By John E. Wray.
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHEN Joe Stecher, of the python legs, squeezed the gigantic torso of Zbyszko into defeat in 13 minutes and 10 seconds in the second fall of their three-fall event at the Coliseum, Tuesday night, it was the quickest flop of the few ever registered against Zbyszko in 3000 matches. And only two persons knew the desperate conditions under which it was achieved—Joe and his physician.

That Stecher finally won the victory in the third fall, after himself being almost beaten, was due to an effort of will and a display of gameness that seldom is equaled. For Stecher entered the match that night following a temperature of 103 degrees, he having been under the constant attendance of Dr. C. M. Westerman since his arrival in St. Louis Sunday morning.

Dr. Westerman was called to attend Stecher Sunday at a downtown hotel immediately after the Omaha man had registered. Westernman tells his story as follows:

* * *

Had Chill; Lung Congested.

"I found Stecher suffering from a chill and lung congestion. This was followed by a temperature which reached 103 degrees during the day. At that time it seemed impossible he could enter the arena a few hours later for the desperate struggle he knew confronted him. He insisted that he could not afford to withdraw, that his money was up and that he might miss this chance.

His fever responded to treatment and Tuesday he was free from it. But beyond question he suffered severely from it. At noontime Tuesday I was doubtful whether it was advisable to let him go on; but as time wore on his splendid condition came to his rescue. He said he felt as good as ever.

"I warned him that the fever was bound to have had a bad effect and to have weakened him; but he insisted that he was going through with the contest.

Stecher Takes Long Chance.

"I told him he could, as far as his condition went; but that he was running a grave risk of defeat as his endurance was surely considerably impaired. Joe insisted and I accompanied him to the arena and attended him between rounds.

"He was not discouraged after being thrown in the first fall, but said he thought the old man (Zbyszko) was weakened and that he himself would win yet.

"That he came through victorious really is a tribute to his gameness and training. But for a time in the final fall, when the men battled 35 minutes, I gave up. When I saw Zbyszko almost touch his shoulders to the mat I thought Joe's strength had gone. But he never lost heart or courage and turned on Zibby at the moment when he seemed beaten and threw the Pole. It was a great test not only of physique, but of morale. I took him to his hotel and bedded him down and he was little the worse for his 70-minute struggle. When he left next day for Chicago he was himself completely."

* * *

Joe Had No Alibi.

It was characteristic of Stecher that he offered no explanation of his condition or the handicap he was under, before or after the contest.

Some different from the guy who begins to plant alibis for himself a week before a match.

* * *

Victory Out of Defeat.

Capt. Harries of Jefferson Barricks, a friend of Stecher's, says that Joe explained his action near the close of the first fall in holding a body scissors too long, with the result that he was downed.

"I saw what was coming," Stecher told Harries, "but took a chance. I wanted to punish the old man as long as I could and put him out of the running for the remainder of the match. I could possibly have escaped that first fall by a determined early effort. But I took the risk and kept squeezing his ribs. I lost the fall, but I won my point. The Old Man was so weak during the second fall that I flopped him in the shortest time he was ever put down in his life."

PIKERS ARRANGE TO PLAY 3 BASKETBALL GAMES AT COLISEUM

The unprecedented interest which has been aroused in the Washington University basketball team because of its remarkable showing in the Missouri Valley Conference race this season is demonstrated by the fact that the University authorities have engaged the Coliseum for the Oklahoma, Drake and Kansas Aggies games on Feb. 15, 16 and 27.

Athletic Director George Rider also deemed it advisable to get large quarters for the Kansas game and the Nebraska game, but the Coliseum had been previously engaged for the nights on which those teams are scheduled to appear here. Kansas and Nebraska will therefore face the Pikers either at Francis Gymnasium or on some larger floor, but not at the Coliseum.

The floor at the Coliseum will be especially prepared for basketball and new baskets will be constructed.

The move from Francis Gymnasium was made necessary by the fact that each week more persons are turned away from the doors than are accommodated. The gymnasium holds fewer than 2000 persons. The Coliseum can seat 8000.

WHALEY AND BENNETT SIGN WITH BROWNIES

Bill Whaley and Herschel Bennett, outfielders, have signed contracts with the Browns for 1924, it was announced today by Business Manager Bill Friel. Whaley was with the club during 1923. Bennett went on the training trip with the team last spring, but was sent to Tulsa of the Western League. He batted .241 with the Tulsa Club, and was recalled at the close of the campaign.

Wayne Wright, pitcher, sent his signed contract yesterday.

Vespers Play Millers.

A change in the schedule of the St. Louis Soccer League for Sunday brings the Vespers and Ben Millers together in the first game at High School Field, with the Scullins and Hoovers battling in the second. Originally the Vespers and Scullins were down to meet in Sunday's feature.

TWO PIKER REGULARS MAY NOT BE ABLE TO FACE GRINNELL TEAM

The Piker basketball team, which is putting up a great battle to maintain its hold on first place in the conference rating, will probably face the Grinnell College team at Francis gym tomorrow night without the services of Fritz Wagener, star forward and one of the flashiest players in the Valley.

Fritz was hurt in an accident last spring and the old injury has been troubling him again in recent practice sessions. It bothered him considerably in yesterday's workout and Coach White decided to take him to an osteopath this morning for a treatment. Even if Wagener is able to start against the Pioneers it is certain that he will be used in only a part of the game. Russ Seago, the Pikers' husky center, has also been ailing lately and was ordered to accompany Wagener to the bonesetter.

The strength of the Piker team, however, is not seriously threatened by the condition of these two men. Coach White has a number of first class utility men.

Wagener's place tomorrow will be taken by Ted Winkler or Martin Lyle. Both are capable players and will not lower the efficiency of the team.

Grinnell plays Missouri at Columbia tonight and will journey down here tomorrow afternoon. The Pikers are favored to win as they have already defeated the Pioneers this season. The game will start at 8:30.

Hoppe Will Ask Postponement of Horemans Match

Under the Rules, Third Challenge Contest Must Be Held in 60 Days.

Willie Hoppe, world's champion 18.2 balk line billiard player, is seeking a postponement of his title match against Edouard Horemans, the Belgian challenger, which under the rules must be played within 60 days.

Hoppe said today that he would demand that the match be postponed until the first or second week in April, and that he wanted to meet the Belgian star either in New York or Philadelphia.

"I have defended my title three times in 30 days and it is asking too much to expect me to play Horemans within 60 days," Hoppe said. "That would mean that I would have to play him about March 24."

"I have written the donors of the trophy asking for a postponement. One of my reasons is that—for the last match—that with Schaefer—the past week, I waived my right to the 60-day clause."

Horemans, who finished fourth in the international tournament at New York, is next challenger in the line to meet Hoppe and already has posted his forfeit.

Peterson Seeks Title Event.

It was learned today that the Hoppe-Horemans challenge match may be played in St. Louis. Charles Peterson, local billiard hall proprietor, make take over the affair. It was announced by Peterson that he had made efforts to get a suitable place in which to hold the event and was at present figuring on a downtown hotel ballroom. Peterson will confer with Hoppe today concerning bringing the match here.

Hoppe played a championship match here several years ago, with George Sutton, at Moolah Temple Hall. It was poorly attended.

Hoppe and Schaefer will appear in the first block of their series of exhibitions at Peterson's hall here this afternoon.

Match Opens Here Today.

Four hundred points of balkline billiards will be played this afternoon and another four hundred this evening, and two more such exhibitions will be held tomorrow.

Contrary to custom, Charles C. Peterson will not act as referee. It has been Pete's custom for many years to officiate in matches in which Hoppe appeared here.

Peterson expressed the opinion yesterday that the exhibitions here would be of a much higher order than the standard of play in Hoppe's two recent championship matches.

"The players will not be under the strain of playing for the world's title, for one thing," explained Pete. "They will go about their game with greater self-assurance. The mechanical conditions will be better, as well as the temperament of the players. The room will be smaller than at Chicago and, therefore, less affected by air currents.

"Whereas, in the two recent championship matches Hoppe's average was under 30 and the challenger's even worse, I expect to see an average of about 50 for each player during the two days' play here."

The seating accommodations in Peterson's exhibition room are limited to less than 200. The matches will start at 3 p. m. and 8 p. m. An admission fee will be charged.

St. Louis Women Swimmers Lose Dual Meet, 29-21

Miss Kranich of Detroit Wins Three Events and Finishes Second in One.

Miss Edwardina Kranich of Detroit was the individual star of the swimming meet between a team of picked girl swimmers from Detroit and a team of St. Louis girls at the Tower Grove Pool last night. The Detroit team won, 29 points to 21 and Miss Kranich scored 18 of her team's total by taking first place in the 50-yard dash, first in the 100-yard dash and the 50-yard breast stroke and coming in second in the 100-yard back stroke. She was also a member of the relay team.

St. Louis won only two firsts. Grace Stewart came in first in the 100-yard back stroke and the St. Louis relay team won.

It was said before the meet that those girls of the St. Louis team who showed ability would probably have a chance to go to Chicago next spring for the Olympic tryouts. Men who were active in coaching the girls said they had had but three nights of preliminary training for last night's meet because of the lack of a pool here and said that the showing of Grace Stewart, Arville Ressler, Anna Farrell and Josephine Hose was pleasing.

In addition to the contest for girls St. Louis men gave a fancy diving exhibition in which Harry Barringer and Tommy Callahan showed very well. In a 100-yard race for men Francis Stevens, Municipal champion, won easily in 59 3-5 seconds.

Barringer swam the 100-yard breast stroke for time and made the distance in 1 m 16 3-5 seconds. He is said to be one of the best young swimmers of the breast stroke developed in this vicinity for a number of years.

Miss Marion McCauley of St. Louis who was formerly swimming instructor for women at Columbia University, New York, gave an exhibition of fancy and trick swimming.

The Summaries.

50-YARD DASH — Edwardina Kranich, Detroit, first; Anna Farrell, St. Louis second; Arville Ressler, St. Louis third. Time 32 3-5s.

A positive, permanent cure guaranteed in every case of Piles by my gentle, mild methods, employed only by myself, and the result of 27 years' extensive practice in my specialty. The treatment of Piles, Fistula, Fissure, Ulcers, Etc.

CAN YOU AFFORD, IN THE FACE OF THE EVIDENCE OF THE MERITS OF MY TREATMENT, TO GO ON SICK AND SUFFERING, SPENDING MUCH MONEY, LOSING MUCH TIME, AND ENDURING THE GREAT INCONVENIENCE THAT IS THE LOT OF ANYONE WHO HAS THE PILES?

Mr. J. M. Beardslee's was one of the worst cases that ever came into my office. Today he is sound and well, although he had a very complicated case. Since I cured Mr. Beardslee he sent his cousin, Mr. C. H. R. Gupton, of Morley, Mo., to me and I cured him. He, too, had a bad case.

Morley, Mo., Nov. 6, 1923.

Dr. C. Matthew Coe,
501 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Dr. Coe:—

I came to you suffering from piles. You treated me for two weeks and I feel like a different man. You have cured me. My case was of 20 years' standing, and I can truthfully recommend your treatment to anyone suffering from this awful disease. My advice to anyone is not to put off being cured. You may refer anyone to me.

With many thanks, and kindest regards, I am

Yours truly,

You Are Safe; Your Car Is Safe—When You Use Polarine

THE PERFECT MOTOR OIL

Made in Five Grades

It is manufactured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

"It is better to lose a sale than to serve a customer with the wrong oil." This is the most emphatic instruction issued to service station attendants by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Standard Oil service station attendants never merely offer Polarine as the best oil—they fill your lubrication system with the correct grade of Polarine, because there is a right grade of Polarine oil for every motor.

N. B.—For recommendation of grades of Polarine to use in tractors and trucks, consult chart in any Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) station.

A sale of the wrong grade of Polarine would reflect not only upon the reputation of this Company but would do an injustice to the manufacturer of the car as well.

For all grades of Polarine are made to specification. The blue print of the engine lies side by side with the chemical formula in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) laboratory.

Always remember that it pays to ask, "Who made this oil?"

You cannot see the quality of a lubricating oil—you must take somebody's "say-so."

Polarine is manufactured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). The Company recommends Polarine for every type and make of car.

The Company is proud of its reputation and proud of its record of service and of the fact that 60% of the motors running today in the ten Middle Western States are lubricated with Polarine.

ADVANCES SCORED IN BROAD TRADE ON STOCK MARKET

U. S. Steel Common Prominent in Rise—Rails Active in Late Session—Bonds Active—Exchange Market Quiet.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Breaking away from concentration on issues which lately have been in the political limelight, traders in stocks extended to the buying side. Both new buying and short covering, was much in evidence and as a result the tone of the market was far better than it has been for some time. Old market leaders again were active and strong and ne whigh levels were reached by a number of stock such as eGneral Electric, Corn products and American Can. Steel common under the stimulus of dividend hopes reached the highest price at whic hit has sold in a year and, other steer shares advanced. Traders furthermore once more turned their attention to the rails, which have lain dormant and the brisk rail market was a feature of the afternoon. Bonds were active and firm, with convertible issues and liberties prominent. Call money hel dat 4 per cent throughout.

Exchange Market Quiet.

"Trading in foreign exchanges was inactive, but rates held fairly steady, the market here reflected to a certain extent the moderate improvement at London which has been noted since the actual change in government. On the other side of the water securities and exchange markets have been surprisingly indifferent to the railway men's strike from the start. Grave as its possibilities undoubtedly are observers in London give chief credit for the improvement in securities and foreign exchange however, to the readjustment of bearish speculative positions. Sterling was ¼ of a cent lower at $4.22 and Italian lire were ½ a point lower at 4.44½c. French francs on the other hand advanced ⅛ to 4.49, and virtually all the other leading currencies were slightly better.

"Another two-sided cotton market was had. Trading was active and prices fluctuated widely. Liverpool prices were a little better than had been expected, and following a weak opening futures were bid up briskly until the May option touched 32.90c. At that point the market ran into considerable selling, both for short account and for the account of longs who purchased recently lower levels. Selling continued throughout the day on the bulges and at a late price of 32.40c May cotton was 26 points lower. Week end statistics were regarded as moderately bullish.

Reserve System Report.

"Aside from a further contraction in note circulation, amounting to $24,500,000 the weekly statemet of the Federal Reserve system reveals relatively small changes in the condition of the country's reserve banks as a whole. The rate of do the men who hold the matches here crease in note circulation has tiecable in the case of total earning assets who decline for the weak amounted to only $5,500,000 although teh reserve ratio increased only fractionally. Rising from 80.1 to 80.4 per cent it reached the figure at which it stood in April, 1917. The condition of the reserve banks indicates that the country is still well supplied with money and that demand for credit continues slack as compared with a year ago."

Financial Notes

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—A stock dividend of 33 1-3 per cent has been proposed by the Brooklyn City Railroad Company. It announced today that it would apply to the transit commission for authority to issue $4,000,000 additional capital stock, which it would issue to stockholders who had foregone dividends in greater amount in the past.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Net income of the Great Northern Railway Co. for 1923 is estimated in the preliminary report of the President at $18,000,000 as compared with $10,856,073 in 1922. The earnings are equivalent to $7.22 a share on the $249,477,150 outstanding stock.

Over-subscription of the Canadian National Railways $50,000,000 bond issue offered in Toronto, came as a surprise to New York bankers, since Canada only within the last year or so has been able to handle such large loans without outside aid. Local banks which sought the business announced that they purchased a nominal amount of the securities for deposit in their own banks.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.—The net railway operating income for the Southern Pacific Co. for 1923 was $54,278,023, an increase of $8,005,177 over 1922, it was announced by the company. The net revenue from railway operations for the year was $80,038,048, an increase of $11,187,103.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Public offering was made today of $32,000,000 Federal Intermediate Credit Banks 4½ per cent debentures, due Feb. 1, 1924-25, to yield 4.50 to 4.60 per cent. Funds derived from the sale will be used to provide additional credit facilities for the agricultural and livestock industries of the United States. Total outstanding debentures of the credit banks on Feb. 1 will be $90,000,000.

Lead, Zinc and Copper

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Copper quiet; electrolytic, spot and nearby, 12¾; futures, 12¾ @ 13. Tin firm; spot and nearby, 50.12 @ 50.25; futures, 49.50. Iron steady; prices unchanged. Lead steady; spot, 8.25 @ 8.60. Zinc steady; East St. Louis, spot and nearby, 6.85.

Steel common under the stimulus of dividend hopes reached the highest price at whic hit has sold in a year and other steer shares advanced. Traders furthermore once more turned their attention to the rails, which have lain dormant and the brisk rail market was a feature of the afternoon. Bonds were active and firm, with convertible issues and liberties prominent. Call money held dat 4 per cent throughout.

Exchange Market Quiet.

"Trading in foreign exchanges was inactive, but rates held fairly steady, the market here reflected to a certain extent the moderate improvement at London which has been noted since the actual change in government. On the other side of the water securities and exchange markets have been surprisingly indifferent to the railway men's strike from the start. Grave as its possibilities undoubtedly are observers in London give chief credit for the improvement in securities and foreign exchange however, to the readjustment of bearish speculative positions. Sterling was ¼ of a cent lower at $4.22 and Italian lire were ½ a point lower at 4.44½c. French francs on the other hand advanced ½ to 4.49, and virtually all the other leading currencies were slightly better.

"Another two-sided cotton market was had. Trading was active and prices fluctuated widely. Liverpool prices were a little better than had been expected, and following a weak opening futures were bid up briskly until the May option touched 33.90c. At that point the market ran into considerable selling, both for short account and for the account of longs who purchased recently lower levels. Selling continued throughout the day on the bulges and at a late price of 33.40c May cotton was 36 points lower. Week end statistics were regarded as moderately bullish.

Reserve System Report.

"Aside from a further contraction in note circulation, amounting to $34,500,000 the weekly statemet of the Federal Restrve system reveals relatively small changes in the condition of the country's reserve banks as a whole. The vrate of dethe men who hold the matches here crease in note circulation has ticeable in the case of total earning assets who decline for the weak amounted to only $5,800,000 although teh reserve ratio increased only fractionally. Rising from 80.1 to 80.4 per cent it reached the figure at which it stood in April, 1017. The condition of the reserve banks indicates that the country is still well supplied with money and that demand for credit continues slack as compared with a year ago.

Financial Notes

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—A stock dividend of 33 1-3 per cent has been proposed by the Brooklyn City Railroad Company. It announced today that it would apply to the transit commission for authority to issue $4,000,000 additional capital stock, which it would issue to stockholders who had foregone dividends in greater amount in the past.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Net income of the Great Northern Railway Co. for 1923 is estimated in the preliminary report of the president at $18,000,000 as compared with $10,856,673 in 1922. The earnings are equivalent to $7.22 a share on the $249,477,150 outstanding stock.

Over-subscription of the Canadian National Railways $50,000,000 bond issue offered in Toronto, came as a surprise to New York bankers, since Canada only within the last year or so has been able to handle such large loans without outside aid. Local banks which sought the business announced that they purchased a nominal amount of the securities for deposit in their own boxes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.—The net railway operating income for the Southern Pacific Co. for 1923 was $54,228,023, an increase of $8,005,177 over 1922, it was announced by the company. The net revenue from railway operations for the year was $80,038,046, an increase of $11,188,833.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Public offering was made today of $3,000,000 Federal Intermediate Credit Banks 4½ per cent debentures, due Feb. 1, 1924-25, to yield 4.50 to 4.60 per cent. Funds derived from sale will be used to provide additional credit facilities for the agricultural and livestock industries of the United States. Total outstanding debentures of the credit banks on Feb. 1 will be $30,500,000.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Raw sugar was firm early today at 6.65 duty paid for Cubas, with sales reported of 50,000 bags for January and February shipment to a local refiner.

Further buying by Cuban interests and a light demand from outside sources caused another upward movement in the raw sugar futures market. Prices at midday showed net advances of 5 to 6 points.

The demand for refined sugar was active at 8.25c to 8.60c for fine granulated.

Dry Goods Market Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Cotton goods were less active today both in gray goods and sheetings and some price recessions were noted. Quotations on print cloth got back to 10¼ cents for 64 by 60s and 12 cents for 68 by 72s, after being a quarter and a half cent higher respectively Thursday.

Weakness in the Yokohama silk markets sent quotations here down 10 to 15 cents a pound. Buying was light.

BOSTON WOOL MARKET.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—Business slackened in the Summer Street raw wool markets today to await further developments, when it was learned the American Woolen Company's heavyweight goods opening had been deferred to Jan. 31. Sales of some wool held on consignment were reported, however, among the sales being one of fine, medium and half blood Montana wool at 51 and 52 cents. Ohio quarter bloods are held at 54 cents against 52 offered. Receipts Thursday were 1799 bags of domestic and 308 bales of foreign wool.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 25.—Grain futures were down on the local market, corn leading the moderate reaction. Liverpool wheat closed ⅝d to 1⅛d higher.

The market closed lower, with exception of September wheat. A factor in wheat was a report that France had canceled some small purchases of wheat. It was estimated that sales of Canadian wheat to Europe today totaled more than 1,000,000 bushels.

In the local cash grain market soft wheat was steady to 1c higher. Receipts were light and demand fair. Hard wheat was quiet and steady. Corn was steady to ½c higher. Demand was fair. Oats were ½c to 1½c higher. Demand was fair.

The early corn market was fractionally lower and affected wheat, despite ⅝d to ¾d higher afternoon Liverpool wheat cable bid. There was talk of increased delivery of corn from farm.

May wheat opened at $1.10¼. July wheat $1.07 to $1.06¼. May corn 81¼c. July corn 81⅝c. September corn 81½c.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 649 cars of wheat, compared with 547 a week ago and 870 last year. Minneapolis received 199 cars, Duluth 51 and Winnipeg 399.

Local wheat receipts, which were 57,200 bu, compared with 48,100 a week ago and 78,000 last year, included 26 cars local and 18 through. Corn receipts, which were 180,600 bu, compared with 88,200 a week ago and 92,300 last year, included 85 cars local and 34 through. Oats receipts which were 80,000 bu, compared with 118,000 a week ago and 106,000 last year included 28 cars local and 12 through. Hay receipts were 32 cars local and 13 through.

Primary receipts of wheat were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 615,000 bushels. Corn receipts were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 1,248,000 bushels. Oats receipts were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 682,000 bushels.

CORN PRICES RANGE DOWN ON THE CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Wheat held well for a time today, but after midsession pressure increased and prices dropped. The start was steady to a shade higher, owing to the strength in Liverpool as well as in sterling exchange. The bulge brought some commission house pressure, but after a decline at last night's close prices stubbornly resisted all attempts to cause further depreciation. Shortly before midday there was pressure from a local professional that found the market bare of support and prices eased under this selling. Seaboard reported a good demand for export wheat in nearby positions. Clearances from the Southern hemisphere show a good increase.

Local cash sales were 20,000 bushels wheat, 34,000 corn, 26,000 oats, and 17,000 barley. Seaboard reported 200,000 bushels wheat taken for export.

Wheat closed ⅛c to ½c lower. May $1.09, July $1.07⅝, Sept. $1.06⅝.

Corn suffered a short reaction. At the start there was free selling by commission house longs to secure profits. After a fractional dip there was buying by overnight shorts. Receivers report that some increase in consignment notices and also offers to arrive. There is less likelihood of offerings to arrive increasing so long as values continue their upward trend, the country shipper finding it more profitable to consign this corn. Shippers reported their offers to the East ½c over other markets.

Corn closed ⅜c to ⅝c lower, May 80⅛c to 80c, July 80⅝c, Sept. 81¼c to 81⅜c.

Oats also suffered some reaction because of realizing sales. Shipping demand was slow.

Oats closed ⅜c to ⅝c lower, May 48½c, July 46c, Sept. 43½c.

Provisions were lower. Selling was by Eastern longs and by smaller packers.

Lard closed 12½c to 17½c lower and ribs 2½c to 5c lower.

PRICE MOVEMENT IRREGULAR ON THE COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The cotton market showed a steady undertone during today's early trading, because of relatively steady Liverpool cables and bullish overnight spot advices from the South. Demand was not active or general, however, and the price movement was rather irregular. Opening steady at a decline of 10 to an advance of 11 points, active months sold about seven to 12 points net higher, with March advancing from 33.43c to 33.60c and May from 33.63c to 33.87c. Today was the last January notice day. Notices representing about 3800 bales were report- and May from 33.63 to 33.87c. Today might be issued before midday. January sold at 33.40c early and then reacted to 33.30c, but there was very little business in that position.

After selling up to 33.68c for March and 33.89c for May, or 14 to 15 points net higher, the market weakened under renewed liquidation, and a few stop orders were uncovered. March broke to 33.32c, and May to 33.55c, around midday, making net declines of about 20 to 21 points. New Orleans was a seller and weakness in the market there seemed to have an unsettling effect on sentiment locally.

The last sale of January contract which expired at midday was at 33.10c, or about 25 points under March. The general market turned easier during the early afternoon on reports that Southern mills were selling hedges here against stocks of goods and prices broke to 32.95c for March and 33.25c for May, or 50 to 58 points net lower. The market was 10 or 15 points up from these figures around 2 o'clock on covering.

HOG RECEIPTS ARE FAIR, PRICES STEADY TO LOWER

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Jan. 25.—Receipts today, estimated: Cattle and calves, 1000; hogs, 17,000; sheep, 500; horses and mules, 150.

CATTLE—Friday's market ruled about steady with the week's decline, although some holdover steers were not sold early. Fresh receipts were light; in fact, hardly enough to make a market. Sales included a drove of lightweight steers at $8.50, a string of steers and heifers at $8.15, and some common steers and yearlings at $6.25 to $6.25. Veal calves were steady to 25c higher, with the best cashing at $13 and $13.25.

Quotations: Beef steers, range $5.50 to $12; light yearlings, range $3 to $12; butcher cows, range $3.50 to $7; cutter cows, range $2.50 to $3.25; canner cows range $2 to $2.25; bologna bulls, range $4 to $5.25; stocker and feeder steers, bulk, $4 to $6.25.

HOGS—Under a fair run of 17,000 hogs estimated, the market today ruled steady to 5c lower on the opening rounds. Best butcher hogs averaging from 190 to 230 lbs. sold early in a range of $7.25 to $7.30, the latter figure representing the top of the early trade. Light hogs were about steady, the 160 to 180 lb. averages clearing generally at $7.15 to $7.25. Pigs were about steady at $6 to $7.05 for the 130 to 150 lb. kinds, 110 to 130 lb. offerings selling from $5.50 to $6. There were not enough sales made of the light pigs and peewees to form a true criterion of this class early. Sows were steady at $6.35 to $6.40 mostly. Stags sold from $4.50 to $5.

In the closing period hogs were steady to strong with best time previous steady. One load brought $11.40. Most transactions at $11.30 to $11.35.

SHEEP—Opening trade in sheep and lambs was steady today under a light supply of 500 head estimated. Packers paid up to $13.25 early for native lambs, a load of medium-quality Texas lambs going at $13.

Good to choice lambs are quotable at $13.25 to $13.75, medium to good kinds at $12.75 to $13.25 and plain to medium grades at $12.25 to $13.75. Good to choice mutton ewes at $7 to $8, medium to good at $6 to $7 and plain to medium at $4.50 to $6. Choppers and bucks at $2.50 to $3.50 and canners at $1 to $2.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

THANK YOU.—The large copper cent dated 1824 is worth from 3c to 25c.

F. M.—You can obtain the addresses of cooking schools by consulting the city directory.

J. D. H.—Both the half dollar dated 1829 and the one dated 1831 are worth 50c to 55c.

W. H. E.—Call the theater for the information regarding the play in question.

O. P.—Take the coin in question to a coin dealer in order to ascertain its value.

H. C. C.—The United Railway's street car No. 1206 is made of steel; it was not formerly a trailer.

C. E.—The St. Louis city jail has a laundry which is operated by prison help.

BEN.—The small cents must be in new condition to command a premium; the small cent dated 1858, Flying Eagle, is worth from 1c to 5c.

DOROTHY. — The dime dated 1861 is worth from 25c to 30c; the penny dated 1833 is worth from 1c to 20c; the nickel 5-cent piece dated 1868 is worth from 5c to 15c.

JACK K.—Ring W. Lardner, the writer, lives at Great Neck, N. Y., and has an office located in the Bell Syndicate, 63 Park Row, New York City, N. Y.

RYAN.—A Valentine entertainment follows: Two dozen couples make a very goodly company of young folks for a pleasant little evening; therefore, send out invitations to that number. The cards of invitation might have on them, either in India ink or water colors, an arrow-pierced heart, a whole heart or a broken one, even a cluster of them, like fishes on a string, according to the pleasure of the hostess. For each of the 12 young ladies invited select a role that she will impersonate; for instance, we will say that the 12 characters to be presented are Queen of Hearts, Gypsy, nun, bicycle girl, summer girl, colonial girl, poster girl, widow, old maid, trained nurse, Columbia and Valentine. Number 12 can be either a sentimental or a comic character. If the latter, a good deal of amusement may be derived by getting a younger brother or some mischevious boy to represent this character. Have the young ladies gather at the home of the hostess somewhat earlier than the men present themselves, and when the latter have assembled in the parlors, pass a tray around to them containing a dozen cards, on each of which is written a couplet. These couplets are suggestive of the roles the young ladies play, and each gentleman may select such a couplet as he sees fit. When all the cards have been taken, the young men in rotation read aloud the couplet each has chosen, and after reading of the couplet the one representing it is brought into the parlor by the hostess and introduced to the reader, who has thus chosen her as his Valentine. Among the pleasant features of the supper a "Valentine cake" may be introduced with good effect. A nicely iced cake, decorated with candy hearts having sentimental mottoes on them, should be divided into 24 slices before it is brought to the table. In the slices for the young girls to draw make a slit with the sharp blade of a knife, and insert into the opening a slip of paper on which is written the name of some young man who is present. In those slices the men are to draw are such articles as denote the sort of wife Fate has chosen to be each one's partner for life. Thus, a silver coin signifies wealth, a scrap of silk, a fashionable wife, a penny, poverty; a tiny spoon, a good housekeeper; a pen, a literary woman; a small silver heart, a marriage for love; a small brush, an artistic wife; a tiny mirror, a vain woman; a piece of crepe, a widow, etc. First a young lady chooses a slice of cake, then the man whose name she draws selects one and learns the kind of life-partner he is to have. Much merriment may be derived from such a cake. A leap-year touch may be added to the party by asking the young ladies to call for their escorts and see them home.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

C. F. S.—The Government would not have to make good the loss as stated.

OLD READER.—Two witnesses are necessary when an application for naturalization is brought before the court.

K. K.—Suit on the liquor debt as stated would be barred after five years in Illinois, unless you have been out of the State.

G. L.—Two per cent per month is the highest rate of interest which pawnbrokers can legally charge in the State of Missouri.

OLD READER.—Any suit on the doctor's bill is barred after five years have elapsed, provided that you have not been out of the State during that period.

THANK YOU. — (1) The Missouri soldiers' bonus is exempt from income tax. (2) The interest coupons on the Third Liberty Loan $50 bond are for $1.06 and $1.97, every fourth coupon being for the latter amount. Thus $2.12 interest is received one year, and $2.13 the next.

I THANK YOU.—If you are paying off a deed of trust on your own property, it is not necessary to have the title examined. If you are buying a deed of trust on some one else's property, the title should be examined before you buy.

"$13."—If you include your 16-year-old son's income in your own return, you can make a $400 deduction for him. If you do not include his income in your return, you cannot make any deduction for him, and he would have to make a separate return, if his income is more than $1000.

REKAN.—The hotel can be held responsible, provided that the articles lost were not money, jewelry, gold or silver. The law provides that in the case of money, jewelry and articles of silver or gold manufacture, and the like, the hotel shall not be responsible if it posts notices in all rooms, reciting the law, and keep a safe for the deposit of such articles by guests.

OLD SUBSCRIBER. — (1) The wife does not automatically acquire a part of his wealth by reason of marrying him. She does acquire an inchoate right of dower in his real estate, however. (2) If she obtained a divorce on the ground of his misconduct she could obtain alimony. (3) Either party can sue for divorce as soon after the marriage as he or she acquires a ground for the divorce. If the ground is desertion, the absence must continue for one year before suit for divorce can be filed.

Truth in Advertising

The value of advertising is in direct ratio to the amount of READER-CONFIDENCE it possesses. That is entirely founded on its quality of TRUTH.

The National Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers and the Better Business Bureau and the Advertising Club of St. Louis, in all of which the Post-Dispatch holds membership, aim to eliminate fraudulent and misleading advertising. This newspaper will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement which does not conform to the highest standards of honesty. (c8)

Studebaker Sp. 6 Tour.	890	650	Oldsmobile Touring	600	300
Moon Touring	790	550	Oakland Touring	550	315

These low prices have been made possible by sacrificing the margin of profit we have on the new Studebakers.

We do not have to buy our used cars cash money. We get them by trading on new Studebakers.

We can sell you a GOOD used car cheaper than any used car dealer in town.

We can sell you a BETTER USED CAR for the same money than any used car dealer.

We could give you a used car and it would cost us nothing. Come in and see if we are not almost doing it.

We have been selling new Studebakers and used cars for 12 years and have maintained a reputation for HONEST DEALING, TRUTHFUL ADVERTISING and SATISFIED CUSTOMERS by the thousands. Easy payments.

"PUDGY" DUNN HELD AFTER DETROIT KILLING

St. Louis Gangster Said to Admit Shooting—Belleville Woman Also Taken.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

DETROIT, Mich. Jan. 25.—"Pudgy" Dunn, a St. Louis police character and gangster, was arrested here today after the fatal shooting of George Kelly.

Kelly was shot dead on the front steps of a residence. Dunn, according to policemen, was found crouching in the yard behind the house. The police say Dunn admitted shooting Kelly, saying he fired in self-defense.

Two women were taken from the residence, and held as witnesses. One said she was Florence Higgins, 24 years old, of Belleville, Ill., and the other said she was May Edwards, 30.

Dunn Once Escaped from Prison at Joliet, Ill.

John J. Dunn was arrested in St. Louis in connection with investigation of several gang murders, and in January, 1919, was turned over to penitentiary officials at Joliet, Ill., who wanted him for having violated a parole from a life sentence for murder.

He escaped later from Joliet, but he is not now wanted by the Illinois authorities, as the case in which he was convicted, based on the murder of Harry Koch in Chicago, was stricken from the court docket some time after his escape. Koch was a former St. Louis gangster.

Dunn's brother, "Cherries" Dunn, was shot and killed in a gang fight in the old Typo Press Club, then at 712 Pine street, in September, 1916, and when, a few days later, "Young Jack O'Brien," a prize fighter, whose real name was Harry Romani, was shot and killed in a club on Twelfth street, "Pudgy" Dunn was questioned about it, but no evidence was found against him.

ACTION TO COMPEL SHOWING OF LEVEE BOARD'S RECORDS

Mayor of East St. Louis and Two Others File Petition as Taxpayers.

Petition for a writ of mandamus to force officers of the East Side Levee and Sanitary District to permit an investigator employed by the city of East St. Louis to examine books and records of the district, to ascertain its present financial condition, was filed in the East St. Louis City Court yesterday by Mayor M. M. Stephens, John Drury Sr. and Robert Sikking, as taxpayers.

The petition is based upon the alleged refusal of Martin D. Baker, president, and Frank P. Brigham, secretary, of the Levee Board, to permit examination of the books, although the law passed in 1907 creating the board, provides that its books and records shall at all reasonable times be open for inspection by taxpayers or others interested.

As told in the Post-Dispatch Sunday, when filing of the petition was forecast, Mayor Stephens has said that 60 per cent of the revenue of the Levee Board came from East St. Louis, and there has been no investigation of its records since it was created.

Two members of the Levee Board, Albert Meintz and William Rothe, have said they disapprove of the attitude of the president and welcome an investigation.

RELIEF MEETING TONIGHT

St. Louisans, who will participate in the campaign to raise $200,000 for relief of starving children in Germany will gather at Hotel Statler at 6 o'clock this evening to begin the soliciting of funds. It is expected that about 500 persons will be present.

The speakers will include Archbishop Glennon, Lon O. Hocker, and Anton Lang, who portrays the part of "Christ" in the Oberammergau Passion Play. Lang will tell of the condition among the starving children.

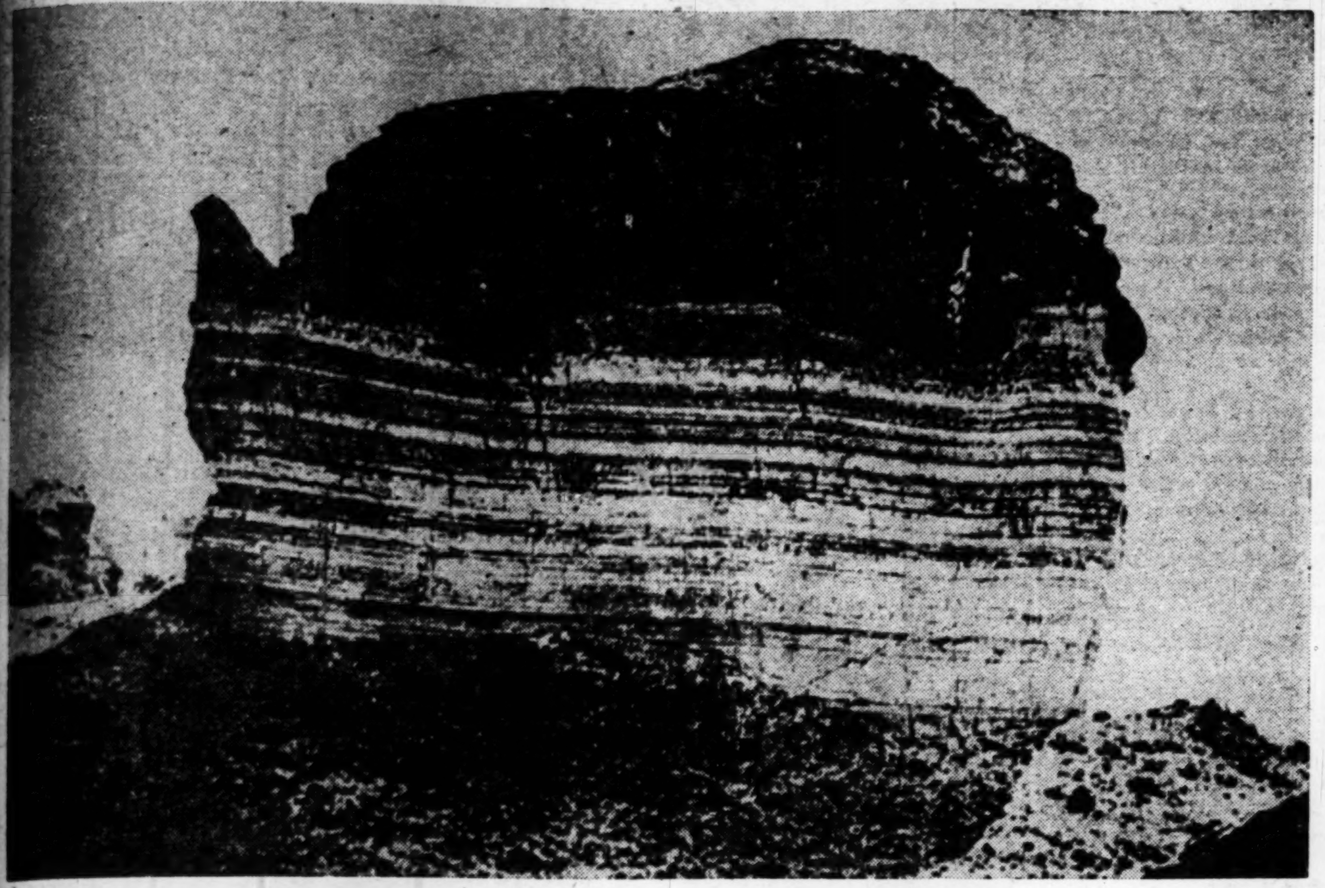
Principal Persons in the Stirring Teapot Dome Drama Now Unfolding in Washington



Rock formation that gives the lease its name. Standing on the summit of this reserve, this rock is shaped like a huge teapot.

ARCHIBALD ROOSEVELT

It was he who gave the drama of "Teapot Dome" its punch by testifying that he became convinced that the lease of the naval reserve had not been properly acquired, and had resigned before anything would be revealed that might stain his reputation by involving the company by which he was employed in such a deal. Young Roosevelt testified that Sinclair's private secretary, Wahlberg, congratulated him on getting out of the organization "as you have a name to protect." Roosevelt said he thereupon asked Wahlberg if Secretary Fall had received payments for the lease. "Well, someone may have made loans to Secretary Fall," Wahlberg replied, adding that he had canceled checks for $68,000 that had been paid to the foreman of Fall's ranch. Wahlberg said Roosevelt misunderstood him, as he said "6 or 8 cows, instead of 68 thousand."

ALBERT B. FALL

Former Senator from New Mexico and former Secretary of the Interior in President Harding's Cabinet, who, in the spring of 1922, without conferring with the President and without making any public announcement of the fact—"secretly," as Senator Caraway of Arkansas called it—gave to Harry Sinclair and his associates in the oil business, a 50-year lease on the Teapot Dome naval reserve that had been set aside by President Wilson as a source of supply of oil for the navy. It is evidence that Fall, who had been in great financial distress, suddenly came into possession of wealth. Now, Edward Doheny of California, beneficiary of the great Elk Hill reserve concession, also made by Fall, testified yesterday afternoon that he loaned Fall the $100,000 with which he bought a new ranch adjoining his old one in New Mexico.

HARRY SINCLAIR AND HIS WIFE SAILING FOR EUROPE

This photograph was made aboard ship a few days ago, when Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair sailed out of New York harbor for Europe. Archibald Roosevelt, in his testimony to the Senate telling why he resigned from Sinclair's company by which he had been employed for three years, suggested that Sinclair had sailed as a result of the Teapot Dome revelations.

COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Assistant Secretary of the Navy, to whom Archibald Roosevelt told the details of his conversation with Wahlberg, and who urged Archibald to go before the Senate Committee and tell everything. Later, to avoid a misunderstanding and to check Wahlberg's statements, Archibald called him up on the telephone with Theodore listening in on an extension wire. "There can be no doubt that Wahlberg said $68,000!" said Col. Roosevelt.

EDWIN DENBY

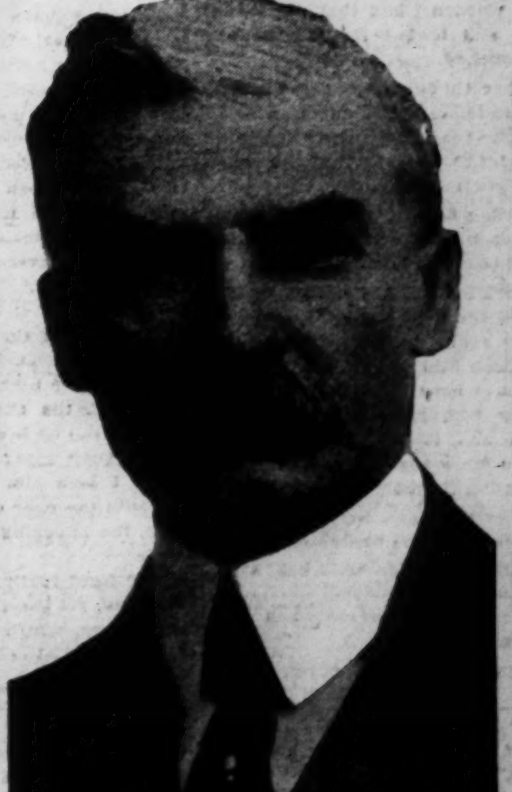
Secretary of the Navy, who testified that he approved the plan to lease the Teapot Dome reserve "as a matter of routine." He said Secretary Fall had recommended the lease, and he himself thought it was a good thing. This testimony was given at the early part of the hearing before the revelation of Fall's sudden wealth were made. Denby also said he approved the Elk Hill reserve lease to Edward Doheny in the same way.

COL. W. H. ZEVELY

Sinclair's personal attorney and friend, after whom Sinclair named his great race horse, Zev. Archibald Roosevelt testified that G. D. Wahlberg, personal confidential secretary of Sinclair, told him that he gave stocks and bonds to Zevely, under Sinclair's instructions, of the value of $75,000 about the time that the lease was signed. A friend of Zevely testified that this was a loan to Zevely, and that Zevely bought a house with the money.

EDWARD B. McLEAN

Owner of the Washington Post and the Cincinnati Enquirer, which McLean inherited from his father, John R. McLean. It is said in Washington that the McLeans were social mentors of the Hardings, and that McLean was President Harding's closest friend as well as the friend of all the Harding Cabinet. McLean testified that he made a loan of $100,000 to Fall. Later, McLean testified that Fall had returned this check for $100,000, with the statement that he had obtained the money from another source.



SEN. THOMAS J. WALSH OF MONTANA

Who, as a Democratic member of the committee investigating oil leases, has been active in developing the Teapot Dome revelations.

The Fir and the Palm

—A Continued Story—

By PRINCESS BIBESCO

SYNOPSIS.

Helen, with her husband, Cyril (Lord Horsham), arrives at the Horsham country home, one of England's famous country houses. Cyril is passionately in love with his wife but she is unaware of it. When he married her he had wanted her to throw herself into his arms and instead she had walked up his marble staircase. Cyril was over 40 when he married. He found Helen living with her father, who was a gambler, in a pension in Italy.

Helen has called on her new neighbors, the Baldwins, for the first time. She has preside at a charity bazar given on the Baldwins' estate. John Baldwin had acquired an immense fortune during the war. They have a young son still in school. Their nephew, Toby Ross, lives in a small house on the Baldwin estate.

Cyril's mother comes to Helen's Court for a visit. Helen, at Cyril's suggestion, invites Toby to dinner to meet her. Helen finds herself intensely interested in Toby. She goes to his cottage where she has dinner alone with him.

Helen gives a house party in the country. Christopher Tyldesley, a life-long friend of Cyril's, is one of the guests. He is in love with Helen. Toby comes over for the dance which Helen gives the first night of the house party. He kisses Helen before he leaves.

Later Helen goes up to London for the season. Cyril joins Christopher in Scotland for a week's shooting. Helen goes back to the country. She and Toby spend a delightful week riding, walking and dining together. When Cyril returns to Helen's Court, Toby goes up to London. He meets Helen's friend, Selina, there. Toby decides to go to Thibet.

INSTALLMENT XXXIV.

HELEN'S CODE.

PERHAPS, thought, Cyril, in his rigorous suppression of his own appetite he had starved her. Only it was difficult suddenly to change one's manner. He must begin by degrees, gently, so that she should become gradually able to make the demands on him which he hoped would ultimately prove unlimited.

Thinking these things, he pressed her arm to him and, smiling down at her, "Helen," he murmured, and her name sheathed in his low, resonant whisper, was a red hot iron on her exposed nerves. She realized desperately that she couldn't bear it for one more moment.

"Cyril," she said, conscious that her voice was far too pleading, "will you leave me to sit on this tree trunk for a little? I feel so dizzy."

"But——"

"No, please. I would rather be alone," and then, with a faint, rather tremulous smile, "you aren't hurt, are you?"

He lifted her hand to his lips. Then he raised his hat and walked on. The little touch of formality caught a tiny bit of her sense of humor.

But then, like a dizzy person whose eyes try to cling to some definite point, she forced herself to examine everything around her with minute, exact care. She looked at the sponge-like green and gold moss and the worn velvet over which they had been walking; she saw a scarlet toadstool flecked with white paint under which a little emerald frog had taken shelter; she watched the red gold evening air steal thief-like through the dark, tangled thickets to dissolve into pale sunlight whenever it reached an open space. And all the time she knew that in a moment she would begin to think and that the evening itself would splinter into the raging turmoil of her thoughts.

As if to introduce the subject into her mind in an orderly way, as it might be a butler announcing a guest, she said out loud to herself, "Cyril loves me." But if she expected the bare announcement to force the doors of her attention she was mistaken. As if her life depended on it she was watching the little frog leap about with gay irrelevance, and when he disappeared her mind wandered to a day years ago when, leaving her father and the landlady in the middle of an altercation which was apparently being decided purely vocally, she had wandered to the little shop window of which lay a shiny blue wooden box inlaid with cream and rose color. For this box she had yearned with the passionate concentration of childhood, though with the equally unerring fatalism of a child she had known that it would never belong to her. How she had wanted things in these days—pretty clothes and laces and soft melting furs, gentle voices and welcoming looks and a corner she could call her own—and here she was 10 years later, pearls dripping under her dress, Cyril's huge sapphire engagement ring on her hand, the beauty of Helen's court behind her, hidden only by the beauty of the beech trees, and yet it seemed happiness would ever be represented by that little wooden box that she had loved and longed for and never even touched.

As her thoughts wandered with a philosophic detachment which was alike the evasion and the solution of her own particular problem, Cyril returned.

"Feeling better?" he asked, with that touch of the casual which is often the only real tact.

"Much better," she smiled. Then, because thoughts are less worrying—less real, perhaps—when you turn them into words:

"I have been thinking of a little wooden box, blue it was with a cream and rose colored pattern. Do you know the sort one finds on the Italian lakes?"

"I know."

"I wanted it so badly—so badly. I used to go every day to look at it—a kind of pilgrimage."

"Yes. Every person has her Lourdes."

"Lourdes without cures. The really great faith which doesn't need a miracle."

"Did you ever get your box?"

"No."

"Why didn't you ask your father for it? He would have given it to you."

"Yes, of course he would have. But even if he had paid for it it would still have represented some other debt—some unpaid one. I couldn't let my box be that, could I?"

"I suppose not. Not you—you incurable moralist."

"I? I have no moral code at all, in the strict sense."

"I wonder what would break it, your code, your iron code."

They were walking into the sunset. Suddenly the thoughts that she had been meaning to think overwhelmed her with a surging rush. Her code? What was her code? Surely it had always been to try not to hurt. Nothing else. No artificial lines of demarcation. No arbitrary inhibitions. An intuitive route without a map, an uncharted voyage without a destination or even a point of departure, guided only by the compass of other people's sensibilities. Wasn't it pure arrogance that had made her suppose that her imagination would be a sufficient guide through life? Reliable and footsure and patient?

Of course, it had worked during those years when, with an untouched heart, her sympathy and insight had had free play. It had been easy to be unselfish when her self had been asleep, to be understanding and helpful from the base of her absolute serenity.

And all of the time with her imagination undistorted by personal dilemmas the cardinal fact of her husband's passion had never once dawned on her! Not until she had fallen in love herself had she considered the possibility that his quiet, almost impersonal devotion was not an inherent coldness but a triumphant victory of self-control. Even when the first glimmerings of the truth had struck her she had instantly discarded them as the fevered ravings of an inflamed fancy.

The irony of it bit into her like an acid. And through all of her heart searchings, her bitter self-reproach, her piling up of self-indictments, the question that battered at the back of her head was, "Does Toby care? Will he mind when I give him up?" Though she shut the door of her thoughts to it, the knocking went on all the same.

Her head really was aching unbearably, yet she thanked the physical pains, which were, she felt, better than the thoughts which would take their place. On the same principle she went down to dinner feeling that a tete-a-tete with Cyril would be less unbearable than a tete-a-tete with herself, with her mind a perpetual charge of incoherent cavalry.

"How tired you look! Do you think it is a little touch of the sun?"

HOME DUTIES FOR CHILDREN

By Wm. A. McKeever.

Noted Lecturer and Authority on Educational and Sociological Subjects.

GIVE every child something regular to do about the house. Begin when they are young, make the first duties light and fitting for the tiny hands, keep up an atmosphere of cheerfulness, never permitting a child to speak ill of necessary work—thus I might summarize the household philosophy of the mother of two boys and two girls ranging in age from 7 to 13.

Including the father, there are six in this family, and they occupy a modest apartment. The father's income is also modest. Many a family would imagine they were starving if they had to live on it.

However, these six are different. They are all contributors to the well-being of the whole, have learned to save every scrap and to make every dollar count, and are manifesting character in all things pertaining to their daily lives.

It is the theory of this mother that boys of the younger grades should be assigned their quota of housework the same as girls, that the work itself should be considered as part of a normal education. It would surprise the usual mother—and I hope it would set her thinking—to learn that the two boys of the model home here considered can wash dishes, make up the beds and darn stockings as well as their sisters.

"It is my purpose to have the boys continue with this housework till they are adolescent, and then to get them something of a business nature for their part time employment," said the mother."

Now, there are two big ideas involved in the household philosophy of this mother, and we might all well assist in making them universal.

The first is that the duties of childhood should be so carefully and happily introduced into the every-day conduct of the young that no one will ever think of his work as either unnatural or something imposed as a burden.

The second is that your character is measured more truly by what you are than by what you have. To have little and make that little superb. To receive a very modest income and yet shine out through the meagerness of it, because of personal virtues. To be plain and unpretentious and yet to be as able to look the world in the face as if you were loaded with the worlds material abundance.

"Finally, no matter whether rich or poor, parents must learn that character is the first thing in the happiness and the integrity of the household. And character is a thing created by the individual himself. The able mother involved in this story made that plain to me as she explained how she arranged that each one being of the whole—these modest ideals suggested by a humble home prove to be basic issues for the building of a high minded and progressive society.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

FOLKS AND LIGHTS.

I'VE met with folks of many kinds since I've been here sojourning; along life's path that twists and winds, new folks at every turning. It has not been a lonely way, kind hearts and friendly faces have done their portion day by day to smooth the roughest places. And many, many times it seems folks' lives like lights are glowing; they shed their brave refulgent gleams along the path I'm going. There are great lights that shine for all, from starry heights they guide us, and lesser lights whose bright rays fall and twinkle close beside us. Some men are like the splendid light within a beacon tower to guide the sailors through the night, to save when tempests lower; great lights that shine across the sea and flash their hope and gladness above its sounding mystery, its endless song of sadness. And some are lights like those set high against the tranquil gleaming that strikes athwart the sapphire sky when twilight sets us dreaming. So many souls, and lights from all across life's pathway beckon; so many lights whose glories fall with love no man can reckon. Some like the stars that shimmer white; some, torch-lights, flaming, slender; but you are like the candle-light, a friendly glow, and tender. Like candles standing in the wind, with bright flame gaily dancing, you are a light as fair and kind, with golden rays advancing. And as the candle's little light to hearth and home is nearest, so does your glory through the night to me seem still the dearest.

SOMEWHERE in the universe
A woman weeps weary of waiting
For the love she has longed.
As every woman
And the heart of her chills with the thought
That love has passed her by never to return.
But elsewhere in the universe
A man with bowed head
Reaches forth into empty space
To clasp the invisible one into his arms.
He, too, is weary with the yearning of years.
But Destiny stands smiling
And has already put in motion
The means of meeting.
And their joy will be greater than they had dreamed.
Their loneliness will be forgotten
In the ecstasy of that meeting.
Though long waited for, yet sudden,
As all great things come.
Therefore, sad heart, have hope.
Love will come
If you are there to greet it when it does.
As was intended by the Maker of all things true.
Fortunate are they who find their true mates
While their youthful dreams have not yet faded;
And lucky are those
Who come together
While they are in the heyday of life,
And even when the time has been long
The richer indeed it is when
Experience has made for strengthened stability
And thus the better able to hold a great love.
Ah, yes! Who knows, perhaps around the corner
The little god is pointing his arrow at you!
Perchance he had taken the wrong aim
And has failed to hit you before.
But as sure as the sun shines,
As certain as the stars come at night in the skies,
Waiting, waiting just for you
There is someone somewhere in the universe.

The Care of the Teeth

JUST as the simplest advice and the simplest remedies are always the best, so very simple means are at our command for preserving and beautifying the teeth. Common salt is excellent as a cleanser, acting at the same time as a tonic, hardening the gums and stimulating the parts generally. Prepared chalk is also very good as a simple tooth powder. A nice tooth powder consists of precipitated chalk, 4 ounces; powdered borax, 2 ounces; powdered myrrh, 1½ ounces; powdered orris root, 1 ounce, and carbonate of magnesia, 1½ ounces.

The general use of astringent mouth washes is condemned because certain tissues require them, while others require stimulation. Some experiments made on dogs showed that the constant use of astringents interfered for hours with the proper action of saliva upon starchy foods. An antiseptic mouth wash with proper tooth brush, powder or paste and the use of dental floss is all one requires except in such unhealthy conditions are pyorrhea.

The teeth should be cleaned every six months by a dentist, as tartar is bound to collect around the bases, loosening them; it also makes the gums spongy and affects the saliva, thus making the food harder to digest. A good deal of mischief can be set up in the teeth in six months, and it is a capital plan to examine one's own teeth very carefully between times—with a dental mirror—for tiny cavities that can neither be seen nor felt. Many teeth can be saved for years with this slight precaution, for when a tooth begins to ache it is pretty far gone.

Warm oil of cloves, on a bit of cotton inserted into an aching, decayed tooth will relieve the pain, at least temporarily. Oil of cloves possesses the further advantage of arresting decay; so, if one happens to be away from the beaten track of dentists, it is a good and simple remedy to have on hand.

Another wise precaution is the use of a glass tube in taking liquid medicines containing iron and other things that are likely to discolor or affect the teeth in any way.

The health and beauty of the teeth are, of course, influenced by the general health, especially of the throat, mouth and gums.

An excellent mouth and throat gargle that can be used with much satisfaction under these conditions is made of chlorate of potash, 12 drams; tincture of myrrh, 2 drams; alcohol, ½ ounce; cinnamon water, 6 ounces.

FASHION FRILLS

The short coat of one material with the frock of another material and shade continues to find favor in Paris today. But the frock is likely nowadays to have a footing, perhaps three inches wide, of the coatee material.

• • •

No waistline whatever, an unbroken sheath from shoulder to knee—this sort of gown is popular at present in Paris but it is permitted that it be relieved by a graceful ornament. The ornament is a long, flat bow of satin placed up and down on one hip, with ends hanging to the dress hem.

• • •

The newest collar in London for the evening cloak of sombre tone is a shirred and shaped affair of white fur. The collar is short, by former measurements, but it is so shaped that it lies flat like a frame for the face when the cloak is open, and billows beautifully high around the ears when the neck is closed.

• • •

Among the fur trimmed dresses now so popular in England, lace is rather incongruously, used as wide ruffles. There is often, too, a long, heavy tassel of fur and chenille on the girdle.

• • •

One of the dance frocks shown in New York which has no sleeves whatever does its best to hide the lack by means of black velvet ribbons. These, fastened at one side of the armhole, lie in a loose knot upon the upper arm before being tied with a bow round the wrist.

• • •

A very oriental effect now is obtained by smoothing the hair back from the face, doing it low and wearing a double band of Persian silk motifs across the forehead, the motifs being petal shaped. With long earrings in Persian tints, the sultana air is very marked.

• • •

Velvet is made so soft and flexible today that it may even be shirred without being too bulky. One sumptuous negligee of butterfly velvet voile, a fabric which combined chenille and voile, has the entire front shirred in wide flounce-like effects.

• • •

The Russian tunic effect is becoming more and more frequent. It is seen not only in chic frocks, with a swirl of fur at the hem, but also in long, somewhat loose coats, especially for evening wear.

• • •

The sleeve today, if there is one, may be loosely tied around the wrist with a ribbon. Or it may hang in the widest of georgette cuffs. Or it may end just above the wrist in a smart, turned back cuff.

• • •

Ox blood is a favorite color in London today, particularly when combined with black. Women are wearing ear rings, necklaces and coiffure chains in beads of this shade.

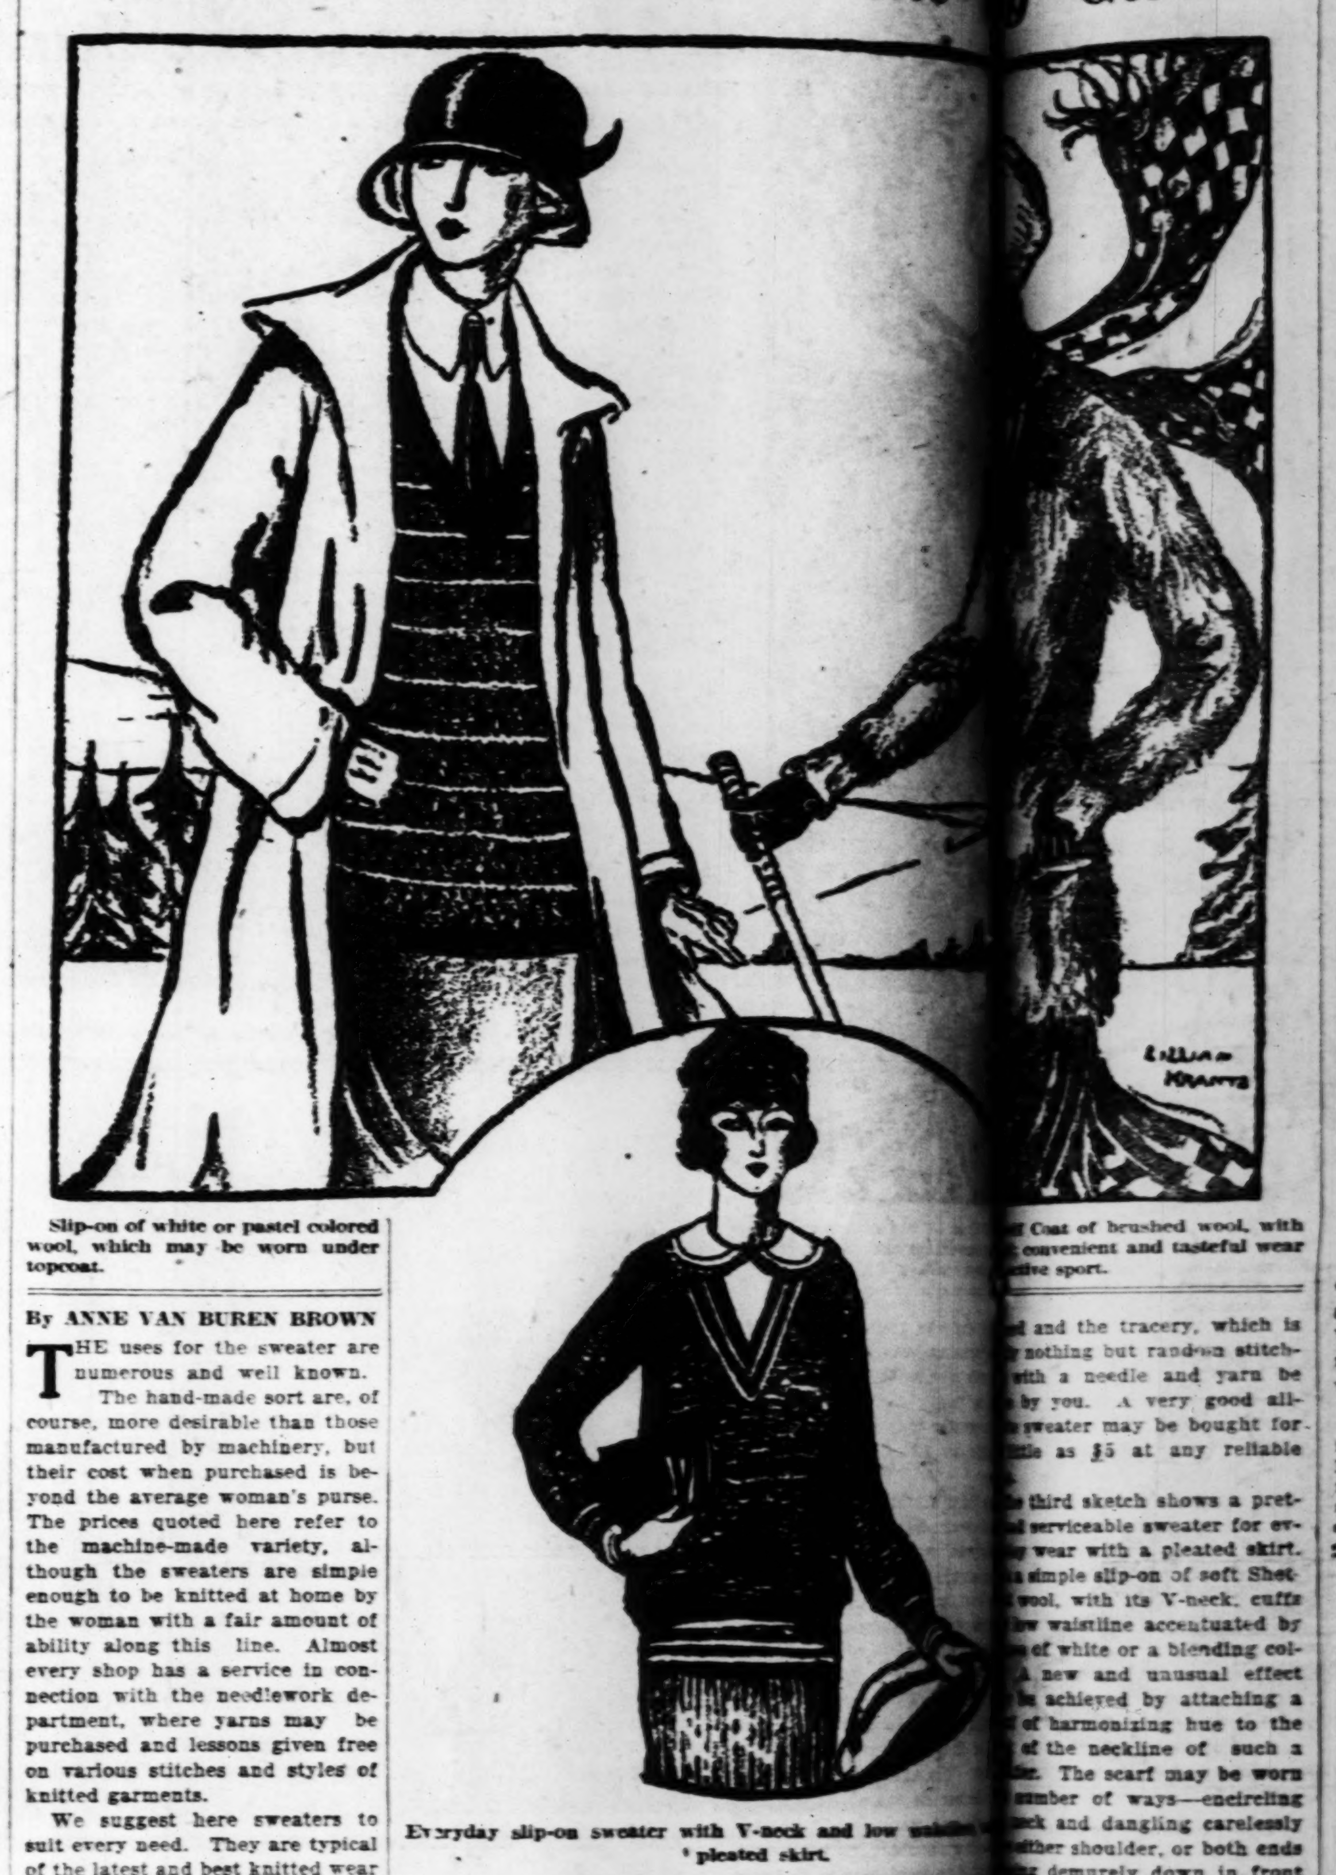
Smart Sweaters for the ... Girl



Slip-on of white or pastel colored wool, which may be worn under topcoat.

Everyday slip-on sweater with V-neck and low waistline ... pleated skirt.

By ANNE VAN BUREN BROWN

THE uses for the sweater are numerous and well known.

The hand-made sort are, of course, more desirable than those manufactured by machinery, but their cost when purchased is beyond the average woman's purse. The prices quoted here refer to the machine-made variety, although the sweaters are simple enough to be knitted at home by the woman with a fair amount of ability along this line. Almost every shop has a service in connection with the needlework department, where yarns may be purchased and lessons given free on various stitches and styles of knitted garments.

We suggest here sweaters to suit every need. They are typical of the latest and best knitted wear that is offered by first-class shops, and the quality is excellent. It is extravagant to pay much more than the prices quoted, and false economy to pay less, for there is nothing more shapeless and unattractive than a cheap sweater after a few wearings.

The sketch at the upper right shows a golf coat of brush wool. It is extremely tailored and buttons all the way up the front with little leather buttons. This sweater comes in a variety of pastel shades, as well as in a warm shade of beige, and is the most useful sort for active sports. It will cost from $8 to $9, and will prove a very warm and useful garment. The accessories shown are a pleated skirt of checked or plaid woolen material, which will run about $10, and a scarf to match. You may, however, finish the costume with a smart knitted hat and scarf in a contrasting shade, and a very good set of this kind can be bought for about $8 or $10.

The second model, at the upper left, is a slip-on and is most attractive in white or a very pale shade. It is of course, most suitable for country or winter resort wear and is thin enough to be worn under a topcoat with comfort. It is made of Shetland wool with a delicate tracery or darning of pastel colored wool, which may follow straight lines as shown in the sketch or may cover the body ... and the tracery, which is ... nothing but random stitch... with a needle and yarn be... by you. SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By HELEN ROWLAND

VERILY, verily, my Daughter, all men say: "Alas, WHERE shall we find a 'modest violet' amongst women? For a simple damsel full of sweetness and humility is the desire of every man's heart!"

Yet, alas, where orchids abound, a violet sigheth unobserved. And a brown sparrow is not SEEN of men, when a Bird of Paradise passeth.

Wherefore, then, dost thou condemn a damsel that she arrayeth herself as a living-poster, and goeth forth painted as with housepaint?

For, lo, NOT through his stomach or his sentiment is the way to a man's heart, but through his eyes and his imagination.

Go to! She that "putteth on the Chihuahua" and "throweth the toro" shall be transported in limousines and dined at exclusive places; and she that weareth fake pearls shall in time be offered real ones.

For, unto her that SEEMETH to have, shall be given.

But she that weareth her last year's hat and is gowned in a "made-over" shall be guided to the cheap table d'hote, and her reward shall be a flivver and a picture show.

She that maketh a good showing and filleth her parlor divans with dubs and with dumb-bells, shall be accounted "popular," and shall soon find a SHEIK amongst them.

BUT she that refuseth to dance with bores and is not at home to chair-warmers shall appear lonesome, and be accounted a "left-over."

She that veileth her charms and hideth her talents under a bushel of modesty, shall be admired by matrons and loved by others. But she that ADVERTISETH herself and vaunteth her conquests shall be followed by their sons.

She that sitteth within the house and thinketh the harp may be called a man's IDEAL; but she that goeth forth at the tea-hour with the sounding of brass and bloweth her own saxophone shall be courted early.

She that waiteth for the arrival of Prince Charming, may wait all the days of her life.

But she that setteth the scene and hoisteth the flag and soundeth the trumpet for his coming, will not let him GET PAST!

For, verily, men are as sheep in a pasture, as geese in a barnyard—hithersoever one goeth, the other will follow.

And, where a woman is concerned, there is NO judgment IN them.

WITH the continued vogue for the plain bodice, the necklace becomes more ornate, so the festoon type has met with a ready acceptance. These are usually composed of three strands in graduating lengths and often the middle strand is in contrasting color.

• • •

The fancy bead is the last word in necklaces. Large beads in odd shapes and fancy cuts are combined with several smaller sized beads to produce exquisite results. The favored beads come in cubes, squares or oblong shapes. The melon shaped bead is very popular in the 40-inch necklaces, and the olive type is much used. Filigree metal in combination with the beads is prominently featured. A handsome 40-inch necklace of filigree metal is made up with black and white pearls in various sizes.

• • •

Fobs are again fashionable. There are ribbons of moire and the round, square or oval pendant plaques of shell, galolith or onyx are studded with rhinestones.

• • •

New bracelets are of the flexible type and those of tiny seed pearls and filigree are charming. The elaborate bracelets for evening wear remind one of the intricate plaque bracelets grandmother has among her relics. In Paris they are wearing bracelets over the long sleeve and often a dozen or more are worn at a time.

• • •

Head bands of cut steel in the coronet shapes are very dainty. Cut steel continues to be prominently featured in jewelry and filigree metals in all sorts of designs are combined with pearls or rhinestones. By the way, rhinestones are extremely popular just now.

DELECTABLE MUSH.

TAKE one cup corn meal, one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon salt.

Mix ingredients, add cold water, then stir in boiling water. Place over low fire and stir for 10 minutes, then steam for two hours in double boiler.

Place in wet breadpan and allow to stand over night. Cut in slices about one-half by three inches, dip in beaten white of egg to which one tablespoonful of water has been added, then into cracker crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Children's Bedtime Story

The Home of Trader the Wood Rat

> Whose handiwork shows he has tried
> To do his best has cause for pride.
> —Old Mother Nature.

AS is the way with Meadow Mice, Danny and Nanny were abroad both by day and night. Whenever they were hungry they went to look for something to eat. It made no difference whether the sun was shining or the moon was shining. Often when they were out at night they met their newly found relative, Trader the Wood Rat. But they never met him in the daytime. Danny mentioned this to him once.

"I don't like sunlight," he replied promptly. "I guess my big eyes were given me for use at night and not in the daytime."

"Your eyes remind me of the eyes of Timmy the Flying Squirrel, and he never comes out until after dark," spoke up Nanny.

"What do you do in the daytime?" asked Danny.

"Sleep," replied Trader.

"That reminds me, where is your home?" said Danny.

"Not very far from here," replied Trader. "It is just back a little way in the woods. Come over and see it. It is a pretty good home, if I do say so. I don't believe in bragging, but just the same I don't know of any better home than mine. Come along and see what you think of it."

Having nothing in particular to do, Danny and Nanny accepted the invitation. Truth to tell, they were very curious. They had wondered a great many times what kind of a home their cousin Trader had. They wondered if it was a hole in the ground like that of their hateful cousin, Little Robber the Cotton Rat.

"He's such a smart fellow he probably has it well hidden," Danny had said. And to this Nanny had agreed.

"Here we are," said he at last.

So they were quite ready to follow Trader and visit his home. He led them a short distance into the woods. "Here we are," he said at last, stopping at the foot of a tree. Then without waiting for them to reply, he climbed that tree as nimbly as a Squirrel.

Danny and Nanny looked up. Half-way up that tree was a tangle of vines, and in the midst of that tangle was a great mass of sticks and leaves. It was two or three times as big as the summer home of Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel. It was so big that for a moment they didn't think it could be Trader's home. But they saw him disappear in it, and they heard him calling them to come on up.

Now, while Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse spend most of their time on the ground, they can climb, as you already know. This wasn't a hard tree to climb, so after hesitating a moment or two Danny started up and Nanny followed. When they reached that great mass of dry sticks and leaves it looked even bigger than it had from the ground. Trader poked his head out from an opening.

"Well," said he, "what do you think of it?"

"I think it is a splendid place for a home," replied Danny. "I suppose it is the old home of some one a great deal bigger than you."

"Nothing of the kind," retorted Trader. "I built it myself. Every stick in it I brought and put in place. It was a lot of work. Yes, sir, it was a lot of work. But work never yet hurt any one. Come in and make yourselves at home."

LAWS.

The claim that the United States is the most lawless nation on earth is without foundation of fact. We have more laws than any nation in the world. And out of all the welter of laws the only one that is not broken every minute of every day in the year is the law of gravity.

Since profiteering became fashionable the law of supply and demand has been a dead letter. But the law of gravity remains as fixed today as it was on the day Sir Isaac Newton was beaned by the apple.

THE Law as by Sir Isaac Newton writ

Can find no loophole in this famous law,
For what goes up as surely must come down.

And Labor has been tinkering with the law of compensation until it reads like a page from the Arabian Nights.

NOT.

Hi Johnson intimates that the man of moderate income would rather continue paying a high income tax than see the rich man's taxes reduced. Yes, he would!

Another riddle for the police to solve.

While the investigating rampage is on we'd like to have the Senate look into the furniture situation. Even the price of a good Presidential chair is almost prohibitive.

HE WANTED TO MEET THE STAR

FOR the better education of those Americans who labor under the misapprehension that Punch is not a humorous publication attention is directed to a little incident which may or may not have had a basis of fact, and which was set forth not so very long ago in the columns of that lively weekly.

It seems that in London police court a well-dressed person was arraigned on a charge of intoxication. Being impressed by the genteel appearance of the accused the magistrate was moved to put questions to the arresting officer.

"What led you to believe that the defendant was in an inebriated condition?" he asked.

"Well, your Worship," replied the policeman, "after he was ejected from the Cinema he created a disturbance outside on the sidewalk and I was called. By the time I arrived he had disappeared. Later, I was told that he had returned. I made a search and I found him with a large bouquet of flowers in his arms sitting in the doorway at the rear entrance of the theater."

"Did he give any reason for this peculiar behavior?"

"Well, your Worship," stated the policeman, "his manner of speech was very indistinct, but from what I could gather, he was [illegible] for Mary Pickford."

32 DEAD, 8 INJU
TOLL IN MINE
AT JOHNSTON C

Four Hundred Workers Get to Surface Safely Following Explosion of Dust at Crerar Concern's Workings — Investigation Is Begun.

FATHERS PERISH WITH THEIR SONS

Mine Manager and Boss Among Victims, as Well as Brothers in Two Families—First Body Recovered 8 Hours After Blast.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill., Jan. 26.—With 32 coal miners dead and with eight in the hospital, two of whom are not expected to recover, Illinois mine authorities, the Coroner and company officials today joined in the inquiry into the explosion, yesterday afternoon, in the workings of the east mine of the Crerar Clinch & Co., near here.

The explosion is attributed to spontaneous combustion of coal "damp" and dust, from undetermined causes.

The blast occurred at 2:20 p. m., but it was nearly midnight before mine rescue workers could penetrate the dense gas fumes to reach the imprisoned miners, who were caught in Entries 11 and 12, situated about a mile from the shaft on the 280-foot level. Of 40 men working there, 30 bodies had been taken out at 2:30 o'clock this morning, five were resuscitated by pulmotor, and three were able to make their way to the top.

Two bodies were brought to the surface at noon today. The bodies were burned, and have not been identified.

Manager and Boss Among Dead.

Rescue workers found the bodies strewn about the entries, clothing burned away, the positions of some of them indicating they had sought vainly to reach safety. Among the dead are Herbert McCulloch, mine manager, and Jesse Ford, mine boss.

First news of the disaster was brought to the surface by the mine engineer. Immediately officials sought to communicate with the various underground workings by telephone, and the scene of disaster was located. Calls for help were sent out, and mine rescue teams, of six men each, arrived shortly from Benton, Herrin and Royalton. Volunteers swelled their numbers to about 50.

News of the disaster spread rapidly, and a crowd of relatives of the imprisoned men, mostly women and children, gathered. There were approximately 450 men working in the mine and most of these were brought quickly to the surface.

Forty-five of the miners, who were underground when the explosion occurred, gathered in Entry No. 1, which they closed off by a curtain. One of their number telephoned they were safe temporarily.

Union President's Son Perishes.

One of the first miners to reach the surface was Philip Phillips, president of the local mine workers' union. He asked if his son, George, 20 years old, who had been working in the mine about six months, had been rescued, and when informed negatively, he insisted upon returning to the mine. The body of the son was one of the first to be recovered.

Throughout the eight hours from the time of the explosion until the first body was brought to the surface, members of the miners' families remained about the mouth of the shaft, despite near-zero weather. Hot coffee and sandwiches were served to rescue work-
